Maryland Holstein Association Celebrates Banner Year

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

WESTMINSTER, Md. — Maryland Holstein Association members gathered here last weekend to commemorate a history-making year and look toward the future.

A number of youth and adult Holstein enthusiasts were recognized for their outstanding contributions toward the advancement of the Holstein breed.

Five youths received academic scholarships for their achievements in the dairy field.

Brett Haines, a dairy science major at Delaware Valley College, was named Maryland Outstanding Holstein Scholar and awarded $2,000.

The son of Michael and Anita Haines, Taneytown, Brett is involved in all aspects of the family farm and owns about 25 registered Holsteins. He has been active in 4-H dairy judging and in dairy bowl competition on local, state, and national levels, and has served as president of the Maryland Junior Holstein Association. He aspires to a career in dairy genetics.

Gary Brauning III, Andrea Hood, Josh Sanders, and Barbara Schenning rounded out the field of scholarship winners, each receiving $750 toward their education.

Brauning, Haines, and Hood were also named Maryland Holstein Association distinguished junior members for 2002.

For high junior production achievement, Marlee Savage of Montgomery County was recognized for three top cows, including Hobble Hill Pooh, who produced 39,174 pounds of energy-corrected milk as a 3-year-old. Ryan Savage, also of Montgomery County, owned two cows that topped the list in their age group. Stephanie Kepler, Frederick County, had the high-producing 4-year-old.

Maryland Holsteins made an unprecedented splash in 2001 at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in Canada, when Ernest Kueffner and Oseeana Holstein's 4-year-old Tri-Day Ashlyn-ET and 5-year-old Ernest-Anthony SD Tobi-ET were named supreme champion and reserve grand champion, respectively.

"At no other time have the grand champion and reserve grand champion come from the same state," noted Arthur Rhoderick, outgoing president of the

Educator Promotes LEAP To Certify More Ag Teachers

PORT ROYAL (Perry Co.) — MeeCee Baker is an agricultural educator at Greenwood High School, but now she has "leaped" to a wider field of influence as an adjunct professor at North Carolina State University.

Knowing that there is a critical shortage of teachers in agriculture across the country, Baker seeks to interest more men and women in becoming certified in agricultural education.

As a part of the LEAP Program, she is working to do that.

LEAP is the acronym for Licensure in Education for Agricultural Professionals. The program allows an individual with an ag-related bachelor's degree to take courses online to

Program Promotes Environmental Stewardship

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — On Monday a group of producers and allied industry members gathered for a monthly poultry seminar sponsored by Penn State extension and department of poultry science.

Ken Kephart, professor of animal science at Penn State, was the guest speaker during the meeting. Kephart summarized the Pennsylvania Environmental Agricultural Conservation Certificate of Excellence (PEACCE) program.

The program evolved from a livestock evaluation program and is sponsored by several agricultural and conservation-based organizations.

The goal of the program is to promote environmental stewardship, provide odor solutions, minimize water impact, improve community relations, decrease liability, and help agriculture move toward self-regulation.

PEACCE, a free program, is comprised of several components, the first of which is an environmental awareness course immediately followed by a test. Approximately 600 participants, mostly pork producers, have been certified so far in the program.

This classroom phase, 1-1½ hours long, is an "attempt, in a relatively short period of time, to get producers to think about environmental stewardship," said Kephart.

The second phase is an on-farm assessment and environmental review. Approximately 125 people in Pennsylvania have been through this phase, said Kephart.

The evaluation is a confidential, voluntary report. Assessors check the farm's ventilation, odor, and manure storage, for example, to address water and air quality issues.

Two trained assessors list the farm's strengths and challenges in a report that is issued to the farmer two weeks after the visit. The report also lists cost-effective recommendations.

Both the first and second phases are available. The third phase is expected to be available in mid-2002.

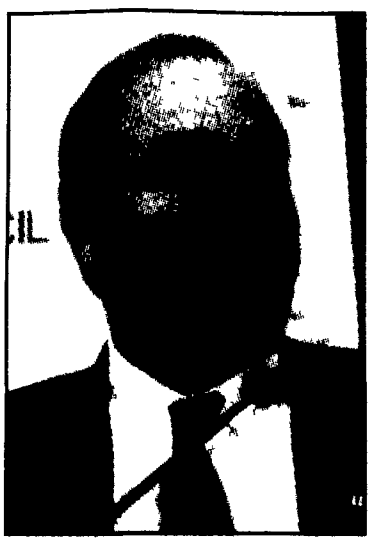
Pa. Governor Candidates Detail Their Platforms Before Cornucopia

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Three candidates for state governor were invited to share their ideas about proposed administrations Monday before Cornucopia here at the capitol.

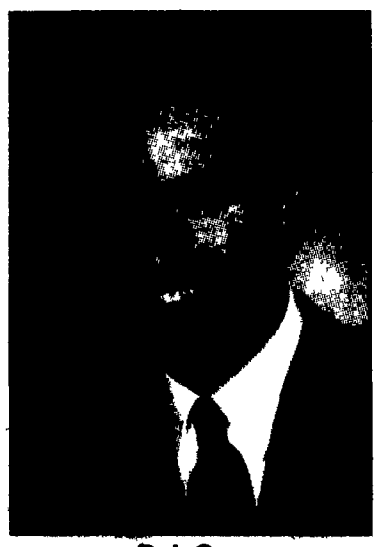
Three candidates were invited — Ed Rendell, former mayor of Philadelphia, democrat; Robert P. Casey Jr., state auditor general, democrat; and Mike Fisher, attorney general, republican. But only Rendell spoke in person at the annual meeting of the Pennsylvania State Council of Farm Organizations conducted earlier in the day.

Tuesday, May 21 is the state primary. Election Day for governor is Nov. 5.



Ed Rendell

Mike Fisher



Bob Casey

Rendell, who has targeted property/school tax reform as a priority, noted how the individual property owner absorbs the burden for institutional costs, compared to about 25 years ago. Rendell noted that in 1974-1975, the state paid for about 55 percent of the school costs in 501 districts. Today that number is down to 35 percent, leaving taxpayers with heavier burdens.

"In educational funding, Gov. Schweiker's administration proposed a 1 percent increase in educational funding," Rendell noted. "With inflation just under 3 percent, that's actually a cut in educational funding."

That and other factors have forced "property tax hits" which are unfair to people, he noted.

Rendell's plan: double the cigarette tax (which is still lower compared to other Northeast states) and authorize slot machines at racetracks.

Adjoining states have slots, Rendell noted, which draw taxpayers and their money away from Pennsylvania.

Rendell, popular with voters in the more "urbanized" counties surrounding Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, touted his "economic incentive" packages to take advantage of the two largest state industries, agriculture and tourism.

Rendell noted he would help fund and increase those industries and revitalize those strengths. "That I can guarantee you," he said.

Rendell, however, admitted he knew little about the agri-industry infrastructure but said he would be willing to "learn, listen, and adapt," much as he did in revitalized business in downtown Philadelphia.

Rendell noted on his Website (www.rendellforgovernor.com)

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
March 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was very light during midweek trading as dealers noted very little incentive to extend floorstocks beyond most immediate needs. Offerings of breast items were at least adequate and were often increasing in availability Wings were fully adequate Dark meat cuts, in particular legs and leg quarters, were ample and building. Movement through retail and distributive channels was light and the scattered feature activity usually highlighted the more seasonal items rather than poultry. The market tone was no better than steady on breast items, cautiously steady on wings and barely steady to weak on legs and leg quarters.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
March 13, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

Light overnight exports, coupled with extremely dry conditions in HRW growing areas, kept the fire lit under the wheat market today. Soil moisture in the Plains has been all but depleted, with only a slight chance for rains early next week. It is going to take some fresh news to get the corn market rolling. A private exporter sold 109,728 tons of corn to Japan, which only held losses to a minimum on Wednesday's market. The soybean harvest in South America continues to roll along smoothly, which is unfavorable to the market. Further price pressure is coming from the stout discount South America beans offer to domestic. Wheat steady to 6 cents higher. Corn mostly 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 1 to 6 cents lower. Soybeans uneven, from 1 cent lower to 2 cents higher.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

VERNAL EQUINOX, MARCH 20

PURE MONDAY

Pure Monday (also known as Clean Monday) occurs on March 18 this year. It's the Monday when Lent (Great Lent) begins in the Eastern Catholic and Eastern Orthodox churches. The Sunday of Orthodoxy, March 24, is the first Sunday of Lent on the Orthodox church calendar; other churches, such as the Roman Catholic church, observed February 17 as the first Sunday in Lent this year. Ages ago, Lent was also a time when candidates studied and fasted in preparation for baptism around Easter.

Cleanliness is next to godliness

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

March dry, good rye. March wet, good wheat.

TIP OF THE WEEK

SPRING-GREENS SALAD

8 to 10 cups mixed fresh greens including endive, young dandelion leaves, escarole, radicchio, mustard greens, beet greens, and/or watercress
2 tablespoons balsamic or red wine vinegar
6 to 6 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
1/2 teaspoon kosher salt
1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard chopped herbs of your choice (such as parsley and chives)

Wash and spin dry the greens. Prepare vinaigrette dressing by combining the remaining ingredients. Chill salad and dressing separately until ready to serve, then toss together.

Makes 6 servings

OPINION

Farm Bill And The Best 'Safety Net'

To put it mildly, it's difficult for producers in many parts of the country to decide what long- (or even short-) range plans to have for their business when the Farm Bill still hasn't been signed into law.

Some farm organizations can't agree what version is best.

American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) recently noted they want the final bill by the end of this month. They oppose provisions in the Senate bill, including commodity payment limits of $275,000 per farm family. (House version is $550,000.) They also don't like a provision that would shift water regulation authority from states to the federal government. AFBF would rather have expanded voluntary conservation incentives to increase cost-sharing options for farmers.

The National Farmers Union (NFU), on the other hand, supports the Senate version, which provides, they say, a broader, more comprehensive safety net compared to the House version.

In the March 4 Farm Bureau News, pages 4-5 outline nicely what AFBF's priorities would be and compares the two versions. They should approve of some aspects of the Senate version, with its soybean loan rate reductions. They also are on the "same page" regarding payment limits (AFBF wants $50,000 for PLC direct payments, $75,000 for countercyclical payments, and $150,000 for MILGs/LDPs).

AFBF prefers a total payment limit of $550,000, same as the House version, compared to the Senate's $275,000.

Everybody believes that conservation incentive programs should continue.

A big area of the new Farm Bill proposals, under the Senate bill, contains a dairy title that would provide support for dairy producers in 12 northeast dairy states, including Pennsylvania, New York, Maryland, and others. The program would provide producers a payment whenever the monthly Class I (fluid milk) price falls below $16.94 per hundredweight (CWT). This program is targeted to dairy farms with about 400 cows or less. The Senate bill would extend the dairy price support program at the current level of $9.90 per CWT.

State Grange has noted that producers should be allowed to choose between the Dairy Compacts, which they believe promote stable milk prices, or the new direct payment program. Grange also backs a federal dairy support price of at least $9.90 CWT.

NFU sees that the bill must provide an economic safety net that "provides realistic support for working farmers," according to a recent news release.

We agree. Even the Soil and Water Conservation Society recently released a report, which clearly notes the Senate bill favors more long-term, wide-ranging programs, with funding to conservation programs outstripping the House bill by about $4 billion over 10 years.

What's keeping this thing from passing? Well, politics, as usual. So much is at stake, with the country now only pulling out of recession and commodity prices the lowest we've seen. Not to mention election-year turmoil, with all the candidates promising to solve constituent problems.

And remember, Europe still far "out-subsidizes" ag programs compared to the U.S. This continues to create a trade disadvantage for farmers here. And if trade remains a priority, producer/constituents want critical provisions met.

Lancaster Farming doesn't want to see the needs of farmers hampered, especially in these trying times. But we like the Senate version better, since we believe farmers would benefit in a variety of ways, not just on direct payments but on many other provisions. It's reasonable. They should sign it.

Now Is The Time

To Apply Nitrogen To Small Grain

Dr. Elwood Hatley in the agronomy department suggests the rate and timing of spring-applied nitrogen depends on several factors.

The first factor is growth stage. If the plants are at growth stage 2 (main stem and one or two tillers) or less, apply the nitrogen as soon as plants start "greening-up." If the plants are past growth stage two, the nitrogen can be applied from "green-up" to growth stage 5 (early erect growth). Refer to the 2002 Agronomy Guide, page 73, for a description of growth stages. The 2002 agronomy guide is available on the Internet at http://agguide.agronomy.psu.edu/.

The nitrogen rate will depend on anticipated yield, previous crop yield, previous fertilizer amounts, and frequency and amount of manure applied. Each bushel of wheat grain produced will require 1.3 to 1.5 pounds of nitrogen. Estimating the amount that will be supplied by the soil is important. Excessive nitrogen applications effect profitability, increase disease pressures, increase lodging potential, decrease yields, and increase the potential for nitrogen leaching. Inadequate nitrogen also affects profitability since it will result in reduced yield.

One of the major factors affecting soil available nitrogen is frequency of manure applications. Research indicates that when fields are manured every one or two years, one should apply 0 to 30 pounds nitrogen per acre; if applied every three to four years, one should apply 30 to 60 pounds nitrogen per acre; and when applied less frequently, one should apply 60 to 90 pounds nitrogen per acre.

Winter barley has less resistance to lodging then wheat; therefore, the nitrogen rates should be reduced accordingly. Keep the nitrogen rates between 45 and 60 pounds per acre when manure is not applied frequently to the field. When manure is frequently applied, use only 0 to 30 pounds nitrogen per acre.

To Scout Small Grain Fields For Weeds

A good vigorous stand of a small grain crop sometimes does not need any herbicide to get acceptable weed control. However, one needs to walk the fields to be able to see winter annual weeds that could be growing aggressively at this time of the year.

Shepherds purse, henbit, chickweed, and mustard are common winter annuals that infest small grains. If these weeds are present and the field does not have a history of Canada thistle, then apply a postemergence product as soon as possible. Check in the 2002 agronomy guide for the list of recommended products and the suitable growth stages of the small grain when the products can be applied. For best control, these products should be applied when the weeds are actively growing and a surfactant should be added to the herbicide.

However, if the small grain field has a history of Canada thistle, then delaying the application until the thistle emerges is necessary to get control. To get the best thistle control, one should add to the tank mix a product strong on thistles or switch to one of these products alone. Stinger is the best rated product for thistle control and can be applied up until stage nine of the small grain development.

To Seed Alfalfa Using Good Establishment Principles

According to Dr. Marvin Hall, good stand establishment is essential to optimizing the production potential of alfalfa. Thin stands encourage weed invasion, reduce yield, and may shorten the life of the stand. Considering these negative consequences of poor stand establishment along with the high actual and opportunity costs associated with establishing alfalfa, it is important to minimize the chances of failure.

Numerous activities including weed control, adjusting soil pH and fertility, and selecting the best variety need to be completed well in advance of actually seeding a new alfalfa stand. Remember that "the lack of planning is planning for failure."

Hall suggests the number one reason for poor alfalfa stand establishment is seeding too deep. The agronomic rule of thumb is not to plant a seed deeper than 5 times its diameter. That means that alfalfa shouldn't be seeded deeper than ¼ inch. Any deeper than ¼ inch increases risks of poor emergence and a weak stand. A tilled seedbed must be firm in order to have accurate seeding depth.

It is very important to attain good seed-to-soil contact. The alfalfa seed must absorb approximately 125 percent of its own weight in water to germinate. From the alfalfa seed's perspective, that's a lot of water! Since the water must move from the soil into the seed, it is crucial that the seed be in contact with as much soil as possible. Poor seed-to-soil contact results in poor and sporadic germination that lowers the number of productive alfalfa plants in the stand.

Alfalfa seeding rate recommendations vary considerably across the country depending on soil and environmental conditions. Reducing seeding rates below the recommended level is not the place to cut corners on alfalfa establishment. Economic analyses show that less than 4 percent of the total cost associated with alfalfa production is seed cost. Reducing alfalfa seeding rates is truly being "penny-wise and pound foolish."

While there has been a lot of debate over which seeding method (for example, broadcast, fluid seeding, or no-till) is the "best," it really isn't a big issue as long as each method is done correctly. This includes not seeding too deep, getting good seed-to-soil contact, and making sure enough seeds are being seeded per acre.

While these basic alfalfa establishment principles seem rather routine, every year there are unnecessary establishment failures. Many of these failures occurred because of one or more of the basic principles outlined above weren't followed. This year, don't focus on the details of alfalfa establishment so much that the basic principles are forgotten.

Editor:

On February 9, I was invited to attend an informational meeting in Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn. for the purpose of discussing state milk orders. Through the efforts of a large and active group of Minnesota dairymen known as Milk Power, the Minnesota state legislature is considering enacting a state marketing order not dissimilar to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB).

I found Dr. Ken Bailey of Penn State University in attendance, and he presented a comparison between the existing PMMB and the proposed Minnesota legislation. He included a six-page handout with his presentation.

To say that I was shocked by what Dr. Bailey had to say would be an understatement. His initial presentation omitted extremely relevant information on the PMMB, making it seem both ineffectual in dairy pricing and as little more than a regulatory state sanitation board. His "advice" to Minnesota was to forget the no-

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS ABRAHAM IN YOUR FAMILY TREE?

Background Scripture:
Romans 4.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 32:6-11.

It seems that we spend the first half of our lives hoping anxiously that we will get what's coming to us, and the second half hoping desperately that we will not get what is coming to us. We begin looking for justice and end depending upon mercy. At the start, our lives are focused on our own merit; at the end, upon the grace of God.

Sooner or later in life we realize that we will never be righteous enough to earn the favor of God. The gap between our moral capacity and God's will is just too wide to be bridged by human effort. God alone can and does bridge this terrible distance.

Many of us enter adult life believing that, if we work hard enough, long enough, sincerely and wisely enough, we can win whatever it is in life that we are seeking. Our trust is basically in ourselves. But then, along the way, life deals us some blows and we learn that the results are not in our own hands. It is then that many of us realize that the only solution is to trust, not in ourselves, but in God and his promises.

Far Beyond Belief

This trust entails belief, but it goes far beyond belief. There are lots of things which I may believe, but it is the things in which we trust that make the difference in my life.

For example, there is a test which is sometimes given to determine in advance if a particular person can be hypnotized. The hypnotist stands behind the would-be subject and tells him to let himself fall backward into his arms. Many people will do just that because they believe he will do what he says. But there are some, who, no matter that they believe the sincerity of the hypnotist, cannot bring themselves to fall backward. They believe him but they do not trust him.

When Paul and other biblical writers speak of "faith," most often they are talking about the trust which goes far beyond belief. Belief is easy, but trust asks much more of us. So when Paul quotes Genesis 15:6, he is speaking of a "belief" which is demonstrated in trust. Abraham believed God's promises and entrusted himself to the Lord. Faith is a belief so strong that we entrust ourselves to it.

The word "reckoned" here means "credited." God gave Abraham credit, not for his works or his pronounced beliefs, but for his trust. It is like getting a bill for a million dollars and finding on the statement a credit in the same amount. The amount of the credit is a gift that you could never have earned.

Easy To Say

It is easy to say "I believe in God Almighty," but something else to put yourself and life into the hands of that God. This usually requires something of a struggle.

For example, the promise of God to Abraham seemed utterly ridiculous. At their age they knew it was virtually impossible to conceive and bear a child. So the faithful response of Abraham is based not upon the reasonableness of the promise, but on the One who makes it. Certainly Abraham must have doubted the promises, even if only momentarily. But Paul says, "No distrust made him waiver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave the glory to God, fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised" (Rom. 4:20,21).

This trust is not a family or racial trait. Any and all of us can have it. If we offer God this trust we become the spiritual descendants of Abraham. It is offered to all "those who share the faith of Abraham, for he is the father of us all . . ." (4:16).

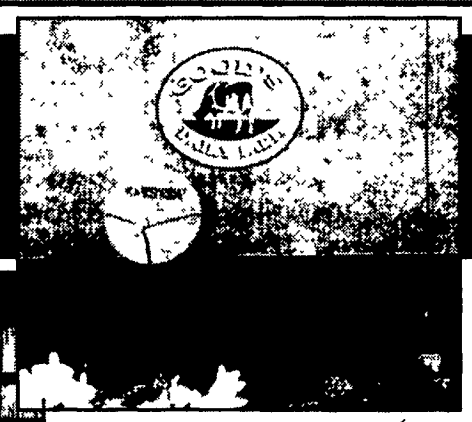
"The biggest benefit is the labor savings."



"My only regret is that I wish I had made the pit under the barn deeper."

"In my previous barn, I scraped two times a day, and I was tired of it, not to mention the danger to the cows if a cable snapped. I thought I would not be able to justify the additional cost until my builder suggested a design change which brought the cost down relatively close to the original design.

The biggest benefit to me is the labor savings. Two people can handle all the chores for our herd. I save money not only on labor but also on repairs.

The cows' hooves are healthier, and they show heat better because they are not afraid of slipping. During the five years with slats, I have not lost a single heifer from slipping. The cows stay much cleaner, even with my misting system for cooling them. The water has a place to escape."

Combination Hoof Care and Vet Chute

This highly versatile equipment can be used to secure a cow safely and efficiently for foot care or veterinary services.

Side panels and gates easily replace hoof care accessories to create a vet chute where almost any common vet procedure can be performed.

All steel parts are powder coated using the PBZ five-step process.

Heat with Corn!

A BETTER ALTERNATIVE

The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day. The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal. UL Approved.

WHY DO EASTERN GROWERS LIKE DUPONT™ BASIS GOLD®?

Most corn herbicides need rain to work. But DuPont™ Basis Gold® herbicide works with or without rain. Because it has contact control that starts killing labeled grass and broadleaf weeds immediately. And it has residual control that kicks in when it rains. So whether it rains or shines, it's always a bad day for weeds.

"Basis Gold® has been the best herbicide we have used for the control of Johnsongrass in corn. While our initial reason for using Basis Gold® was for the control of Johnsongrass we found that with a Basis Gold® and Clarity[1] tank mix we also had excellent control of all our weeds."

- Trey Hill,
Herman E. Hill & Son, Inc.
Rock Hall, Maryland

"I use Basis Gold® because it works. I do custom work for other farmers and I see what works and what doesn't Basis Gold® is a much better alternative than using a Roundup Ready[2] corn program. Basis Gold® has given me the best overall control for shattercane and foxtail, along with excellent Triazine resistant weed control. It is also easy to use due to the way the Basis Gold® is packaged. Basis Gold® is an economical way to control weeds in my cornfields. This will be my third year controlling weeds with Basis Gold®."

- Robert D. Shearer,
Mt. Joy, Pennsylvania

"It works and it doesn't have to wait for a rain I really like that the activity is not all weather related It's especially nice that I don't have to do all the respraying of escapes that I used to get. And the cost is reasonable too."

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
March 11, 2002
Market Dealing With Surplus Loads Of Milk

- Barrel demand looks good.
- Surplus cream, butter prices weak.
- Commercial disappearance for 2001.

The market is dealing with surplus loads of milk because of an early spring flush in the Northeast and South. The good news, however, is that the market is getting ready for strong sales for Easter/Passover. This is putting a floor under cream sales, and hence butter prices.

Cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange last week rose a few pennies. Blocks rose from $1.1850 per pound on Monday, March 4, to $1.21 by Friday, March 8. Barrels rose from $1.15 per pound on Monday to $1.18 by Friday. USDA reported that "most traders feel current downside price risk is minimal."

What does this mean? In the language of economics, it means some traders think that cheese prices have bottomed out and are on the rise. USDA also reported last week that a lot of barrel cheese is being sold because of strong food service promotions.

The butter story is a mixed bag. Grade AA butter prices last week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fell from $1.2725 per pound on Monday to $1.2425 by Friday. Butter production across the U.S. is seasonally strong, and butter stocks at the end of January were up 48 percent relative to a year ago. However, USDA reported, "Cream offerings remain heavy, although in some areas, ice cream, sour cream, cream cheese, whipping cream, and other cream-based items are absorbing some additional cream volumes for upcoming Easter/Passover needs." This is good news, because it indicates strong wholesale demand.

USDA announced the final numbers for commercial disappearance for 2001. These numbers reflect the demand for milk and dairy products. Butter consumption was down 2.1 percent in 2001 compared to a year earlier. This was due to very high wholesale and retail butter prices.

American cheese and Other cheese consumption were up 3.1 and down 0.1 percent, respectively. The strong sales for American cheese are surprising given U.S. milk production was down in 2001, cheese prices were strong, the U.S. economy experienced a mild recession, and events surrounding the 9/11 tragedy. Nonfat dry milk consumption was up 27.2 percent in 2001 over a year earlier. Again, this was due to the lower support price for nonfat dry milk and higher world prices for protein. Fluid milk consumption fell 0.5 percent.

There is no word yet from USDA regarding a possible butter/powder tilt. As of March 1, 2002, USDA had 829.3 million pounds of nonfat dry milk stored as uncommitted inventories under the dairy price support program. That compares to 475.6 million pounds the same time a year ago. This amount of powder is about equal to the volume of nonfat dry milk that would normally be consumed in the U.S. during an entire year. In fact, total nonfat dry milk consumption in 2000 and 2001 was 770.8 and 982.3 million, respectively. Thus a butter/powder tilt is very likely to occur.

Dry and Dusty for the Northeast

This is what the headline could read for the upcoming growing season. In that event DOEBLER'S is offering its own supplemental insurance in the form of DROUGHT TOLERANT HYBRID CORN to help you guard against loss. Let's take a look.

82XP and 82XPRR (Roundup Ready®) @ 118 days RM are highlighted for their outstanding drought tolerance. Both are effective as dual purpose hybrids (grain and silage) with good test weight.

75X2, 75X2RR (Roundup Ready®) and 75X2CL (Clearfield®) @ 116 days RM are great performers in all types of conditions. Attractive, dark green plants, they're ideal for ear picking.

636XY and 636XCL (Clearfield®) @ 109 days RM are two of Doebler's most popular hybrids. Drought tolerance and consistent yield are why!

469XP and 469XRR (Roundup Ready®) @ 97 days RM are BIG hybrids with excellent grain and silage yields as well as early vigor. They display good late season appearance & rapid dry down.

383X @ 87 days RM has great stalks, consistently high yields, good late season intactness and does well under stress. Excellent test weight and early vigor make this a great early hybrid.

296XP @ 85 days RM is another of Doebler's early hybrids with outstanding yields. Great stalks & early vigor enhance its performance.

All of the above hybrid recommendations work best in moderate populations

Take advantage of Doebler's 4% CASH DISCOUNT* or its Farm Plan® Option 4*. Order before March 23.

The benefits of using a 3 in 1 fertilizer are rather impressive.

Would higher yields impress you? How about better quality? K-MAG® can help. It provides a unique, naturally occurring combination of the potassium, magnesium and sulfur that your alfalfa needs. Since it's 100% water soluble, nutrients are always readily available. And it won't affect soil pH – even at high application rates. To make K-Mag a big part of your balanced soil fertility program, visit www.kmag.com or see your fertilizer dealer today.

Advanced Engineering Keeps Deere At Forefront Of Technology

MOLINE, Ill. — There's little doubt we live in a technology-driven age. And while technology is absolutely essential in today's agriculture, the ongoing challenge for equipment manufacturers is to apply new technology in ways that provide tangible returns to the producers who purchase and use these companies' products.

The mission of the Advanced Tractor Engineering Group, part of the John Deere Product Engineering Center in Waterloo, Iowa, is to vigilantly look for new technologies that can be applied to John Deere equipment to deliver even more value to customers' operations.

"In simple terms, we're the eyes and ears to the future," says Merv Kizlyk, manager, Advanced Tractor Engineering. "Our task is to look for current and future technologies that may exist in other industries — automotive, space exploration and so on — to see if we can adapt them in ways that help us address our customers' challenges and make them more productive and more efficient."

Bob Mayfield, a colleague of Kizlyk's said, "It's never technology for the sake of technology. Our challenge is to sort through the bells and whistles and focus on technologies that will make our customers more profitable at the end of the day," according to the John Deere staff engineer.

Focusing On The Near Future

While you might assume Advanced Tractor Engineering concentrates on some pretty space-age stuff, Kizlyk said most of the group's work is focused on a timespan of anywhere from two to 15 years in the future.

"Obviously, we look at things that are more futuristic, that reach out beyond this timeframe. But our critical focus has been, and will continue to be, product innovations that can help our customers sooner rather than later," Kizlyk said.

Customers need look no further than the new John Deere 8020 Series Tractors for examples of real-world innovations made possible by the work of the Advanced Tractor Engineering Group.

The John Deere ActiveSeat™ combines electrohydraulic technology with air suspension to provide the smoothest ride in the industry and a significant reduction in operator fatigue.

Independent Link Suspension™ (ILS) is an independent front suspension system that transfers more power to the ground. ILS virtually eliminates power hop, enhances operator comfort, and increases productivity because of higher field and transport speeds.

"These innovations are great examples of John Deere's investment in advanced engineering," Kizlyk said. "Both were put on the fast track to market because of the value and benefit they would provide our customers."

While customers serve as the ultimate judge for any new product innovation, it is interesting to note that two John Deere suspension technologies, including the ActiveSeat and a fully suspended tractor design, recently received prestigious awards for excellence. Each innovation received a gold medal at the 2001 Agritechnica Fair in Germany. Agritechnica is a major international farm equipment exposition conducted every two years. Gold medals are awarded sparingly. In fact, John Deere received two of only three gold medals awarded on more than 260 product innovations submitted for consideration at this past year's event.

"Earning recognition for our leading-edge technology is definitely rewarding," Kizlyk said. "But even more rewarding is the knowledge that this technology can help our customers do their jobs better, faster, more efficiently, more productively and more profitably than ever before."

AutoTrac: Tomorrow's Technology Today

John Deere's operator-less concept vehicle, the Autonomous Tractor, has helped the company capture headlines and imaginations in recent months. More importantly, though, the research and development effort on this project has helped yield one of the more intriguing product innovations in recent years: the GreenStar® AutoTrac Assisted Steering System.

The Autonomous Tractor is equipped with "smart" technology that enables it to effectively perform a broad range of functions without an operator. While such an operator-less tractor is still years from becoming a market reality, Merv Kizlyk said the engineering involved in this project was key to the development of the AutoTrac System available on John Deere Track Tractors in 2002.

"AutoTrac is a valuable tool that can help operators shift their focus away from mundane tasks like steering to tasks that add more value to their operations," said the manager of the John Deere Advanced Tractor Engineering Group. "That's the real benefit of the investment in an effort such as the Autonomous Tractor project. It helps us research and accelerate the development of real, tangible innovations that will help customers in their operations today and in the very near future."

John Deere AMS Delivers Solutions To Agriculture's New Challenges

MOLINE, Ill. — The pace of change in the agricultural marketplace seems to accelerate with each passing year, and with this change come new challenges and opportunities.

Providing producers with solutions to address these challenges and capitalize on the opportunities is the critical role played by John Deere AMS (Ag Management Solutions).

"We see several trends having a profound impact on agriculture in the years ahead," said Barry Schaffter, vice president, John Deere AMS.

— John Deere . . . Delivering On The Commitment To Leadership —

"First, we expect the industry to become more consumer-driven. Second, we believe production will become more differentiated, more segmented, and less commodity-based. Third, we anticipate that production agriculture will follow more of an industrial-type model where tighter controls and more documentation become the norm. Finally, we believe environmental compliance and documentation of that compliance will become critical to participating and succeeding in the market.

"At AMS," Schaffter said, "we're focused on providing growers with a variety of solution packages to not only help them deal with these changes and trends, but more importantly, profit from them."

The solution packages — backed by some of the latest computer. wireless communication and global positioning technologies — are designed to help producers:

- Improve control of input costs.
- Increase yields.
- Enhance the productivity of equipment and labor.
- Create new income opportunities through documentation.
- Aid compliance with current and future regulations.

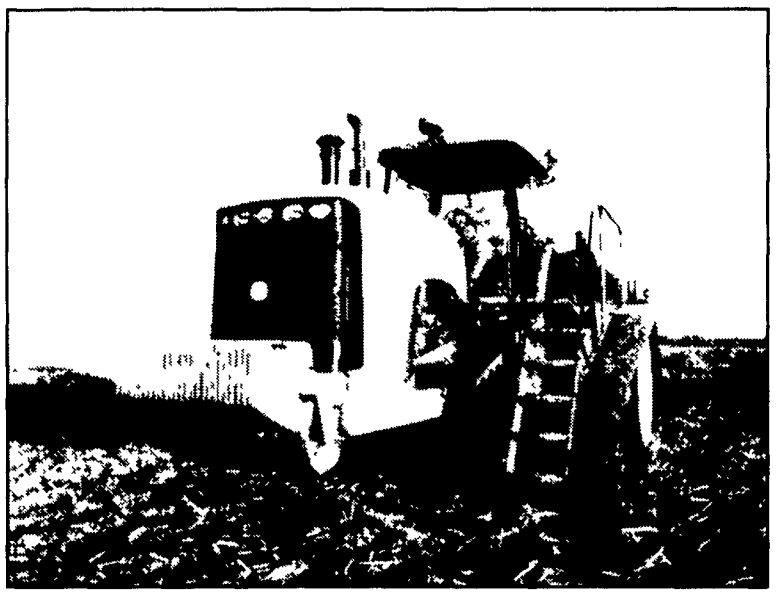
To deliver these results, John Deere AMS is focusing its energy and efforts in these core areas: agronomic management, equipment management, information management and business management.

The focus within agronomic management is to help growers reduce input costs and/or increase yields. Valuable tools designed to meet these goals include AMS products such as JDmap℠ and Field Doc™, which allow producers to electronically gather and record information about their operation and incorporate it into yield data and maps. By building on the Field Doc application, the John Deere Seeding Group and AMS are now able to offer map-based seeding, a key innovation in helping growers realize maximum economic yields and greater profits.

Innovations in equipment management are geared to improving the productivity of both equipment and operators. In February 2001, John Deere and AMS introduced Parallel Tracking to provide assisted-steering guidance. The company recently took this technology to an even higher level with the introduction of the GreenStar™ AutoTrac Assisted Steering System. AutoTrac virtually eliminates the need for straight-line steering. It is now available on all John Deere Track Tractors. AMS is working to bring AutoTrac technology to wheeled vehicles while continuing to develop new innovations for fleet management, automatic machine controls and a mobile office.

The emphasis in information management is on gathering the data producers need to meet compliance requirements or to capitalize on added-value income opportunities from product-specific contracts. Field Doc serves as the foundation for gathering this information. The system offers all the capabilities needed today and will soon become increasingly automated.

The area of business management is particularly important. More than ever, growers are looking for new and better ways to share information with partners and consultants and between enterprises in their overall business. AMS is striving to provide fully integrated data management systems so that once the information is captured it can be easily shared.



The GreenStar AutoTrac Assisted Steering System, available on John Deere Track Tractors, is an equipment management solution from John Deere AMS that virtually eliminates the need for straight-line steering.

While John Deere AMS is not alone in providing management solutions to agriculture, it does possess a truly unique position in the market.

"Because of the breadth of our equipment lineup and our penetration in the market, no one else can match the data gathering and management systems that we can provide growers," Schaffter said. "Our foundation components — the StarFire position receiver, GreenStar Display and mobile processor — provide compatibility, flexibility and system integration that nobody else can touch.

"These systems make it possible for us to provide customers with solution packages that they can customize to their individual needs to ensure they receive the maximum return on their investment," Schaffter adds. "After all, the solutions we're developing at AMS aren't worth much if they're not putting money back in our customers' wallets at the end of the day."

Deere Specialists Share Cropping Systems Knowledge

MOLINE, Ill. — Site-specific farming. Narrow-row production. Strip till, ridge till, no-till. Conservation compliance. Environmental compliance. Biotech crops. Identity preservation.

Agriculture is more complex, more sophisticated than ever. And the need for education and support has never been greater.

John Deere recognized this need 10 years ago and began addressing it by creating a new staff position known as cropping systems specialist. Today, approximately 20 of these specialists, based at John Deere Training facilities throughout North America, work closely with dealers and their customers to share leading-edge insight into some of the newest trends and practices in production agriculture.

"The original intent was for cropping system specialists to be conservation equipment specialists — to share knowledge with dealers and customers on how John Deere equipment and systems could most effectively address their challenges in meeting their conservation compliance needs," said Chris Foster, cropping systems specialist manager. "But with the proliferation of nontraditional systems and practices, like site-specific farming and changes in seeding technologies, the company soon realized it was important for our specialists to take a much broader view."

As a result, Foster said, cropping systems specialists maintain close relationships with universities and highly regarded consultants in their individual areas.

"These relationships are important because they help keep our folks on the leading edge," Foster said. "They can share this information, then, back with dealers, their customers, and the company as well."

A key area of focus for many cropping systems specialists this past winter has been training dealers — and invited customers — on John Deere's new map-based seeding system and parallel tracking with contours.

"This training has been a high priority because these technologies can provide tremendous value to growers," Foster said. "It's crucial for our dealers to have a thorough understanding of these systems so they can market and support them effectively. It's equally important for our customers to have a firm grasp so that they can realize the full benefits these products can provide."

In addition to sharing knowledge with dealers and customers, Foster said cropping systems specialists also play a key role in sharing information and knowledge back with the company.

"Because of their almost daily interaction with customers, our specialists have a valuable firsthand perspective on how growers feel about our products and about issues and trends that have an impact on their business," Foster said. "This is important information that we're constantly reporting back to marketing, product development and other key areas within the company."

Cropping systems specialists also contribute to the field training of new marketing personnel at John Deere.

"Every new marketing employee who joins the company is required to go through a four-day program created by our staff. This

— John Deere . . . Delivering On The Commitment To Leadership —

Commitment To Leadership Drives Deere In An Age Of Change

MOLINE, Ill. — The concept of leadership in business and industry goes well beyond simple measures such as unit sales and market share. It extends to less tangible, but even more important ideals such as commitment and partnership.

An ongoing commitment to agriculture and enduring partnerships with customers and dealers go a long way in defining John Deere's leadership in the marketplace. The responsibilities that come with this status are something the company takes quite seriously, said Doug DeVries, senior vice president, agricultural marketing for John Deere's North American, Australian, and Asian Division. In the following interview, DeVries shares thoughts on what it means to be a leader in the farm equipment industry and in agriculture as a whole.

Following the interview is a series of articles providing additional perspective on how John Deere asserts its leadership in key areas ranging from product engineering, design and development to customer service and support.

Q. What are some of the key qualities and attributes of an industry leader?

A. Being an industry leader means being committed to that business for an extended period of time. At John Deere, we're well into our second century of commitment to the agricultural marketplace. Agriculture always has been the foundation of our business, and it will continue to be the foundation for well into the future.

Q. As the leader of the farm equipment industry, what do you believe are the expectations customers have for John Deere?

A. Customers expect us to be there for them over the long haul. They expect us to know and understand their business and anticipate their changing needs and requirements. They also expect us to transfer our knowledge into new innovations and products that help them run their operations more efficiently, more productively and more profitably.

These expectations have been created by the generations' worth of commitment we've shown our customers. This commitment started 165 years ago when John Deere introduced the self-scouring plow and carries through today with the productive technology of our new 8020 and 9020 Series tractors. It's our ability to live up to this commitment and consistently meet and exceed customers' expectations that has kept us at the forefront of the farm equipment industry.

Long-term commitment to the market is a critical aspect of industry leadership, said Doug DeVries, senior vice president of agricultural marketing for John Deere's North American, Australian, and Asian Division.

Q. From your perspective, how do you feel John Deere is asserting its leadership in some of these critical areas?

A.

• Product development, design and engineering — Making sure we know and understand our customers' business and their needs is absolutely critical. That's why we place such a heavy emphasis on engaging customers — both John Deere and competitive owners — in every step of the process involved in developing new products and services. Another critical factor is continuously striving to integrate new technology into our products. As a company, we invest nearly $1.5 million a day in research and development to identify, adapt and apply new technology that will deliver real, tangible benefits to our customers. The return on this investment is evident in productivity-enhancing features such as the new GreenStar™ AutoTrac Assisted Steering System, which is available on our track tractors.

• Manufacturing and quality assurance — Quality goes to the very core of who we are as a company. It's engrained in our culture and it's one of our critical competitive strengths. Quality is a major area of emphasis and will remain an ongoing requirement in everything we do. Our focus on continuous improvement in our manufacturing processes is also critical. The goal here is to make sure we provide our customers with the right machine at the right time for their operation.

• Customer service and support — Service and support is just as critical as products in the overall value proposition we provide our customers. Making sure their ownership experience is second to none is vital to our business. That's why we work in close partnership with our dealers to make this experience the very best it can be. Our parts distribution system, which ensures dealers receive out-of-stock parts within 24 hours, is the industry standard. Still, we realize we can't rest on our laurels, and that's why we're constantly looking for ways to make it even better.

• Dealership support — Our John Deere dealers play an absolutely essential role in meeting the expectations and requirements of our customers. The strength of our dealers' relationships and their exceptional support provide a critical link between our customers and the company. There's no way we could go it alone, nor would we even consider it. That's why continuing to build the strength of our dealers is one of three key priorities of the North American Marketing Group in the years ahead.

• Advocacy on behalf of agriculture — We believe it is critical to support the industry that has helped make us what we are as a company. That's why we feel it is so important to back legislation, research or initiatives that return something to agriculture — whether it's new industrial uses for ag commodities, soy and ethanol-based diesel, free trade, or a strong farm bill, just to name a few examples.

Q. In the current era of mergers, consolidation and contraction, John Deere is seemingly the one and only farm equipment manufacturer that hasn't been affected. Why?

A. First, it's really not true to say we're unaffected. We're impacted every single day by the changing landscape of the marketplace. But having said that, one reason we haven't been involved in much of this contraction over time is because we continue to provide the broadest line of equipment of any single manufacturer in the business. This is a critical advantage that allows us to do product matches and technology integrations that deliver greater performance and more value to our customers.

Q. Agriculture is going through another challenging period, yet John Deere recently conducted the single largest new product introduction in the company's 165-year history. What signal does this send the rest of the industry and, more importantly, to customers?

A. When your company has been an integral part of agriculture as long as ours has been, you know there are going to be challenging economic times. As a leader you can't let that fact diminish your commitment to bringing customers new products and new innovations that help them do their jobs more efficiently, productively and profitably.

While last August's new product introduction was our largest ever, it was only one in a series over the past three years. And by the end of 2003, we will have literally delivered a completely new, comprehensive product line to our dealers and customers. The underlying message is "We're committed to our customers and their business, and we're committed for the long haul."

Q. There's little doubt that agriculture and the farm equipment industry are being reshaped right before our eyes. How do you see John Deere's role evolving as the company strives to remain in its position of leadership in the years to come?

A. I think you'll see us continue to operate by the principles that have served us so well through the years. We're going to do the very best job we can understanding the needs and requirement of our customers and investing in new innovations to help meet these needs. It's really just a continuation of a process that John Deere himself started 165 years ago.

training provides a real-world perspective on the challenges and risk that growers have to manage on a day-to-day basis," Foster said. "We're pretty proud of this program and the contribution it makes to the company. We believe this training helps create a greater appreciation of the level of investment producers have in their farm operations. And that helps foster even more empathy among the folks who work in customer and product support.

"The end result," Foster said, "is the company continues to deliver the superior product, service, and support our customers have come to expect from John Deere."

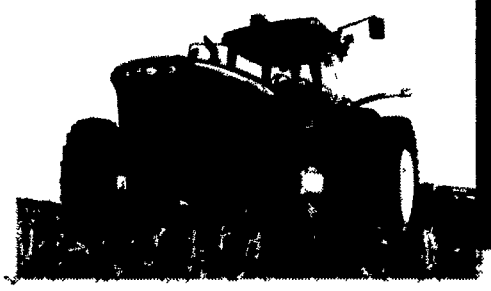
It's the Difference Between a Trend and a Commitment

It's the Difference Between Getting By and Truly Succeeding

It's the Difference Between Riding Along and Taking the Lead



Change. It's the nature of the business—yours and ours. Staying current demands more than innovation. It demands practical equipment that really works, today and in the future. That's why we design each component in the Deere family of equipment to integrate flawlessly with the next. What's more, it's all John Deere—from the technology inside to the iron outside, and even the dealerships around you. John Deere: it's the difference between building equipment and equipping you to build your bottom line.

tion of a state order and to instead improve dairy farm profitability by increasing per-cow production and by lowering somatic cell counts. He used skewed statistics to support these recommendations, and his final piece of imparted wisdom to Minnesota was to amend local statutes and zoning regulations to promote dairy herd expansion.

Fortunately, several of those in attendance called him on his inaccuracies and withholdings of fact. His standard reply was "Good point. I'm glad you brought that up." Really, and what if they hadn't? Am I to believe that Bailey was not aware of these crucial points?

For Bailey, Feb. 9's meeting followed the conclusion of a week-long tour sponsored by Monsanto for the purpose of promotion of futures and forward contracts. I find it amazing that Bailey can support a program that encourages lower, flatter raw milk prices while on the other hand he attempts to discourage a state effort that would lead to a more accurate means of determining market prices for manufactured dairy products and at the same time encourage interstate commerce cooperation among leading dairy states.

As a dairy farmer, I follow dairy issues closely, and as a result have attended numerous meetings hosted by Bailey. I have found that he consistently supports a philosophy promoting global trade and elimination of any local, state, or federal price enhancement provisions.

The time has come for Penn State to rein in Dr. Ken Bailey. Until this happens, he will continue to give the commonwealth a bad image as he promotes his aggressive views for a deregulated, global dairy industry.

Is it too much to ask to start hearing the truth from Penn State's Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology?

Adolph Hitler once said, "It is great luck for rulers that men do not think." Looking back, it's safe to say that Germany would have been a much different and better place in the 1930s and '40s if Germans had thought for themselves and acted on what was right.

Today it might be said that it is great luck for multinational agribusiness that many people do not think for themselves. One way to stimulate the thought process is through asking questions.

For example: Is the rapid pace of agribusiness mergers a good thing? Do fewer competitors increase competition? Why are corporations and cooperative extension holding joint meetings with farmers? Why is the dairy industry pushing forward contracting so hard when farmers are not likely to gain? Is it because they are seeking a captive supply of milk?

Do they envision a day when dairy farmers will own facilities and shoulder the risks while corporation X will own the cows and dictate management procedures? Why is there a continual push for larger dairies when there is growing concern about the environmental impact of CAFOs? Why do ag economists encourage expansion when both Cornell University and University of Wisconsin studies found that the lowest cost of production among top herds was in herds of less than 150 cows?

Why is a higher milk price for large dairy farms justified by dairy industry strategists while they ignore the Capper-Volstead Act, which envisioned small farms jointly marketing milk to obtain a fair price? Who will be able to buy the large megadairies in the future? Are land-grant ag economists on corporate retainers? If so, why?

Since farm Class I price for milk in Boston was $1.46 per gallon in January 1998, while retail was $2.60 and farm Class I price was $1.31 per gallon in January 2002, while retail was $2.99, how does Ken Balley's "Standard Mark-Up Model" work? Why does Penn State and the milk processing industry strongly defend Ken Balley while farmers are critical of his work?

Why does officialdom continue to push biotech when many nations keep our ag exports out as a result? These are only a few of the many questions that need answers. The most important question is, why do so few people speak out?

Editor:

I am compelled to write this letter after what I had witnessed this weekend.

My husband and I attended a benefit auction for a fire company. Just like any other benefit auction for any other fire company or school, they were selling everything from soup to nuts, horses to equipment, etc.

As usual, I like to watch the horses being harnessed and worked around the track. Now, I have seen my share of accidents with horses, I know the dangers of being around things like that. But what I am about to tell you is something that should not have happened.

One of the sellers was harnessing up his horses. As he brought out this standardbred, I noticed the horse was a little quick. Not afraid, just quick. There were two men holding the front of the horse and the other man hooked him up to the sulky. No sooner did the man in the sulky ask the horse to walk, the horse bolted. In the process of running away, the horse ran over an elderly gentleman. This was definitely an accident that could have been prevented.

I feel that the responsibility for this accident lies with the fire company and the seller of the horse. Isn't the seller aware of what he is selling? Doesn't the fire company want to conduct a safe sale, so folks come back?

The auctions advertise these sales and bring in all types of people. There are horse people and city folk attending. There were children and elderly, babies in carriages — anyone who has attended one of these sales know what I am talking about.

I am just appalled over the whole episode. It seems to me that their only concern is for how much money they can bring in and it doesn't matter how they do it or who gets hurt. What is it going to take for these people to see the light? Someone to get killed?

Dairylea Joins With 30 Amish Farms In Project

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — In a commitment to grow dairying in the Northeast, Dairylea Cooperative Inc., the region's largest milk marketing cooperative, agreed to take on the challenge of marketing milk for an Amish farm community in Montgomery County, New York. Together, Dairylea and 30 Amish families constructed and outfitted nine milk houses throughout the community, enabling the farms to begin shipping Grade A milk through Dairylea.

The relationship was established nearly seven months ago when the Amish farmers, who were interested in finding a new, more profitable market for their milk, approached Dairylea.

"This was a unique project, in that we needed to work around the traditional methods of Amish farming, but meet the necessary requirements for shipping Grade A milk," said Dairylea Regional Manager Calvin Gates.

Dairylea assisted with the logistics and financing for the construction of the nine milk houses serving the farms. Dairylea field personnel worked closely with the group to determine the best locations for milk houses. In addition, the staff helped to locate and purchase bulk tanks, work with government agencies, and secure financing through Agri-Financial Services, a subsidiary business of the Cooperative.

The farms recently using the milk houses will ship a combined 450,000 pounds per month.

Dairylea Cooperative Inc. is a farmer-owned agricultural marketing and service organization based in Syracuse. It has more than 2,500 member farms located throughout the Northeast. Dairylea is a provider of resources such as insurance coverage, loan programs, milk price risk management service, business planning, livestock marketing and investment and retirement planning through its holding company, Agri-Services, LLC.

Nematode 'Cleansing' Technique May Benefit Potato Crops

PROSSER, Wash. — Rotating potatoes with alfalfa or spearmint may offer farmers a sustainable way to reclaim crop soils contaminated with corky ringspot disease, Agricultural Research Service studies suggest.

Corky ringspot—a brown, bull's-eye blemish on tubers—is caused by the tobacco rattle virus, which is passed into potato plants by wormlike soil organisms called stubby root nematodes.

In affected areas such as Washington's Columbia Basin, where 5,000 acres are contaminated, potato farmers have either stopped growing the crop altogether or resorted to fumigating soil to kill nematodes that spread the virus.

At $250 per acre, however, fumigation is expensive. Plus, it kills soil organisms other than nematodes. A more sustainable, pest-specific approach could come from rotating potatoes with alfalfa or spearmint to rid the nematodes of their viral payload, according to scientists Rick Boydston, Pete Thomas and Hassan Mojtahedi.

Boydston and Thomas are at ARS' Vegetable and Forage Crop Production Research Unit in Prosser, Wash. Mojtahedi works for Washington State University.

Their strategy is based on two observations: First, the virus can't survive in alfalfa or spearmint, so the nematodes can't acquire it while feeding on the plants' roots. Second, the nematodes naturally shed the virus from their bodies by molting. Given enough time, the scientists reasoned, nematodes that fed only on these plants eventually would rid themselves of the virus, and thus pose little or no danger of infecting a subsequent potato crop.

Indeed, in greenhouse trials, virus-bearing nematodes that fed on potted alfalfa or spearmint plants for three months lost their ability to infect disease-free potato plants. Conversely, nematodes that fed on tobacco, a natural host of the virus, retained their ability to infect disease-free potato plants.

Some farmers already practice this rotation but still fumigate fields with a previous history of corky ringspot. The key, scientists emphasize, is to eliminate weeds in alfalfa or spearmint crops where nematodes can acquire the virus. These include hairy and black nightshade, downy brome, common chickweed and prickly lettuce. They are among 38 weed species the scientists have tested.

Corbett Selected To Head Land O'Lakes Fluid Milk Supply

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc. announced the hiring of Gary Corbett to head the national food and agricultural cooperative's fluid milk supply division. Corbett previously served as vice president for dairy and governance with Dean Foods, Inc.

"Gary Corbett brings extensive dairy industry and fluid-milk marketing experience and expertise to our milk-supply operations," said Land O'Lake President and Chief Executive Officer Jack Gherty. "Bringing Gary on board is a reflection of Land O'Lakes commitment to establishing a strong presence, and taking a leadership role, in the consolidating fluid-milk industry."

In his new role as leader of the Land O'Lakes Fluid Milk Supply Division, Corbett will report to Land O'Lakes Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer for Dairy Foods Chris Polincinski. Corbett will take over from Land O'Lakes Vice President for Public Affairs Don Berg, who had led the fluid milk supply division since it was organized in October 2001. Berg will now concentrate on public, member, and governmental affairs activities.

Recycling Program Seeks To Minimize Disposal Impact

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes Jr. encouraged commercial pesticide applicators in Pennsylvania to continue to use the Plastic Pesticide Container Recycling Program (PPCR).

"Agriculture is Pennsylvania's No. 1 industry, and we need to protect our land for future generations," Hayes said. "Through the PPCR, the Department of Agriculture continues to encourage all commercial pesticide applicators to help reduce the environmental impact of disposing plastic pesticide containers in landfills or by incineration.

"The PPCR is yet another innovative way Pennsylvania is setting the standard for other states to follow when it comes to recycling."

With more than 70 recycling sites across the state, the Department of Agriculture has collected more than 325,000 pounds of plastic containers since the program's inception in 1994. The recycling centers are generally located at agricultural chemical dealers, suppliers, or custom pesticide-application businesses.

Pennsylvania is the only state to have developed a partnership network of recycling locations utilizing private businesses to act as convenient drop-off sites.

The recycling sites collect plastic pesticide containers yearround from licensed pesticide applicators, custom application businesses, and other generators of waste plastic containers.

Pesticide containers made of No. 2 HDPE plastic, with labels and booklets removed, must be triple rinsed or pressure rinsed to be accepted. Stained containers will also be accepted, provided no pesticide residue remains.

Site personnel will inspect all containers for proper container condition and cleanliness. Any unacceptable containers will be returned to the applicator for recleaning. Clean containers will be stored in a secure storage facility at each recycling site, until the department granulates the containers for remanufacture. General household recyclable No. 2 plastic containers are not being accepted.

Since the inception of PPCR, recycling in Pennsylvania has risen from more than 6,000 pounds in 1994 to a collection of nearly 87,000 pounds in 2001. The containers that have been collected through this program have been recycled into fence posts, marine pilings, parking lot bumpers, speed bumps, pallets, and other approved uses.

To find the nearest PPCR recycling location, contact the local Department of Agriculture regional office, local county extension office, or Don Gilbert at the Bureau of Plant Industry at (717) 705-5858.

Checkoff-Funded Programs Help 2002 Cheese Marketing Efforts

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The national dairy checkoff program increases cheese demand by reaching consumers via advertising and public relations efforts, as well as via partnerships with grocery stores and fast-food restaurant chains. In 2002, these efforts are channeled through four main areas.

The advertising campaign is launching three new television commercials in 2002. "Say When," which debuted in January, features baseball Hall of Famers Sparky Anderson and Johnny Bench, who help demonstrate that there is no such thing as too much cheese for a cheese lover. Two additional cheese ads are scheduled to launch later this spring.

Following the lead of the Olympics, national, state and regional dairy promotion groups worked with influential newspaper and magazine food editors to promote "Red, White and Blue" cheese fondues. The nationally distributed media kits supplied editors with recipes and party tips to help their readers plan Olympic-themed parties.

The dairy checkoff also helps keep cheese top-of-mind with American consumers through ongoing and special publicity efforts on the national, regional and local levels. The six-week "America's Greatest Cheese Lover Search," which debuted February 1, challenges cheese lovers nationwide to enter a romantic cheese recipe and share how cheese has inspired romance in their lives. Media coverage by CNN, PBS, the national newswire Reuters, and others have told millions of consumers about these and other ways to trigger cheese cravings in their families.

Additionally, the dairy checkoff premiered a nationwide publicity campaign that builds on the 2002 Academy Awards race. Food editors will receive great-tasting, cheese-friendly recipes and other tips that cater to consumers hosting their own star-studded events.

The dairy checkoff provides national restaurant chains with key consumer market research and menu development to help increase incremental cheese usage. Taco Bell®, the nation's largest Mexican-style restaurant chain, introduced a steak quesadilla featuring a three-cheese blend of Mozzarella, Cheddar and Pepper Jack. The dairy checkoff provided the chain with consumer research and trend data, and assisted in product testing to demonstrate the value and appeal of cheese-friendly menu items.

The checkoff also funded consumer research to help Pizza Hut® introduce the P'ZONE, a version of a hand-held pizza product eaten like a sandwich. Pizza Hut is spending $70 million to promote the item nationwide.

Pa. Governor Candidates Detail

that he "eliminated a $250 million deficit" as mayor, balanced the city's budget, and generated five straight budget surpluses. He's a partner at Ballard Spahr Andrews & Ingersoll, LLP and teaches at the University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania and Villanova Law School.

A spokesperson for the proposed Casey administration, Steve Crawford, senior caucus adviser for Ag and Rural Affairs, noted how Casey, son of former Gov. Robert P. Casey, performed an audit on the $500 million Philadelphia Shipyard economic revitalization grant and no-interest loan allocation. What Casey found: good leased BMWs, grand pianos, homes, and "$4,000 swingsets," said Crawford. "Now, that's wrong. If you want to look for improvement, start there."

Crawford noted that the Casey administration would represent "fiscal responsibility" in all aspects. Crawford pointed to Casey's "doing his job" in tracking down these extravagances.

Casey has a Website. www.caseyforgovernor.com. The Website noted that since 1997, Casey's audits "have saved taxpayers millions and helped make nursing homes safer, school districts more efficient, and child care more affordable for low-income families."

Casey was re-elected auditor general Nov. 7, 2000. Prior to being elected auditor general in 1996, he practiced law in Scranton for six years. Casey is a graduate of the College of the Holy Cross, 1982, and the Catholic University of America, Columbus School of Law, 1988.

State Attorney General Mike Fisher was endorsed for the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania Feb. 9.

Fisher, who did not speak at the Cornucopia, noted in his Website address (www.mikefisher.com), that as attorney general, he "will have no higher priority than protecting our families from crime and drugs," he wrote. "But, in the midst of these tough economic times, our next governor needs to be equally committed to protecting our jobs and improving our economy. Our next governor also needs to be committed to improving our public education system and fixing our school funding crisis by providing real property tax relief."

In a story about Growing Greener, March 5, Fisher addressed the Chester County Chamber of Business and Industry to outline a plan to provide a reliable funding source for Growing Greener. The Growing Greener initiative, began by former Gov. Tom Ridge, provides additional funding for farmland preservation through recycling fees. Fisher wants to double the $2 per ton recycling fee to allocate new revenue. That would create a reliable $50 million revenue source every year.

Fisher was re-elected to attorney general Nov. 7, 2000. Prior, Fisher represented the South Hills of Allegheny County in the state General Assembly for 22 years. He has served in several capacities since being elected to the state Senate in 1980, including the Republican Whip from 1991-1996. He co-authored Pennsylvania's death penalty statute and wrote Pennsylvania's recycling bill, according to the Website.

Fisher is a graduate of Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., where he earned a bachelor's degree in 1966 and a law degree in 1969.

Pa. Governor Candidates Detail Their Platforms Before Cornucopia

Pa.'s Governor Candidates And Their Platforms

ED RENDELL
Former Mayor of Philadelphia
Democrat

1. Farmland preservation. Finding new sources of funding will be number 1 on his agenda.
2. Local property tax reform. More funding has to come from the state, less from individual property owners. How? By doubling cigarette tax and authorizing slot machines on racetracks.
3. Solutions to allow farmers to deal with environmental regulations while ensuring water quality. Water is one of the state's greatest assets, he noted. Look at regions and allow them to develop plans without the "one-size-fits-all" philosophy.
4. Increase state and economic development strategies to move additional food processors into Pennsylvania.
5. Direct grants and low-interest loans for packing facilities to allow Pennsylvania fruit and vegetable producers to market Pennsylvania-fresh produce.

MIKE FISHER
Attorney General
Republican

1. Promote Pennsylvania's products, protect state farmers and the leading industry. His vision: "to take Pennsylvania to the world," and promote products and work to open new markets for the state's ag industry.
2. Government in partnership. A balance between protecting the environment and allowing people to work is key. He will make certain that state government, particularly the Department of Environmental Protection, works in partnership with farmers.
3. Lower taxes. Fisher is committed to eliminating the state's inheritance tax.
4. Farmland preservation. He was the first candidate, noted in a release, to propose a $2 fee increase on trash dumped in the state's landfills. The $50 million generated will go toward establishing a reliable funding source for the state's Growing Greener programs.

BOB CASEY
Auditor General
Democrat

1. Preserve and protect the Right To Farm.
2. Maintain integrity of laws designed to protect agriculture.
3. Make agriculture a full partner in Pennsylvania's economic future.
4. Tax fairness. Reform tax laws, not by gimmicks, but by working on "doable" taxation on cigarettes, etc.
5. Restore FFA and 4-H grant programs. Those programs are at risk under the current budget proposals. Also, Casey intends to preserve and expand the ag loan forgiveness program.
6. To educate and promote individual agricultural enterprise within the state's borders.

Outstanding Holstein Breeder for 2001 recognition went to Gus and Lisa Schwartzbeck, Union Bridge, and Frank and Barbara Covey, Federalsburg.

The Schwartzbeck's Peace and Plenty Farm has produced four futurity winners, many show winners on the state level, and maintains a breed age average (BAA) in the 105-106 range.

The Coveys, named senior outstanding breeders, began their registered Holstein operation on Harmony Farm in 1975. Since then, their program has produced more than 30 Excellent cows and 30 cows that made more than 200,000 pounds of milk in their lifetime.

John Hall, Chestertown, was honored with the 2001 Distinguished Service Award.

Hall's contributions to Maryland-area Holstein breeders include serving as futurity chairman for 20 years and as a regional extension agent since 1980. He also serves as secretary of Mid-Shore DHIA and the Kent/Queen Anne's dairy breed club.

Other highlights of the two-day convention included a keynote address by John Meyer, CEO of Holstein Association USA, a Holstein sale, and a tour of Mason Dixon Farms.

Cam Davis, Union Bridge, was named new president of the Maryland Holstein Association.

Pro Ag Members Travel To Washington

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.) — Several Pennsylvania and New York members of the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag) traveled to Washington, D.C. last week to speak to 21 conferees that make up the special Senate and House conference committee. The special committee has been appointed to iron out the differences between the Senate and House versions of the proposed farm bill.

The Pro Ag members started the day with a briefing from staff members of Congressman Don Sherwood, Congressman Tim Holden, Congressman George Gekas, and Congressman John Peterson.

During the day, the dairy farmers met with staff members from all of the conferees. In addition, New York farmers Fred Matthews, Fred LeClair, and Jim Carr had a meeting with Sen. Richard Lugar (R-Ind.). Lugar is the minority chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Arden Tewksbury, manager of Pro Ag, said, "The dairy farmers made the trip to the nation's capital in order to convey to the conferees the urgency of passing much needed, favorable dairy legislation in the new proposed farm bill."

become certified in agricultural education.

LEAP, which began one year ago, is delivered through North Carolina University, but also has courses by professors from across the nation. The program requires 24 semester hours in specific courses.

At completion of the online coursework, the person receives a teaching certificate from North Carolina, which is recognized in 49 states (with the exception of Louisiana).

Baker has been involved with agricultural education for 20 years. She earned a bachelor's degree at Penn State, a master's degree at the University of Delaware, and a doctorate at Penn State.

While enthusiastic about the Greenwood High School Agriculture Program and her students there, Baker is also very enthusiastic about supervising the first individual scheduled to complete the LEAP program, Diane Glock, during her student teaching experience.

Glock, who lives in Mifflintown, Juniata County, found that the LEAP program fitted her needs as a returning adult student. Glock plans to complete the LEAP program this summer and will be poised to accept a position teaching agriculture for the 2002-2003 school year. Glock earned a bachelor's degree in dairy science from Penn State.

Along with Glock, two other Pennsylvania students are enrolled in the LEAP program.

"What is unique about LEAP," Baker said, "is people do not have to resign their jobs to pursue certification. LEAP is adult-friendly and flexible."

Gary Moore, coordinator of graduate programs in agricultural and extension education at N.C. State, was instrumental in developing LEAP, supported by the American Distance Education Consortium and collaboration with the National FFA Organization, the National Association of Agricultural Educators, and several universities.

To apply for the LEAP program, a person must possess a baccalaureate degree in agriculture, natural resources, or a closely related field from an accredited institution in the U.S. with a 2.5 grade point average; submit a detailed essay on why he or she wants to be a teacher of agriculture; and submit three letters of recommendation regarding the applicant's character, work ethic, academic ability, and suitability to become a teacher.

More information about the LEAP program and its requirements are available online at http://www.cals.ncsu.edu/agexed/leap or by contacting Baker at (717) 527-2050.

pleted, as assessors who work for America's Clean Water Program check the farm. This aspect of the program is wrapping up a 30-farm pilot phase in Berks, Chester, and Lancaster counties.

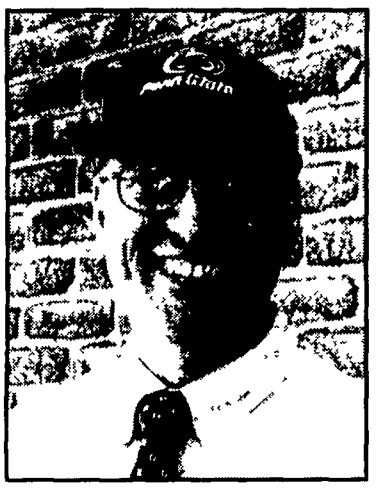
The fourth aspect, which is still under development, is continuing the participant's education. Online information may be one way to recertify PEACCE members, said Kephart.

One of the strengths of the PEACCE program is its thoroughness, he said. "With this program, you have a lot of people on the farm making sure things are done the way they should," he said.

Consequently "if you are ever called into court, this is a way that you can say, "this is what we've done,'" he said.

At the end of the meeting, Gregory Martin, capitol region poultry specialist, reminded the audience about the drought problems of the region. "It only takes a day's water loss to cause economic loss to your farm," he said. "Make sure you have an adequate supply or at least the ability to bring water in."

An outside spigot that can take water in to the home or barn may be a great help this season, according to Martin.



Ken Kephart, professor of animal science at Penn State, spoke about the PEACCE program during a poultry seminar this week.

BEDDED PACK SHELTERS

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent
— Dairy, Franklin County

There has been a renewed interest by some dairy producers in bedded pack shelters for certain groups of adult dairy cattle. This housing scheme has been embraced by a group of dairy producers in the Harrisonburg, Va. area over the past couple of years with good success.

This past November, I took a van load of dairy producers to Virginia to tour four dairies in the Harrisonburg area that have built a new bedded pack facility for all or a portion of the milking herd. We had the opportunity to see several styles of shelters and building layouts. In our travels between farms, we passed four or five other dairies that have recently built or were in the process of constructing a bedded pack shelter for milk cows. A thanks goes out to Jerry Swisher, area dairy agent, Virginia Cooperative Extension, for putting the tour together.

So, why are these dairy producers choosing this housing alternative? What we heard from everyone were the words "cow comfort" and "longevity." Dairy producers with these shelters believe cows will be more comfortable and last longer than in freestall shelters. Time will tell. Initial cost savings versus a freestall shelter was mentioned by a few. However, most have sized the building so that freestalls can easily be added later if the owner decides to do so. The shelter serves as part of the manure storage system on these farms.

Sizing is critical. Shelters are designed for 100 square feet or more of pack area per cow. Once the area per cow becomes smaller, a change in the cleanliness of the animals becomes obvious. The cleanest cows appear to be those that have access to an outside sod lot in addition to the pack shelter.

All the producers we visited were using dried shavings for bedding. The supply is adequate in the area at the present time. What the supply will be in the future is always an unknown. All producers drag the pack one or more times per day with a tilling device to mix the bedding with the manure.

Some version of a modified harrow is common. The shelters have high sidewalls like modern freestall barns which offers the opportunity for good airflow to help dry the surface of the pack. All shelters had fans to aid in cooling the cows and to help dry the surface of the pack. These fans will run in cool weather after the pack is stirred to aid in drying. The herds we visited had very acceptable somatic cell counts.

Philip E. Wagner

So, are today's bedded pack shelters an option for some dairy producers? I think so. The design and management of today's shelter is much different than 40 years ago when we started moving from packs to freestalls. The goal in a pack shelter is to keep it as clean and dry as possible, just as the goal is in freestalls. This requires plenty of bedding and having 100 square feet or more of pack area per cow. Stirring the pack is essential. This generally eliminates corn fodder and straw as a bedding source.

Know what your supply of shavings is before getting serious about this shelter. Use a barrier teat dip and be sure you are getting good coverage. Before doing anything, talk to your veterinarian about the udder health issue. Get his candid opinion on whether he thinks you can manage this system. Size the building so that freestalls can be added easily at a later time if you decide to do so. Take a look at group size and how it will match thoughput at your milking parlor.

Finally, take time and visit dairy producers who are using these systems. Then come home to think about what you saw and heard, push the pencil, and make a decision if this is a management system for you.

$22 Million In Loans Approved For Rural Pennsylvania

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced that, as part of the $22 million in loans for rural Pennsylvania, the first loan to be approved in 2002 to provide improved telecommunications service in rural America.

A $5 million loan will go to LMDS Communications, Inc., to provide enhanced telecommunication service to nearly 55 communities in western Pennsylvania and southwestern New York. A $17 million guaranteed loan has been approved for the development of the Mountain Laurel Center for Performing Arts in Pike County.

More information on USDA Rural Development can be obtained by contacting any USDA Service Center or by visiting USDA's web site at http://www.rurdev.usda.gov/

Pa. Announces 2002 Spring Custom Rates

By Scott W. Shimmin & Eric D. Stout
Agricultural Statisticians

The custom rates shown are averages from voluntary reports by custom operators and farmers throughout Pennsylvania. Most of the rates are stated per acre, cwt., ton, bale, or bushel rather than per hour to reduce the variation due to machinery size. Individual rates vary due to differences in working conditions, services performed, or even the operator's eagerness to do custom work Therefore, the average rates shown should not be considered absolute indications of fair charges.

Acreage rates are shown separately for two regions of the state, labeled "Mountain" and "Valley". The differences in rates between regions reflect differences in terrain, soils and alternative opportunities for the labor and equipment used. Figures labeled "State" represent the straight average of all reports used regardless of geographic location.

Of the 70 rates reported with year-to-year comparisons, 44 increased, 20 decreased, and 6 are the same as last year The overall average is up 9 percent from the previous year. This percentage increase was computed by adding the rates for all jobs, regardless of basis of charge, and dividing by last year's comparable total.

Teleconference Addresses Farm Bill, Dairy Market

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Producers and industry representatives tuned in to a teleconference last week to hear about the upcoming Farm Bill from Joel Rotz, dairy specialist for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and the dairy market outlook from Ken Bailey, assistant professor of agriculture economics, Penn State.

The teleconference occurs several times throughout the year and usually includes an outlook on the dairy market by Bailey and an additional guest. Extension offices across the Commonwealth host the discussions.

According to Rotz members of the House and Senate are presenting their respective versions of the Farm Bill in conference discussions. Their goal is to have the Farm Bill completed before the Easter recess.

Both the House and Senate commit to an extension of dairy price support, however differences in this price support exist.

One difference is that the Senate's program splits the country into the northeast (12 states) and the rest of the country. Producers in the northeast are eligible for a payment whenever the monthly Class I (fluid milk) price falls below $16.94 per hundredweight. Both have an eight million pound eligibility level, which translates into a farm of less than 400 cows.

Although there is a large disparity in money available between the two regions, the plan actually brings equity in the total Farm Bill, since southern and midwestern grain farmers receive substantial support under the bill.

Both bills would require countries exporting milk to the U.S. to pay checkoff fees.

Both versions also include authorization of a Johnes Disease Control Program. The program, however, is only authorized and lacks funding.

Conservation of natural resources is a priority item in the Farm Bill. "This will pump a lot of new money into the farm program to help conservation programs," said Rotz. There will now be additional support for manure storage, soil erosion, streambank fencing, stream crossings, and other similar programs. All sizes of operations are eligible.

In his summary of the dairy outlook, Bailey said that he expects to see the USDA reduce the nonfat support price by 10 cents in the near future.

Overall, in 2002, milk prices may drop by nearly $2. Butter prices are weakening as inventory is up, he said.

Also cow numbers are leveling out, which may trigger a drop in heifer replacement prices.

Workshops Focus On Milking Performance

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Wanted: Progressive dairy owners and managers seeking to increase performance in their milking center.

Dairy producers know that they need to get outstanding performance from their milking facilities. Outstanding performance demands that everyone working in the milking area knows their job and is encouraged to do it well. It also demands that the milking equipment and staff work together to create a comfortable and productive environment for cows.

Milking Center Management is an intensive, two-day workshop designed to teach dairy farm owners and managers the skills they need to get top performance from their milking facilities and cows. Managers will learn from leading experts about how to improve milking speed, limit mastitis, increase quality, and boost productivity.

The workshops will be limited in size so that participants can get maximum opportunity to interact with the experts and other managers in the audience. Instructors designed all material to be practically applied, so participants can take the knowledge and tools home and immediately use them for their own milking center management.

In addition, Milking Center Management participants will have an opportunity to stay in contact with fellow participants and instructors from the course. This unique opportunity will help participants to get continuing support and advice as they make changes at their own farm. The workshop is designed to bring about profitable change and improvement in your dairy operation.

Milking Center Management will be offered in two locations from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day:

- Tuesday, April 9 and Wednesday, April 10 at the Atherton Hotel, 125 S. Atherton St., State College.
- Thursday, April 18 and Friday, April 19 at the Holiday Inn Harrisburg/Hershey, Exit 28 off Rt. I-81, Grantville.

For more information about the short course, contact Richard Stup at (814) 652-6430 or RichStup@psu.edu. To register for the course, contact the Conference and Short Course office at (814) 865-8301, or visit our website at http://conferences.cas.psu.edu/.

This program is sponsored by Land O' Lakes, Inc., Dean Dairy Products/Wengert's Dairy, Dairylea Cooperative, Dairy Farmers of America's Northeast Council, and DeLaval.

Clinic To Help Western Pa. Residents Ensure Safe Drinking Water

BEAVER (Beaver Co.) — Pennsylvanians who rely on a private well, spring or cistern may be drinking tap water that contains some form of contamination, according to a Penn State Cooperative Extension educator.

"Between 60 and 70 percent of all private well water supplies in the state don't meet all drinking water safety standards," said Susan Boser, water quality agent. There are about one million private water supplies in Pennsylvania, mostly springs and wells fed by groundwater, and about 20,000 new wells are drilled in the state every year.

To address these problems, water specialists from Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences and the Environmental Resources Research Institute will offer a live satellite clinic, which will be down linked in Lab Classroom 121 at Penn State Beaver Campus from 7 p.m. to 8:45 p.m. March 27.

The aim is to provide rural residents with the information they need to cost-effectively maintain a safe and plentiful water supply.

"Residents who receive water from a public water company or authority can be confident that their water meets drinking water safety standards," Boser says. "But if you own your own private supply, you have sole responsibility for managing the quality and quantity of your water."

The clinic is free, but registration is required. For more information, contact the Beaver County office of Penn State Cooperative Extension at (724) 774-3003.

Bulls At Sale

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With only two weeks to go, Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes reminded beef producers of the announced 2002 Bull Performance Test and Sale being hosted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) on Friday, March 29.

The sale will begin at 11 a.m. at the Ag Arena at the University Park Campus. Sixty-eight beef bulls will go across the auction block.

"The Bull Test and Sale exemplifies the best of Pennsylvania's beef industry," Hayes said.

300 Attend Ag Preservation Seminar

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — About 300 producers and agri-industry representatives attended a free agricultural seminar on ways to preserve the family farm here Tuesday evening at the Solanco Fairgrounds.

The seminar, hosted by Beiler-Campbell Realtors and Christ Taylor, included seven speakers who addressed ag preservation by selling development rights, and spoke about easements, tax issues, and family transfers.

Speakers included Jay Clark, Esq., Blevins and Clark; Anders Alfelt, Octoraro Watershed Association; Christ Taylor; Samuel Goodley, Esq., Byler, Goodley, Winkle and Hetrick; June Mengel, Lancaster County Agricultural Preservation Program; Kevin Baer, Chester County Agricultural Preservation Program; John Goodall, Brandywine Conservancy; and Jeff Swinehart, Lancaster Farmland Trust.

About a third of those who attended were from Chester County and the remainder from Lancaster.

Baer, of the Chester program, spoke about how similar the county's preservation program was to Lancaster's, with one difference: they use a ranking system to prioritize the farms, he said. That system gives a certain ranking percentage to class soils, development pressure, farmland potential, and resource cluster.

Both Lancaster and Chester county representatives explained how to preserve the farm. The preservation boards of the counties provide actual money compensation when the development rights are sold.

Lancaster's program, according to June Mengel, includes more than 500 farms on 48,000 acres already preserved. State funding comes from cigarette taxes and Growing Greener legislation, mostly from landfill tipping fees and other sources. The county program has preserved 70 farms the past year alone, more than triple the rate of a few years ago, because of increased funding.

To be considered for preservation, farms must petition their township to set up an Ag Security Area. The farm must be at least 10 acres in size and zoned agriculture.

According to Baer, there are various ways to accept the payoff once preservation has been approved. The price makes up the difference between the market value and the ag value of the land.

Lancaster County Holstein Club Visits High-Type Herds

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

RICHLAND (Lebanon Co.) — About 20 Holstein breeders from Lancaster County took a trip to several top herds in southeast Lebanon and northeast Lancaster counties March 7.

"We wanted (the group) to see high-type cows," said Mark Welk, coordinator of the tour for the Lancaster County Holstein Club.

First stop was the 58-cow milking herd of Adam and Lisa Sonnen in Lebanon County.

Married in 1994, the Sonnens have been building on the breeding program first started by Adam's grandmother, Ruth Sonnen, in the 1940s and continued by his father, Malcom Sonnen, in the 1970s.

Adam said he began to get involved in the breeding program as an early teenager and went on to become an A.I. technician.

Sound, long-lasting cows with high type are a priority at the Sonnens.

"We believe in longevity, not maximum production," Lisa said.

Two-year-old milking animals are not expected to break any production records on the Sonnen farm, according to Lisa. However, they must have the traits of a cow who will produce over the long haul.

One example of that philosophy is "Adora," a Sonnen cow that produced 14,000 pounds of milk as a 2-year old and went on to make 41,000 pounds in a later lactation.

The Sonnens favor Canadian genetics, with about 50 percent of the herd traceable to Browndale sires. Other influential bulls include Astrojet and Hanoverhill Jethro. Semen is kept on the farm.

Eight of the Sonnen cows are classified Excellent and a number of them Very Good.

About 150 Holsteins, including replacements, are kept on the farm. Last year, about 25 females were sold for breeding.

The herd of Kirby and Sheryl Horst, Newmanstown, was next on the tour.

Using sires from both the U.S. and Canada, the Horsts have developed a herd that boasts the 2001 Lebanon County high breed age average (BAA) rating at 110.7.

Visiting Cocalico Holsteins, home to the 50-cow herd of Paul Zimmerman, Ephrata, was a fitting climax for the tour.

With 30 excellent cows and a BAA of 112.2 — highest in the state — Zimmerman's herd topped off what Welk called a successful day.

"Everyone had a great time," he said.

Stokes Takes Helm At National Cattlemen's

DENVER, Colo. — Terry L. Stokes has been named Chief Executive Officer of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) effective immediately. Stokes, 47, is currently the organization's executive vice president and chief financial officer, and has served as interim CEO since the departure of Chuck Schroeder last month.

According to NCBA President Wythe Willey, the organization will not miss a step with Stokes at the helm. "I've had the opportunity to work with Terry and he is an extremely capable, talented and motivated individual," Willey said. "I am confident he will provide valuable leadership to our organization." Willey said Stokes will oversee the NCBA staff and help manage the day-to-day operations of the leading organization representing America's cattle farmers and ranchers.

John Lacey, chairman of the search committee and a beef producer from California, said the search was done quickly, but carefully and thoroughly. 'We received about 40 applications for the position, and each of our committee members reviewed each resume," Lacey said. 'The seven finalists we eventually brought in for interviews were each exceptional, but in the end we recommended Terry as the most qualified for the position."

"I'm honored and humbled to be given this opportunity," Stokes said. "The beef industry has been a key part of my life — and part of the lives of my entire family — for more than half a century."

Stokes joined NCBA as chief financial officer in 1996, and added the assignment of executive vice president in 1999. Before joining NCBA he was the Executive Vice President and CFO for the Texas Beef Council, where he had worked for three years.

A native Texan, Stokes' career spans all segments of the cattle and beef industry, including cow/calf, feeding and packing. He currently partners with his brother-in-law in a small stocker operation in Southern Texas.

A graduate of Angelo State University with a degree in animal agriculture, Stokes also has an MBA with emphasis in operations management and managerial accounting from the University of Texas - Austin. He and his wife, Beverley, reside in Denver. They have two children, Whitney, 19, a freshman at Oklahoma Baptist University, and Ryan, 16, a high school sophomore.

Proceeds benefit the Northwestern Pennsylvania Lamb And Wool Growers Association.

Guide Available About Impact On U. S. Of Non-Native Pests

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST) recently released a scientific paper that provides policymakers and others with a nine-step guide to curtail the impact of non-native pests, including diseases, insects, and animals.

CAST is also introducing a new Web-based directory of visuals to assist in the identification of these pests that are the source of an estimated $137 billion annual economic burden to the U.S. and are the second leading cause of species endangerment.

The complete paper and the resource listing of invasive species visuals are available at http://www.cast-science.org/ along with CAST's many other scientific works.

Pa. Farmers To Go To Washington

CAMP HILL (Dauphin Co.) — About 200 farmers from across Pennsylvania will be traveling to Washington, D.C. to meet with their congressmen and U.S. senators on important legislation affecting agriculture.

A new farm bill and authority to negotiate better trade deals for U.S. agriculture will be among the top issues on the agenda for discussion during the National Legislative Conference, March 20-21, being conducted by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB). Farmers taking part in the Washington Tour are members of county farm bureau national legislative committees.

"There are some big issues for farmers currently being decided in Washington," said PFB President Guy Donaldson. "Farm Bureau has developed grass-roots based policy on how best to handle these issues. Our members will be meeting face-to-face with their representatives and senators to explain our concerns and make recommendations."

Several farm issues to be discussed during the Washington Tour are:

• Farm Bill — A conference committee has been named to iron out differences in House- and Senate-approved versions of a new farm bill. The farm bill will determine how farm programs, such as commodity support payments, conservation, agricultural research and export promotion, will operate over the next several years.

• Renewable Fuel Standard — Farm Bureau supports inclusion of a renewable fuel standard in national energy policy which will require use of five billion gallons of renewable fuels such as ethanol and soybean-based biofuel in the U.S. by the year 2012.

• Trade Promotion Authority — Farm Bureau is seeking congressional approval of Trade Promotion Authority so the President can negotiate new and better trade deals. Trade Promotion Authority will allow the administration to correct trade imbalances that hurt farmer income.

• Death Taxes — Congress enacted Farm Bureau-supported legislation last year which increases exemptions and reduces rates for the federal estate tax. The tax would be completely eliminated in 2010. However, due to budget reconciliation requirements, the repeal of the so-called "death tax" will sunset in 2011. Farm Bureau is supporting H.R. 2316 and H.R. 2631 to make repeal of the death tax permanent.

• Tax Relief — Farm Bureau supports S. 312 and H.R. 2347, the Tax Empowerment and Relief for Farmers and Fishermen bill, which would allow farmers to set up "rainy day" savings accounts for use when farm income is low. The bills also provide for tax deductions for food donations and ensure that farmers are not unfairly taxed on rental income and are not disqualified from using income averaging due to the Alternative Minimum Tax.

Critical Issues Center Of Farm Bureau Forums

MICHELLE KUNJAPPU
Lancaster Farming Staff

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Topics important to the agriculture business were on the agenda at recent forums conducted by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

The agenda of the two meetings was developed out of a top 10 list of concerns formulated by the state commodity committee, which is comprised of producers from many aspects of agriculture.

Ethanol was on the slate for two of the speakers.

Ed Stahl, project director, Garden State Ethanol, believes that the fuel source will become increasingly important as it addresses energy security, environmental, and economic issues.

The U.S. has 54 operating ethanol plants with five under construction. Potato, beer, and cheese whey waste are some of the options used by plants outside of the corn belt, where most of the plants are located.

Consequently, putting a plant in New Jersey is "a little out of the box" said Stahl. However close markets for the carbon dioxide and dry distiller's grain and energy demands make the effort worthwhile.

The fuel is more environmentally friendly because, although carbon dioxide is released as it burns, as in traditional fossil fuels, the carbon dioxide comes from crops and will be reabsorbed by crops. This does not release "new" carbon dioxide formerly trapped beneath the earth's surface as a fossil fuel.

The fermenting process yields carbon dioxide and dry distiller's grain. The carbon dioxide can be used for beverages or dry ice production for a revenue source of $15 per ton. The distiller's dry grain is a beef and dairy food source.

Producers have an interest in the program because "any program that encourages use of land in fact becomes a farmer preservation program," he said.

One bushel of corn yields $4 worth of ethanol, $1 worth of dry distillers grain, and 9 cents worth of carbon dioxide.

The location of the anticipated plant will be in south Jersey, just across the Delaware Memorial Bridge. Stahl estimates that it will be under construction at the end of 2002 and operating by the end of 2003.

Pennsylvania Plant

Scott Welsh, agriculture economic development specialist, York County Economic Development Corporation, gave an update on the proposed plant in southcentral Pennsylvania. Although the idea originated in York County, "We're looking at it on a regional basis," he said.

A consulting firm from Colorado has completed a feasibility study. After inspecting nine potential sites in several counties and determining grain availability, road and rail access, market proximity, labor, and even prevailing winds to mitigate the odor, the business rated four sites as excellent prospects and five as good.

Assuming that 25 percent of corn production in a region would go into ethanol production, 19-35 million gallons of ethanol a year could be produced, said Welsh.

With the feasibility study complete, the next step is to focus on business organization and site selection. Organizers must also decide about the percentage of local and important grain to be used.

Welsh predicts groundbreaking to take place 1-1½ years in the future. "We feel there is merit in moving forward" with the project, said Welsh.

Consolidation

Ron Gaskill, director of regulatory relations for the American Farm Bureau, discussed market consolidation.

"What I want to do is encourage everybody to take a broader view about what is happening," he said. "It is important to understand why consolidation is taking place."

Shrinking margins on the food retailer's end have forced them to become increasingly streamlined. "It starts with the consumer," he said, as they demand better quality, better service, and more convenience, yet expect to pay less.

"From that point it works its way down the food manufacturing process," he said. Retailers are starting to requires suppliers to manage their own inventory, for instance. A retailer that is contracting with a preferred supplier will give the supplier a space in the warehouse, then put the responsibility of managing inventory on the supplier.

Another change in the food industry is the growth of supercenters that offer a wide variety of merchandise and food. That type of store has grown to $123 billion in 2002 in the food market industry. In addition "club," or membership stores, have also increased and have influenced the retail business.

"Food systems will become increasingly concentrated in the next decade. That's why packers are buying each other up," he said. Packers must provide the demands of the concentrated, large retailers.

"I leave you with an understanding that this issue is not going away. Market forces by themselves will not resolve it,' he said. "Maybe it's time to revisit some of the collective marketing and bargaining mechanisms or look at alternative agriculture."

Terrorism And Ag

Marel Raub, director of regulatory affairs for the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, discussed bioterrorism and agriculture. "It doesn't always mean what you think initially — we have a lot of homegrown terrorists that we need to be aware of," said Raub.

Three types of terrorist include animal rights groups, anti-biotech groups, and political terrorists.

Animal rights groups have several methods of advancing their agenda. On technique includes protests where they may dress in costumes. They also may hand out literature or conduct "rescues" of animals from research labs or farms. Additionally they may use vandalism, arson, or disease.

Funds come from individual contributors, foundation grants, or other like-minded organizations. The Website www.activistcash.com tracks the funding sources of some of these groups.

By educating themselves, and the community (activist groups target young people), producers can combat these groups.

Do not confront these groups, as they want publicity and are looking to make a scene, Raub said.

"Leave it up to commodity promotional organizations" to answer the accusations and put out the truth. She also warned producers to be vigilant about their own property and carefully screen those asking for a facility tour.

Anti-biotech terrorists are very similar in agenda, funding, and propaganda methods to the animal rights groups. Their goal is to decrease consumption of biotech crops and hinder the research of new crops.

Political terrorists intending to harm the U.S. are working to inflect fear and cause economic damage. Since agriculture is a great economic force in the U.S., spreading biological diseases and destroying the food supply are tools used.

Raub warned that theft of agricultural material and equipment may be dangerous. Bombs, for example, can be constructed with chemicals used by farmers, and crop dusters may also be used to introduce pests or other pathogens.

Become involved in Emergency Management Planning, said Raub.

During the afternoon session Bill Foose, USDA, spoke about the basics of the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). Scott Klinger, biologist for the Pennsylvania Game Commission, also addressed the program.

The Farm Bureau conducted the seminars in Indiana and Grantville on Wednesday and Thursday.

Annual Egg Production Up 5 Percent From Previous Year

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Annual egg production in Pennsylvania for the year ending Nov. 30, 2001 was 6.61 billion eggs, five percent more than the 6.31 billion produced in 2000, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

There was an average of 24.4 million layers in Pennsylvania laying flocks during the 12-month period, five percent more than the 23.3 million the previous year. Average annual production per layer was 271 eggs, unchanged from the previous year.

All chicken inventory (excluding commercial broilers) as of Dec. 1, 2001 totaled 29.3 million, down four percent from the 30.6 million one year earlier. Pennsylvania ranked fourth in chicken inventory on Dec. 1, 2001. Pennsylvania ranked fourth in layers on hand December 1.

Only Iowa, with 34.6 million, Ohio, with 30.3 million, and California, with 23.8 million, were the only states outranking Pennsylvania in layers.

Commonwealth flocks included 23.7 million layers 20 weeks old and older, down two percent from last year; 5.6 million pullets less than 20 weeks old, down 12 percent; and 78,000 other chickens, down eight percent from the inventory on Dec. 1, 2000.

The average value per bird on hand Dec. 1, 2001 was $1.60. Total value of all flocks in Pennsylvania on Dec. 1, 2001 was estimated at 46.9 million dollars, down four percent from the 49.0 million dollars in 2000.

Nationally, egg production during the year ending Nov. 30, 2001 totaled a record high 85.6 billion eggs, up one percent from the previous year. Layer numbers averaged 335 million, up two percent from 2000. The annual average production per layer on hand in 2000 was 256 eggs, down slightly from the 2000 average of 257.

The inventory of all chickens in the U.S. (excluding commercial broilers) totaled 441 million on Dec. 1, 2001, up one percent from last year. Hens and pullets of laying age plus pullets over 13 weeks old but not of laying age on hand totaled 381 million, up three percent from Dec. 1, 2000.

The average value of chickens in the nation's flocks on Dec. 1 was $2.42, down two cents from 2000. Total value of the nation's flocks was estimated at 1.07 billion dollars, up one percent from a year ago.

Hereford Breeders Anticipate Summer Conference

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The American Hereford Association (AHA) members and the Oklahoma State University (OSU) animal and meat sciences departments are gearing up for the 2002 Breed Directions Summit, June 20-22 in Stillwater, Okla.

Hereford breeders from around the globe and beef industry experts will convene at the Payne County Expo Center and OSU for three days filled with speakers and entertainment.

Glen Dolezal, Excel Corporation, and John Tucker, North Platte Feeders, will use live cattle for attendees to gain knowledge on determining value characteristics in Herefords and to discuss the type of cattle being selected for the feedlot. In addition, Dr. Tom Field, Colorado State University and Dr. Dan Moser, Kansas State University, will address past and present Hereford breed trends, while focusing on the progress made and areas seeking improvement for the breed to maintain its status in the industry.

Craig Huffhines, AHA executive vice-president, says the timing of a conference of this caliber is perfect as the demand curve is changing. The Breed Direction Summit will launch the Hereford breed into a higher level of excellence in performance and will also motivate the breeders to enhance their operations and become full service genetic suppliers.

A session led by Dr. Brad Morgan, OSU, will be devoted to carcass value, product enhancement and new beef marketing specifications. Participants will also have the opportunity to partake in sessions directed at understanding EPDs and AHAs new whole herd Total Performance Records (TPR) program more clearly.

Wrapping up the conference, seedstock and commercial panels will discuss the responsibilities of a seedstock breeder and what is expected of them from the commercial industry. In conjunction with the commercial panel, a live evaluation of individual cattle will take place, demonstrating what the commercial sector is demanding from Hereford seedstock producers.

Lee Pitts, renowned western columnist and speaker will highlight the evening festivities on June 20.

Participant cost is $100 and spouse registration is $50 including four meals. For more information or to register, contact the AHA or log on to www.hereford.org.

Lowes Launches CHB Campaign

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Lowes Foods, Winston-Salem, N.C., has teamed up with Certified Hereford Beef LLC (CHB) to undertake the largest retail marketing campaign in the history of Hereford beef.

The launch includes print advertisements, complete in-store signage and the Beef Made Easy labeling program. Lowes is the first CHB account in the state and has 86 participating supermarkets.

"Thanks to Lowes, the demand for program eligible Hereford and baldy steers has increased by 1,000 head per week," said Rob Ames, AHA director of product marketing.

CHB will be a full-case branded beef program for Lowes, replacing its commodity Choice beef offering and packer brand Angus beef program sold in some service-case stores.

N.Y. Legislation To Propose Ag Venture Capital Program

ALBANY, N.Y. — Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson) is planning to introduce a bill to create the AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program which would allow the State Comptroller to invest public retirement funds in new and existing agribusinesses.

"The agriculture industry, just like the high tech sector, is in need of the investment capital that this Program would provide," Magee said. "There is no doubt that with an infusion of equity farms, farmers and agribusinesses across the state will begin to grow in profitability and numbers."

The AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program is patterned after a similar program enacted in 1999 which allowed the Comptroller to invest the assets of the Common Retirement Fund in privately owned businesses but is not specific to the unique needs of agriculture and perhaps has the tendency to focus more on telecommunications and high tech companies.

"Too often, agriculture is not looked at as a means to improve the state's economy, but the fact is that when you talk about the Upstate economy you have to talk about agriculture," Magee commented. "The creation of an AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program clearly shines the light on the need for equity investments in farming and agriculture."

Initially, the bill would allow the Comptroller to invest up to $25 million in assets of the state's over $100 billion Common Retirement Fund to be matched equitably by private dollars creating an investment infusion of up to $50 million into the agriculture industry of New York State.

Among his other goals this session, Magee is pushing an agriculture agenda that provides a whole package of services for farmers, food processors, agrimarketing associations and consumers. This includes the creation of the state's first AgriDevelopment Zones; a new focus on agricultural education in schools that would entice young people to enter farming as a career; as well as the continued push on marketing "locally grown, locally known" New York agricultural products.

Jean and Robert Berkheimer, were honored as one of the oldest dairy couples still farming in Cumberland County. Also shown is LeAnn Witmer, Newburg. and Brandon Weary, president of the Cumberland County Cooperative Extension Association. The cooperative extension recently conducted their annual meeting at Penn Township Firehall where the presentation took place. The Berkheimers have operated a dairy farm with their son since 1970 and are currently milking over 160 cows in Monroe Township.

Draft Horse Sale History Made At Harrisburg

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The annual Pennsylvania Draft Horse Sale was conducted in conjunction with the Keystone Haflinger Sale Feb. 13 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Consignments came from nine different states including Pennsylvania, Ohio, Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, Indiana, and Virginia. The buyer list included 19 different states: Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, New York, New Jersey, Florida, Ohio, Indiana, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, Georgia, Illinois, North Carolina, Maine and West Virginia. Forty head of draft horses and 22 Haflingers found new homes in Lancaster County.

Sale averages were up in every category with the exception of Percheron stallions. This category was down $199 after having posted a $632 gain in the 2001 sale. Belgian mares averaged $2,069, up $77; Belgian stallions averaged $2,229, up $1,210. Percheron mares averaged $2,435, up $418; and all geldings averaged $2,165 up, $332. The overall average for the draft horses was $2,086 up $301.

The top seller in the Draft Horses was a 3-year-old Belgian stallion selling for $9,200. The top gelding was a 4-year-old Belgian at $6,300. Two Belgian mares, a yearling and a 3-year-old, along with a 4-year-old Percheron mare tied for highest selling mares at $4,200. While the top mare at the 2001 sale was much higher, ($8,200) it is significant to note that the mare average was higher this year than last. Eighteen head of draft horses sold for $3,500 or more.

The overall average of the Haflinger sale was $2,112. Mares averaged $2,442; stallions $2,342; and geldings $1,623. The top gelding was $6,700; the top stallion was $5,200; and the top mare sold for $8,700.

Sale organizers have announced that the 2003 event is scheduled for Jan. 21-23.

Following is a list of the top horses, buyers and sellers:

Sale topper at $9,200: Market Ways Master Duke, 3-year-old Belgian stallion, consigned by Amos Beiler Jr., Gap, to Dale K. Stoltzfus, Leola.

A pair of Belgian full brothers, 3- and 4-year-olds, from Jacob Swarey, Allensville, to Tim Kriz, Bethany, Conn., $4,000 each.

Chuck, 2-year-old Belgian gelding from Dale K. Stoltzfus to Cole Steinbrick, Marblehead, Ohio, at $6,000.

Mike, 4-year-old top of the gelding from Maynard Troyer, Topeka, Ind., to Ken Sandoe, Myerstown, for $6,300.

Johnhart's Misty Lynn, 4-year-old Percheron mare from Russell Johnston and Luann Barnhart, Blairsville, to Aden Miller, Dover, Del., at $4,200.

Raber's Penny, 3-year-old Belgian mare from Amos Beiler Jr., Gap, to Elmer Kauffman, Christiana, for $3,600.

Orndorff's Captain Rosa, yearling Belgian filly from Corbly Orndorff, Waynesburg, to Roy A. Miller, Stevens, for $4,200.

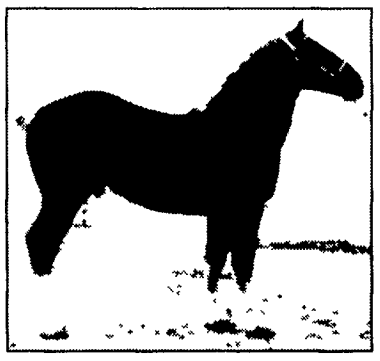
Phinny's Irish Spring, 6-year-old Percheron mare from Joseph Glick, Ephrata, to John David Martin, Selinsgrove, $3,600.

Destinydale's Rose, 5-year-old from David Peachey, Millcreek, to David K. King, Paradise, $3,600.

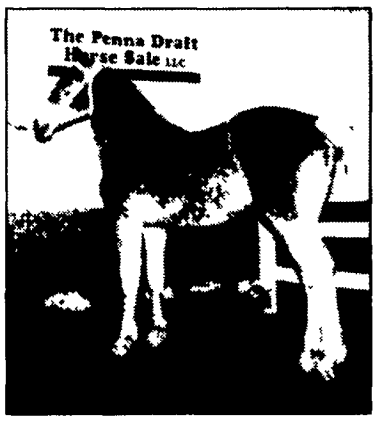
Market Ways Roseann, 3-year-old from Amos Beiler Jr. to Aaron R. Stoltzfoos, Gap, $4,200.

Market Ways Kim, 3-year-old from Amos Beiler Jr. to David Hoffman, Flanders, N.J., $3,600.

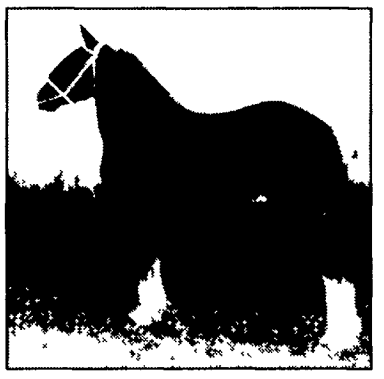
Market Ways Bonnie, 4-year-old from Amos Beiler Jr. to Mark and Terri Houliston, Berryville, Va., $3,500.



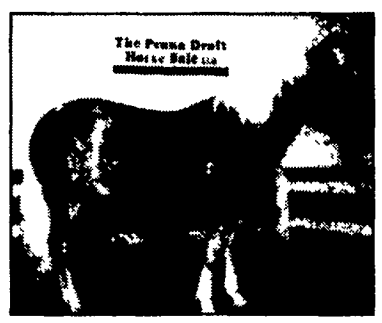
Top seller at Pennsylvania Draft Horse Sale: Belgian stallion, Market Ways Master Duke; owned by Amos F. Beiler Jr., Gap; sold to Dale K. Stoltzfus, Leola, for $9,200.



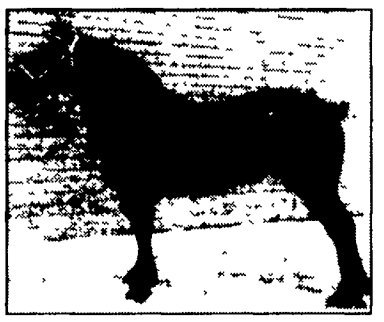
Yearling Belgian filly, Orndorff's Captain Rosa, from Corbly L. Orndorff, Waynesburg; sold to Roy A. Miller, Stevens, for $4,200.



Pa. Draft Horse Sale: Mike, Belgian gelding from Maynard Troyer, Topeka, Ind., sold to Kenneth Sandoe, Myerstown, for $6,300.



Haflinger gelding, Alert Lee Rah, purchased by Barbara Ann Uhlig, Medford, N.J., for $6,700.



Pa. Draft Horse Sale: Percheron mare, Johnhart's Misty Lynn, 283545; from Russell R. Johnston and Luann Barnhart, Blairsville; sold to Aden Miller, Dover, Del., for $4,200.

Top selling Haflinger mare, Baruna GF, purchased by Ridgeview Haflingers, Loysville, for $8,700.

Videos Available From Dairy Stakeholders

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Need an opener or program for that upcoming 4-H, FFA, Young Farmer or service club meeting? Two informative videos on the dairy industry are currently available through the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders that may help you fill your program needs.

Pennsylvania farm business owners are not alone in their quest to become better producers. That is the message sent by the video "Make It Work in Pennsylvania" to dairy producers across the state. This 13 minute presentation exhibits the many services available to aid Pennsylvania farmers in their success. The video showcases successful dairy farm businesses and the management systems they are utilizing. Several industry professionals make appearances to present tips on how to focus on what is important in making a dairy farm business more profitable and enjoyable.

Part of making the Pennsylvania dairy industry stronger is changing how the state's non-farm population looks at the business of producing milk.

"Milk: It Does an Economy Good!" shows what a successful dairy farm business can do economically and socially for its surrounding community. Farming does not look the same as it did twenty years ago, and it does not work the same either. This 10 minute video shows how dairy farm businesses, as they have continued to develop, are having an even greater positive impact on various factors of community development.

Both videos make excellent presentation pieces for group meetings. To obtain a free copy of either of these videos, contact Michelle Jaymes-Parks at (717) 948-6609 or mmj113@psu.edu.

Animal Agriculture Professionals To Meet In Chicago March 24-28

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — "Animal Agriculture — Dealing With New Realities" is the theme for the 2002 annual meeting of the National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA). Considerable attention will be devoted to food and agricultural security, bioterrorism, animal health safeguarding and emerging diseases.

Scheduled for March 24-28, at the Palmer House Hilton in downtown Chicago, Ill., this gathering will include producers, veterinarians, business executives, scientists, academicians, state and federal regulatory officials and other stakeholders in the animal food and fiber industry.

Among the speakers invited to appear at the opening general session is Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. Among confirmed keynote speakers is Dr. Paul Kitching, director of the National Centre for Foreign Animal Disease in Winnepeg, Manitoba. Dr. Kitching, recognized globally for his expertise in foot-and-mouth disease (FMD), will speak on FMD, Hog Cholera and BSE — Lessons Learned from the U.K. Experience.

NIAA committees will present 15 information-packed seminars addressing the breadth of issues affecting animal agriculture today. Other groups that will meet in conjunction with the NIAA annual meeting are the National Assembly of Chief Animal Health Officials, National Johne's Working Group and the National Animal Health Emergency Management Steering Committee.

More information on the 2002 NIAA annual meeting can be found on the Internet at www.animalagriculture.org, or by calling (270) 782-9798.

Va. Association Sale Upcoming

HARRISONBURG, Va. — The first six Hereford bulls certified as Virginia's Finest by the Virginia Hereford Association (VHA) and Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services (VDACS) have been consigned to the Hereford Association's annual sale on April 19, during the Virginia Beef Expo in Harrisonburg, Va.

The Virginia's Finest Trademark Program identifies and promotes outstanding Virginia agricultural products that consistently meet the high quality standards proposed by industry and approved by the Department.

Six of the twenty bulls that started the performance tests in August 2001 met the qualifications for Virginia's Finest certification and sale criteria. During the testing period each bull was monitored for rate of gain and underwent ultrasound tests for intramuscular fat, backfat and ribeye size.

Livestock Marketing Specialists from VDACS evaluated and scored each bull for muscling, structural soundness and overall quality.

"Our goal is to make the Hereford cattle industry more profitable in Virginia. We expect many of these bulls to end up in black herds, where the Hereford breed has a tremendous amount to offer in hybrid vigor," said Sid Rogers, Chairman of the VHA Bull Development Program.

The sale will take place on April 19, 2002 at 3:30 p.m. at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds in Harrisonburg, Virginia. For additional information, contact the Virginia Hereford Association at (540) 347-6663.

Organic Mulches May Boost Transition From Plowed Land To No-Till

WOOSTER, Ohio — Farmers looking to convert their plowed land to no-till may be able to control disease pressure and improve soil fertility by spreading organic mulches such as animal manures and composts.

Ohio State University researchers have found that adding organic mulches helped to decrease the time it took to convert from plow-till to no-till, with the benefits of the mulches showing up within the first year of application.

"It usually takes a few years, two to five, to successfully convert plow-till to no-till, especially with clay soils, because there are more insect and disease problems," said Warren Dick, a soil science researcher with the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center (OARDC). "We found that the organic amendments helped to stimulate the microbes in the soil to counteract disease organisms and reduce their expression in the field."

Dick said that adding manures to fields to improve soil fertility is common, but using high rates of manures (or composts) to aid in the transition of plow-till to no-till is a relatively new idea. Dick will discuss how the impact of various mulches can jump start no-till practices at the Conservation Tillage and Technology Conference, Feb. 25-26 in Ada, Ohio.

Over 50 speakers from land-grant universities, the farming sector and agricultural industries and organizations will be speaking at the two-day conference. The program will cover a wide range of topics including agriculture-related panel discussions, strip till research, weed and pest management, soil fertility, GMO crops, value-added farming, crop consulting, soil and water quality issues, precision agriculture and producer programs.

"The organic mulches provide a slow release of nutrients, like nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium that tends to match the requirements of the crops throughout the growing season," said Dick. "In our studies, we found that we didn't have the yield depressions that you normally see when planting into clay soils that had been tilled but now are being converted to no-till."

He recommends a one-time high rate mulch application of about 15-to 20 dry tons per acre and then an annual three-to five dry ton per acre application for as long as the farmer is able to apply the organic amendments. "Depending on the location of the farm, organic mulches, like animal manures and yard trimmings, are easy to come by and are cheap," said Dick. "If farmers do use organic mulches, we recommend they add the mulch in the fall to give the decomposition process time to get started."

Sixty-percent of corn and 24 percent of soybeans in Ohio are grown on no-till land. In 2000, crops were grown on over 50 million acres of no-till land throughout the country. Part of the Ohio State study was conducted at OARDC, where researchers have been managing no-till for 40 years, the longest continuously maintained no-till test plots in the world.

Registration after Feb. 11 is $30 a day or $40 for both days. For a copy of the agenda, registration information, or directions to Ohio Northern University, contact the Hancock County Ohio State Extension office at (419) 422-3851 or the Allen County Soil and Water Conservation District at (419) 223-0040.

Tee Times Golf Outing Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The Penn State Department of Dairy and Animal Science invites you to enjoy a day of golf and fellowship at their second annual "Tee Times for Tuition" golf outing. This year's event is scheduled for Tuesday, June 18, at the Penn State Blue Course along Route 26 in State College.

Individual sponsorships start with a $100 fee, which covers the participants' greens fees, cart, continental breakfast, and barbeque dinner. Various levels of sponsorship are available beyond the individual level, from the $250 "event sponsor" to the "outing sponsor," which offers incentives based on each $1,000 donated.

The primary goal is to raise money to fund student scholarships. The department's scholarship honors represent 14.3 percent of the total tuition expense for the 70 students receiving awards.

There is no rain date for the event. Preregistration is necessary. Visit http:// www. das.psu.edu for more information on registering for "Tee Times for Tuition." If you do not have web access or if you have any questions concerning the outing, contact Sylvia Way at (814) 865-1362 or sway @ psu.edu.

N.Y. Legislation To Propose Ag Venture Capital Program

ALBANY, N.Y. — Assembly Agriculture Committee Chair Bill Magee (D-Nelson) is planning to introduce a bill to create the AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program which would allow the State Comptroller to invest public retirement funds in new and existing agribusinesses.

"The agriculture industry, just like the high tech sector, is in need of the investment capital that this Program would provide," Magee said. "There is no doubt that with an infusion of equity farms, farmers and agribusinesses across the state will begin to grow in profitability and numbers."

The AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program is patterned after a similar program enacted in 1999 which allowed the Comptroller to invest the assets of the Common Retirement Fund in privately owned businesses but is not specific to the unique needs of agriculture and perhaps has the tendency to focus more on telecommunications and high tech companies.

"Too often, agriculture is not looked at as a means to improve the state's economy, but the fact is that when you talk about the Upstate economy you have to talk about agriculture," Magee commented. "The creation of an AgriDevelopment Venture Capital Program clearly shines the light on the need for equity investments in farming and agriculture."

Initially, the bill would allow the Comptroller to invest up to $25 million in assets of the state's over $100 billion Common Retirement Fund to be matched equitably by private dollars creating an investment infusion of up to $50 million into the agriculture industry of New York State.

Among his other goals this session, Magee is pushing an agriculture agenda that provides a whole package of services for farmers, food processors, agri-marketing associations and consumers. This includes the creation of the state's first AgriDevelopment Zones; a new focus on agricultural education in schools that would entice young people to enter farming as a career; as well as the continued push on marketing "locally grown, locally known" New York agricultural products.

NFU Urges Caution On Cattle Imports

FT. COLLINS, Colo. — National Farmers Union (NFU) has urged the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (USDA-APHIS) to use extreme caution when importing foreign cattle into the U.S.

"Wide-scale importation of foreign animals, such as commercial feeder cattle from Australia, is a bad idea," said Rocky Mountain Farmers Union President John Stencel, who testified at the APHIS public meeting in Fort Collins, Colo., on behalf of NFU. "It jeopardizes the safety of our U.S. beef supply, the health of domestic livestock and the livelihood of U.S. livestock producers."

Stencel, who represents producers from Colorado, Mexico and Wyoming, said producers are concerned about the safety of their herds and are apprehensive about USDA's ability to protect them.

"Now is not the time to take shortcuts on health and safety protocols for imported cattle," he said. "In the wake of global reports of livestock disease outbreaks, both livestock producers and consumers are experiencing a high level of anxiety."

Stencel pointed out that USDA's Office of Inspector General (OIG) acknowledged last July that more stringent controls were needed to ensure the U.S. was not accepting meat products from countries with foot and mouth disease. The OIG also revealed that hundreds of thousands of pounds of prohibited meats were discovered in USDA-inspected warehouses.

Stringent testing and import regulations for live cattle are critical to protecting the nation's livestock populations, Stencel said. But he also stressed that "absence of evidence is not evidence of absence" when it comes to livestock diseases.

NFU suggested that, at the very minimum, mandatory country-of-origin labeling for meat products should be enacted to better inform consumers and to potentially trace sources of contaminated products back to the country in which it was produced.

"Another significant and threatening disease that should not be overlooked is the 'disease' of market-depressing prices to the livestock industry," Stencel said. "The importation of cattle threatens the economic health of the cattle sector, as well as the entire livestock industry."

Lancaster Growers Hear Crop, Soil Updates

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — When it comes to life in the soil, "more is better," according to Soil Agent Mark Goodson.

Goodson was one of a group of agents who updated growers on a variety of topics at the Lancaster County Crops and Soils Day here Thursday.

He gave an overview of the vast array of organisms in healthy soil, including earthworms, nematodes, numerous species of mites and insects, hundreds of fungi, and thousands of species of bacteria and other microorganisms.

"Think of your soil as an ecosystem," Goodson said.

The top six inches on an acre of healthy soil can have as many as 15,000 pounds of fungus biomass, according to Goodson.

Much of that fungus is crucial to plant growth by intertwining with the roots of crops and drawing nutrients and minerals from the surrounding soil to help feed the plant.

Earthworms, insects, and other microrganisms also play important roles in maintaining a healthy soil for crop production.

The amount of life in the soil can be gauged from the organic matter percentage given on soil test results. Growers should pay attention to that percentage, Goodson said. Healthy levels of organic matter help anchor and supply air and water for roots, furnish nutrients, and release water with low levels of nutrients.

"There's a lot going on in that number in your soil test," he said.

Adding organic matter in the form of manure or compost to fields and avoiding repeated applications of pesticides toxic to soil organisms are two practices that encourage soil life. Integrated pest management (IPM) is an important part of maintaining the soil ecosystem, Goodson said.

Lime applications can also increase microbial activity, he pointed out.

Other topics throughout the day included soil compaction, the phosphorus index, soybean production research, corn stand uniformity, and an update on the latest invaders of soybeans.

Pest Management Agent Del Voight noted two soybeans pests that growers should be on the alert for this growing season.

The bean leaf beetle tends to become a problem after mild winters such as this one, he said.

Topics included the latest invaders of soybeans, bean leaf beetles and soybean aphids; the life and ecosystems found in soil; soil compaction; and the phosphorus index.

Produce Auctions To Open In Coming Weeks

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — It's produce auction time!

Produce auction market season gets under way in the next several weeks. Many are opening in time for bedding plant and materials sales and flower sales in time for Easter.

Following are several auctions and their start-up dates and times:

• Weaverland Produce Auction, New Holland. Begins March 21 and continues every Tuesday and Thursday. For sale: mostly flowers, some produce, local and shipped.

• Kutztown Produce, Fleetwood. Begins March 19 with flowers. The first big nursery sale is Thursday, March 21, from 4 p.m.-6 p.m., and Tuesday and Thursday at 10 a.m. thereafter. Saturday features, as usual, hay and straw.

• Lebanon Produce, Reistville. Start-up date is April 17, with flowers, mainly. Auction continues on Tuesdays. Saturday, April 13, begins with a large nursery stock sale, 10 a.m., with 12-15 consignors. A craft sale is under one roof.

• Leola Produce Auction, Leola. Start-up date is Tuesday, March 19, at 9:30 a.m., and continuing every Tuesday and Thursday at 9:30 a.m.

• Snyder's Produce Auction, Port Trevorton. Opened March 8, continues Fridays at 10:30 a.m., and will go to Monday later on. Easter sale is March 22 at 10:30 a.m. with flowers, and occasionally poultry.

• Windmill Produce Auction, Penn Yan, N.Y. Will open April 27 at 8 a.m.

• Kirkwood Produce Auction, Kirkwood. Begins April 25 at 9 a.m. with flowers and bedding plants.

• Shippensburg Produce Auction, Shippensburg. Operates on Tuesdays up to the last week of March, then every Tuesday and Thursday at 9 a.m. Includes flowers, Easter flowers, and 4-inch pots of primrose, hyacinth, pansies, and flats of pansies.

• Buffalo Valley, Richfield. Begins Tuesday, April 16, at 10 a.m., and every Tuesday and Thursday thereafter. Features mostly flowers and bedding plants.

USDA Names Counties Eligible For Emergency Farm Loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Counties in several eastern states are included in the Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman's announcement of those eligible for USDA emergency farm loans due to losses caused by drought, hail and high winds that occurred last year. The eligibility became effective March 1, 2002.

"This assistance will help farmers recover from natural disasters that hit in their counties last year," said Veneman.

In New York State, 12 counties were reported eligible. Chemung, Seneca and Tioga counties were named as primary disaster areas March 1, 2002. Also eligible because they are contiguous, are Broome, Cayuga, Cortland, Ontario, Schuyler, Steuben, Tompkins, Wayne and Yates counties.

In Vermont, 14 counties are eligible. Addison, Bennington, Caledonia, Chittenden, Orange, Orleans, Rutland and Washington counties were named as primary disaster areas. Also eligible, because they are contiguous, are Essex, Franklin, Grand Isle, Lamoille, Windham and Windsor counties.

In Virginia, eight counties were designated eligible. Goochland County was named as a primary disaster area. Also eligible, because they are contiguous, are Chesterfield, Cumberland, Fluvanna, Hanover, Henrico, Louisa and Powhatan counties.

In Tennessee, 13 counties are regarded eligible. Claiborne, Hamblen, Jefferson and Union counties were named as primary disaster areas. Also eligible, because they are contiguous, are Anderson, Campbell, Cocke, Grainger, Greene, Hancock, Hawkins, Knox and Sevier counties.

This designation makes all qualified farm operators in primary and contiguous disaster counties eligible for low-interest EM loans from the Farm Service Agency, provided eligibility requirements are met.

Farmers in eligible counties have eight months from the date of this declaration to apply for the loans to help cover part of their actual losses. FSA will consider each loan application on its own merits, taking into account the extent of losses, security available and repayment ability.

FSA has a variety of programs available, in addition to the emergency loan program, to help eligible farmers recover from adversity.

Interested farmers may contact their local FSA offices for further information on eligibility requirements and application procedures.

ABSOLUTE PUBLIC AUCTION

"This property to be sold to the highest bidder"
NO RESERVE NO MINIMUM
FOR: OASIS RESOURCE MANAGEMENT GROUP INC.

Friday, April 12, 2002
Time: 1:00 P.M.

Location: 645 Coatesville Road, West Grove, PA 19390, Chester County

Dir: Take Rt. 1 (PA) to 41 (Lanc. Pk). Go north on 41 to 841 (Coatesville Rd). Continue north to auction site. (Short distance from Longwood Gardens, Winterthur Museum, Philadelphia, and Delaware's Three Little Bakers)

This is an exciting opportunity to purchase an approximate 12-1/2 acre property for church/retreat use. This property is zoned agricultural or for church use. It has a rolling terrain, trees, and a large pond that could offer the potential of fishing, boating, or youth water activities. It also has a very large 2-story concrete block building with a fireplace. This building is in various stages of construction but offers the potential of becoming an activity center, or a large reception hall.

Must be seen to be appreciated!

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Mar. 8. Receipts: 157,800 head, last week 158,200, year ago 196,300. This week's reported volume included 54 percent weighing over 600 lbs. Compared to last week; feeder steers and heifers sold steady to 2.00 higher, instances 3.00 to 5.00 higher, according to the USDA Livestock Market News Service The feeder market received strong support from the finished trade. Direct feedlot sales, slaughter steers and heifers. 2.00 to 2.50 higher at 73.00-73.50 live and 4.00 higher in the beef at 116.00-117.00. Boxed beef cutouts up 3.00 with light Choice late in the week at 120.31. This helped packer margins. However, another week of meager cattle slaughter of only 637,000 head. April futures closed at 75.87 but June is down to 70.50. Continued drought conditions in many areas becoming more serious as we get nearer the spring grazing and planting season. The dry, very mild open winter made for a very good calving year, many 95 percent or better savings. Winter maintenance feeding was usually low and feedlot cattle made efficient daily gains instead of fighting the usual winter weather elements. Economists predicted the recession is drawing to a close and the Dow Jones up nearly 500 points for this week. Prospects for strong consumer beef demand improving.

passed in late 2001, does not contain any new legislation that will benefit dairy farmers. This is the reason why many New York and Pennsylvania congressman voted against the House's version of the bill.

However, the Senate's version of the farm bill directs payments to be made to dairy farmers when the price for fluid milk (bottled milk) drops below $16.94 per CWT ($1.46 per gallon). However, this only represents 45 percent of our local dairy farmer's milk. The value of milk used for manufacturing purposes is hovering around $11.85 per CWT ($1.02 per gallon).

Dairy farmers have to meet the same quality standards for milk used for manufacturing as they do for bottling. However, the dairy farmers receive a much lower price for the milk used for manufacturing purposes (roughly 55 percent).

Linda Broyan, a dairy farmer from Berwick, said, "The Senate bill will not correct many of the inequities facing dairy farmers, but the dairy provisions are a step in the right direction."

The dairy provisions are only for 3½ years, but the provisions will give time to develop the needed legislation. These provisions cover 12 northeastern states. The other 36 continental states come under a floor price plan for manufactured milk.

Tewksbury said, "The dairy provisions in the Senate proposed farm bill must pass."

Maturing Orchardgrass On The Market

(10-14 Days Later Than Pennlate)

BARAULA's late heading will change the way farmers think about orchardgrass. Its late heading makes it superb for mixing with alfalfa. BARAULA has been proven to be later maturing than Satin orchardgrass.

- VERY late heading.
- Not as clumpy as Pennlate and other varieties.
- Does not head out much in second cutting, even if cut before heading in first cutting.
- Soft leaves
- Very leafy
- High yields
- Does not crowd out alfalfa as fast as most varieties

Expert cheese-making instructor Kathy Biss watches as class members document data of the cheese they are making.

Scottish Expert Shares Cheesemaking Secrets

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

TIMBERVILLE, Va. — At first glance the scene from the enclosed observation deck in Shenville Creamery on Evergreen Valley Road, more closely resembles a hospital operating room. The team working there appeared almost sterile, "suited up" as they were for immaculate cleanliness in a cheese-making quest guided, directed, and taught by an expert from Scotland.

Some participants stood around stainless steel vats of pasteurized cow or goat milk and stirred the curdling liquid. Using paring knives, others lifted out curds as they formed and cut them into small uniform pieces.

Nearby, talking seriously to each other around a table, several people examined vials of a substance and recorded the data on sheets of paper.

A round solid chunk of cheddar in a wooden press was not far away.

About a dozen persons from Virginia, North Carolina and Pennsylvania convened for a three-day workshop conducted by Katherine (Kathy) Biss. The workshop's foremost purpose was to improve technique and refine cheesemaking skills.

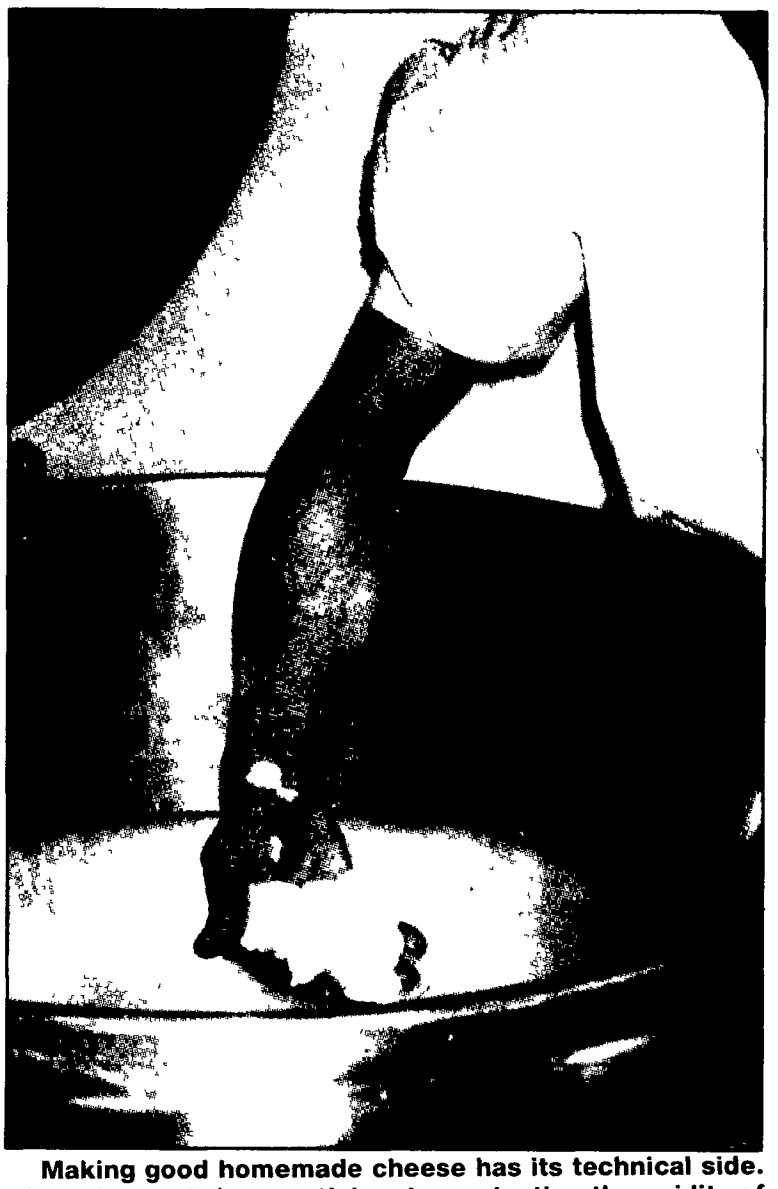
During the three-day event, pasteurized milk from both cows and goats was used, but from April through September at her home in the Scottish West Highlands, Biss makes cheese with the milk taken from the Friesland sheep she raises.

"The aim of the course is to produce hard cheeses," Biss said. 'I find in the states, few people know how to make hard cheeses. A proper cheddar—you can't shortcut," she said.

"It's not only a science, it's a craft," said Biss with the voice of experience gained from 25 years of conducting regular workshops in the United Kingdom.

"Cheesemaking is a skill that is being gradually lost due to mechanization," Biss said, explaining that recipes adapted to machines lose their identity.

"People are fed up with the yellow rubbery stuff you buy in supermarkets," she said.



Making good homemade cheese has its technical side. Here the workshop participants are testing the acidity of whey.

One participant, Vicki Dunaway who also coordinated the class, is licensed to produce and market cheese. At the little workplace in Willis, Va. that she calls Ladybug MicroCreamery, Dunaway makes a wide variety of cheese products.

In a separate conversation Dunaway said that to make any kind of cheese you need milk, culture, and enzyme. She explained that the different cheeses made throughout the world come by manipulating the crucial factors of temperature and time.

"Temperature is critical in making cheese of any kind," she said. "A fresh mozzarella, once made, is ready to use."

Not cheddar. The technique is trickier. Dunaway indicated if only she can get the process down, she would loved to have cheddar always.

So it was with most of the participants. They knew the basics but were having inconsistent results with hard cheeses.

Chris Owen, for instance, in experimenting with pasteurized goat milk cheddars at the Spinning Spider Farm in North Carolina. She said the main stumbling blocks for her involved the consistency of culture and the aging process.

At the end of the workshop, Owen said that she had been introduced to a whole new level of documenting and manipulating a batch while it was in progress.

Barbara Harrick went home energized by the information that was passed around the workshop. Within a week at her Fairfax, Va. home she was tackling a homemade brie.

"I have a lot more confidence than I would have had a month ago," the hobbyist said over the telephone. Harrick was newly armed with refining techniques, problem solving skills, and inspiration gained from the course and knowledge the others shared.

In the beginning, most cheesemakers consider themselves hobbyists. Later they often applied and received a commercial license. Others were in the licensing process.

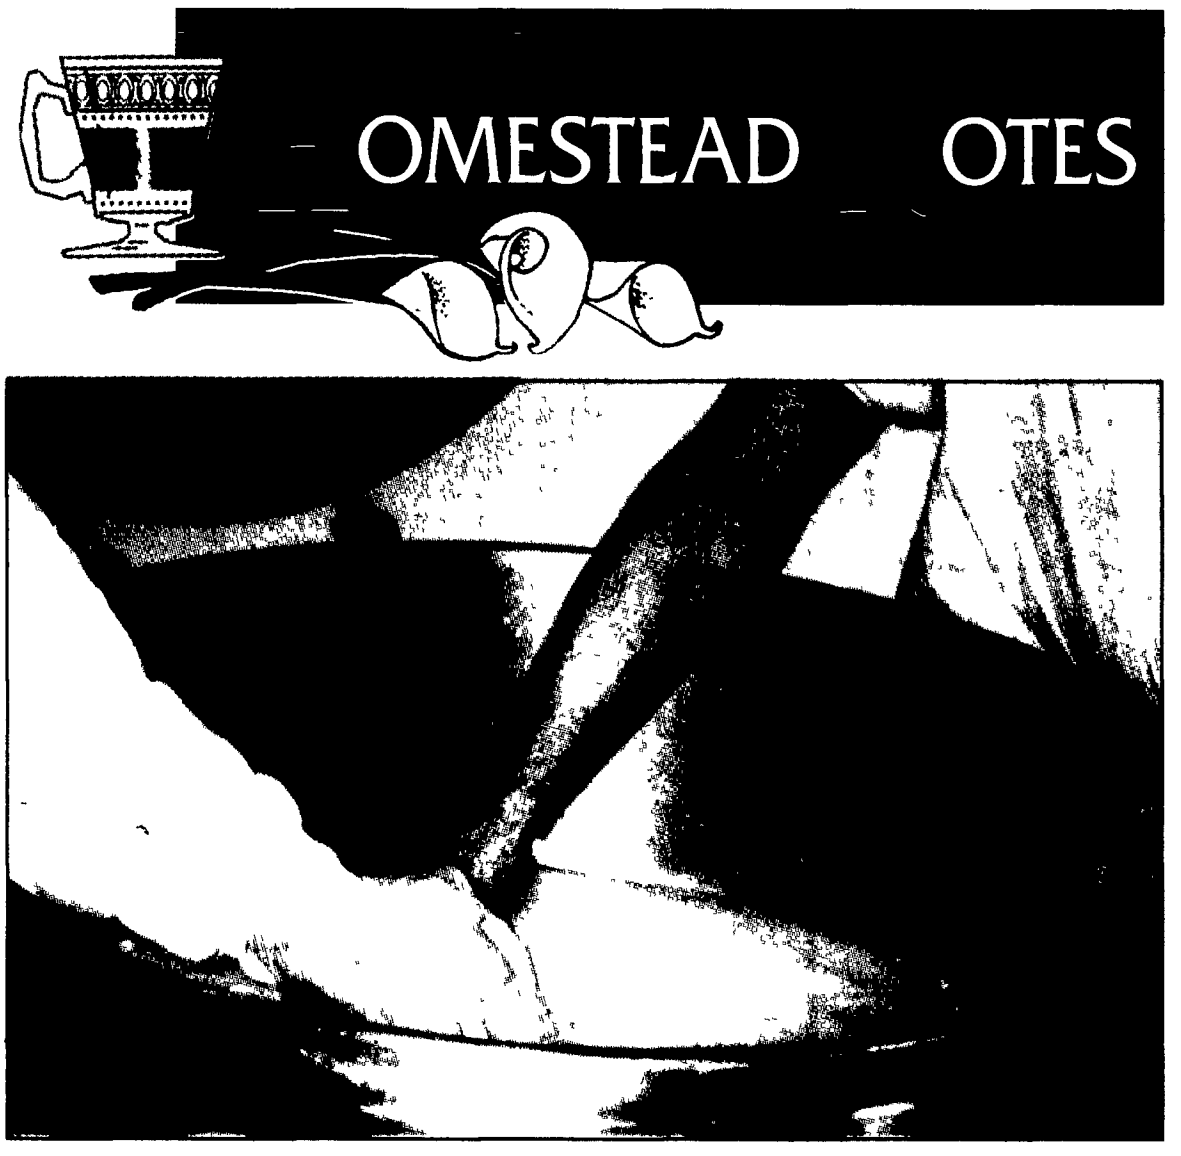
The exceptions were Marvin Tice, the production manager, and Kay Plogger, Shenville Creamery employees whose jobs include soft cheese and yogurt production.

"We feel it is a unique opportunity to focus on aged cheeses," Leon Heatwole, Shenville owner, said about having employee representation in the workshop.

"I always thought it would be nice to have a cheese that you were known for. I hope this is the first step toward that."

In September 2000 Heatwole and his wife, Ida, opened the creamery to provide pure, fresh milk to the consumer solely from their 200-head Holstein dairy. The milk trip to the recyclable glass bottles from the cows is very short since it is processed on the farm. The milk is sold in homogenized and unhomogenized form with a cream line.

Workshop participants took one kind of every cheese variety that they made along home to age it. When the cheese reaches maturity, the participants plan to share taste tests with one another.



On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

A welcome dampness eases in on the early-morning air.

The earthy smell of fresh soil floats up from a small patch of field beyond the lawn. While we do not plow, The Farmer has sliced deep-knife grooves in the field ahead of planting, to loosen soil in a narrow band so any moisture can readily seep through and seedling roots can easily go deep in search of more. Even that minimal opening of soil stirs its musky fragrance.

As dawn's light begins to nudge at the starry sky, it smells like spring. The soft, damp breeze feels like spring.

And, before another week is past, it will officially be spring. Not that most of us need a calendar square to tell us that. Evidence abounds just beyond our doors.

Just in case we'd missed the signs, a robin had been warbling a chorus about them from high in the treetops over the house, even before dawn began streaking the eastern sky.

Seagulls scream and circle the meadow, their amazing agriculture-radar enabling them to zoom in on any field in the region where a farmer pilots a tractor out across a stretch of ground. Opportunist birds, they seem to find it much easier to scavenge from fast-food parking lots and fields which might have worms stirred up, than to go fishing for their own lunch.

That's spring.

A few crocus blooms linger at the southwest corner of the house, most of them having poked up their purple and yellow noses through leaf cover several weeks ago during our stretch of balmy groundhog-shadow weather. Nearby, another prime site for spring bulbs, early to warm and conveniently facing a kitchen window, is dotted with multiple clumps of husky bulb foliage. They were yellowish and pale when the winter leaf cover was first raked away. Now, the robust clusters of green promise bouquets of bright tulips, dainty, red-rimmed narcissus and the heady perfume of hyacinths.

That's spring.

This year's flock of geese and mallard ducks come and go on the pond, sometimes a couple of dozen, then again only a pair or two. Their seasonal squabbling over nesting sites has become a classic part of our spring scene. We'll watch to see if they winnow down — as usual — to a mere two pairs at separate ends of the meadow. Two pairs is actually plenty, since they usually raise at least a half-dozen babies per nest.

That's spring.

Furry gray buds wave at the top of the pussywillow tree, too high off the ground to cut bouquets of the nicest stems without benefit of a ladder and heavy pruning shears. More convenient are the forsythia bushes, their twigs covered in fat buds beginning to show signs of yellow. Coupled with a few bulbs coaxed into early bloom and plunked into a vase, they make a cheery picture of freshness and promise.

They, too, are spring.

Most seasonally entertaining, though, is the sudden conversion of our resident turkey from a staid and serious overseer of the guinea trio to a noisy show-off. Carrying buckets of milk to the calves one morning last week, I rounded the corner of the nursery to the surprise sight of this big guy all fluffed up, his wings outcurved and dragging on the ground, bronze-burnished feathers gleaming in the sun, his head the bright blue of the amorous season.

And gobbling at the top of his lungs.

"A sure sign of spring," I figured, mentally noting that it was time to acquire him a mate. Mere minutes later, she showed up, having arrived as a surprise a day before while I was away at a meeting. Smaller, demure, a lovely, feminine friend, Ms. Turkey seems to have hen-packed our big-feathered farm mascot overnight. She isn't quite as smitten with him. Yet.

He faithfully arrived early every morning at the calf barn, for a drink of water and corn snitched from the calves buckets. This morning neither he — nor his new friend — were anywhere in sight. Guess I've been jilted.

That's all part of "the birds and the bees."

Antique Apple Grafting Seminar

LANDIS VALLEY (Lancaster Co.) — The 10th annual Antique Apple Grafting Seminar is scheduled Saturday, March 23, from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the visitor center of Landis Valley Museum.

Grafting is the process by which a shoot or bud of a plant is inserted into another where it grows permanently. Participants will learn to graft stems from antique apple trees onto roots from another tree, a common practice among fruit growers.

Bring a scion from an old apple tree or choose one from a variety offered by the Heirloom Seed Project of Landis Valley and graft it onto their rootstock to make your own "antique" apple tree.

The seminar focuses on hands-on instructions for grafting apple trees. The afternoon session will include personal grafting training, written instructions on planting and more.

The Heirloom Seed Project of Landis Valley Museum and the Backyard Fruit Growers who work together to preserve historic varieties of fruit trees in Pennsylvania German orchards will host the seminar. The seminar fee is $20.

Landis Valley Museum is located off Route 272/Oregon Pike, a marked exit off both Route 30 and Route 222.

Dealing With Mold In Your Home

As we approach spring, the outside air temperature may vary from highs of 60 degrees to lows in the 20s. This temperature variation, along with moisture inside, makes our homes and buildings ripe for the onset of molds and potential rotting problems.

While mold and rot may not be the most pleasant topic to publicly discuss, it is a problem that is found in many homes, apartments, and business and public buildings.

Molds are biological pollutants, also called bioaerosols, which come from plant and animal materials. Molds growing in the home release spores into the air where they float as particulates. The larger particles settle onto surfaces, but smaller particles stay suspended in the air indefinitely.

Molds can grow slowly and do not require light to grow. High humidity, high moisture levels, and standing water are associated with mold growth. Molds give off a musty smell. Areas like bathrooms, kitchens, laundry rooms, basements, crawl spaces, and entryways are places that may experience high moisture or humidity from water, steam, or snow accumulation. If you have indoor pets, the area near their water dish is an area to be on the lookout for mold growth.

Refrigerator drip pans, air conditioning coils, even dehumidifiers and humidifiers that have standing water, can be places for mold to grow. In the winter, other places to look for mold growth are on cold walls in unventilated attics and closets. Damp carpeting, water condensation on windows and walls, and wood rot are other conditions for mold growth.

The main reason to control mold growth is for health-related concerns. Mold spores cause allergic reactions in some people including watery eyes, sneezing, nasal congestion, itching, coughing, wheezing, difficulty breathing, headache and fatigue. The most severe reaction is an asthma attack.

The second reason for mold control is that your property value may decrease in cases where structural rot damage is caused by excessive mold growth.

What can you do to control mold? Keeping surfaces clean and dry is the most effective method of preventing and removing mold. Make sure everyone in the household knows how important it is to wipe up spills and keep wet items off floors. Use exhaust fans in kitchens, bathroom, and laundry area. Vent your clothes dryer to the outside and check that the vent is clear.

Throw out any damp carpeting or paneling. Check and fix any faucet and plumbing leaks. Raise the temperature of cold surfaces with insulation and storm windows.

Increase air circulation by opening closet doors and moving furniture away from the walls.

Always read and follow the directions for any commercial cleaning product you are going to use. Clean and disinfect humidifiers, dehumidifiers, refrigerator drip pans, and air conditioning coils. Chlorine bleach is recommended. Bleach can also be used on hard surfaces.

Use one cup of chlorine bleach to one gallon of water and dry quickly after cleaning. Always use caution when cleaning with chlorine bleach by wearing rubber gloves to protect your skin.

Do not mix bleach and ammonia or any other cleansers that contain ammonia. This can produce fumes that are extremely hazardous.

When the air is drier outside than air inside the house, increase the ventilation by opening doors and windows. Use a dehumidifier, but check the room size and the water removal method. Air conditioners can also lower humidity.

Other methods that may require a professional contractor to help to control moisture in your home include: correct drainage problems around downspouts and foundations, waterproof basement walls and insulate, control crawl space moisture, and replace carpet with hard-surface floors in basements or lower levels.

Mold growth is not something that you want to have to take care of this spring. Deal with the problem before it begins so you and your family can live without it!

Ups And Downs Of Outdoor Play

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — The Ups and Downs of Outdoor Play" is the title of the workshop being presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension. All child care providers and interested parents can participate in the workshop at 7 p.m. on Thursday, April 11, at Berks County Agricultural Center, Leesport.

Sue Giachero, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Berks County, says "Outdoor play is very important for children but it often brings with it dangers. Each year it is estimated that over 205,000 children are injured in playground accidents. Safety and proper supervision are critical when young children are playing outside."

According to Giachero "the participants will learn how to identify playground hazards and how to provide proper supervision. Tips for maintaining play equipment and proper surfacing will also be discussed."

The workshop is part of a statewide Better Kid Care child care provider training program presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension and partially funded by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare, and the Pennsylvania Child Care/ Early Childhood Development Training System.

Child care providers can receive two DPW training credits for participating in the workshop. Continuing Education Credits (CEUs) are also available.

For more information on the program, support materials and other services from "Better Kid Care," call Sue Giachero at (610) 378-1327. Visit the Better Kid Care Website at www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

Women And Heart Disease Workshop

BEAVER (Beaver Co.) — When asked what they fear most of dying from, the majority of women say breast cancer. But in reality, they have a much greater chance of dying from heart disease.

Heart disease is the number one cause of death among American women and will take the lives of 500,000 women this year, with half having had no symptoms of the disease. It is also the leading cause of disability among women.

To respond to this emerging issue, Penn State Cooperative Extension of Beaver County is sponsoring a Women and Heart Disease Workshop. This workshop will concentrate on the various risk factors that women can change to reduce their risk of heart disease. Women will be active participants by assessing their various risk factors so that they can set short-term, realistic goals to change some of their lifestyle habits.

The risk factors that will be highlighted include: smoking tobacco, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, overweight, diabetes, physical activity level, and stress. In addition, information regarding the differences in heart disease between men and women, particularly the symptoms, will be discussed. Cooking demonstrations will also be conducted.

The four-week series is open to all women and will be conducted on consecutive Wednesdays beginning on March 20 and ending on April 10. The classes will be conducted at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at 1000 Third Street in Beaver. Cost is $5 for the series. To register, call (724) 774-3003.

Teen Veterinary Science Course Offered

COLLEGEVILLE (Montgomery Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension of Montgomery County invites all teens to attend a 4-H teen veterinary science course being offered in the Trappe area. The course is open to all youth ages 14-18, who are interested in learning more about veterinary medicine.

According to County 4-H Coordinator Nancy Kadwill, "The program is geared to teens who are interested in veterinary medicine as a potential career. We hope to address how to prepare for a career, look at schooling needs, and help participants experience some of the daily duties of a veterinarian or vet technician. Also covered will be basic animal first aid, determining animal health, animal handling and safety, and lab work such as learning about X-rays and parasite control.

The course will start on Thursday, April 4 and continue for four consecutive Thursday nights up to and including May 2. Classes will be conducted from 7:30 p.m.-9 p.m. at the Animal Medical Center, which is located on Route 113 (25 West Third Avenue) near Ridge Pike in Trappe.

Parents are invited to the final session for refreshments and presentation of certificates to those who complete the course. The 4-H program is requesting a $12 donation per person to help cover the cost of materials and other needs. Enrollees need to send a check, payable to "4-H Development Fund" c/o Nancy Kadwill, 1015 Bridge Road, Suite H, Collegeville, PA 19426 prior to the course. Be sure to earmark the check "Vet. Sci. Course." Youth do not need to be in 4-H prior to the course but by enrolling in the program they will be listed as a member for the year.

Celebrate Pennsylvania 4-H Awareness Week — March 17-23

4-H Marks 100th Anniversary With National Conversations

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Lauren Annett of Lincoln University, Elizabeth Garduno and Luis Santos of West Chester, and Laurie Szoke, 4-H coordinator, Chester County, were part of 1,200 youth and adults from throughout the country participating in The National Conversation on Youth Development in the 21st Century, a national summit sponsored by 4-H to create a youth-led action plan to improve urban, suburban, and rural communities nationwide.

Seventy-nine 4-H youth and adult delegates participated from Pennsylvania. Comments of the Chester County 4-H'ers follow.

"I want to thank all the people who helped organize this conversation. I'm glad I was able to be a part of the 1,200 youths and adults throughout the country who attended this wonderful conversation. I got to meet really nice people from all around the country, Congressmen, a WNBA Portland Fire player, Gold Medallist Rulon Gardner, and the $250,000 winner in "Who Wants To Be A Millionaire," Nancy Reed. This conversation was a great opportunity for those who attended to be united since Sept. 11. One of the interesting speakers was Rulon Gardner. He said, "You can never get something if you don't do your best to obtain it." This sort of describes what I'm doing in my community. I help others and then I get help when I need it. 4-H showed me that I can accomplish anything if I put a lot of effort into it" —Luis Santos, West Chester.

List of people Santos got to meet:

- Nancy Reed, winner of $250,000 on "Who Wants To Be A Millionaire?"
- Rulon Gardner, Wrestling Gold Medallist in the Summer Olympics in Sydney
- John Bridgeland, USA Freedom Corps
- Adam Putnam, Congressman in Florida
- Jackie Stiles, WNBA basketball player from the Portland Fire
- Ann Veneman, Secretary of Agriculture
- Jeff Trandahl, Clerk of United States Congress
- Harris Wofford, America's Promise Chairman

"My first year in college has not been so easy. I've had to make a lot of choices...good and bad. I have had my "ups" and "downs." This was one of the times I felt I couldn't go any further. Attending the conversation has not changed my life but it has made a difference. I came out of it with a new perspective and with new ideas of how to be a better person; to work hard for what I believe in. One of the speakers that really motivated me was Rulon Gardner, the captain of the USA wrestling team. He said that no matter how tough it can be that we can make it better. To always change a "can't" to a "can." Now, I'm ready to go back to college and start working to be a better person and to achieve my goals; to come and help my community in a better way." —Elizabeth Garduno, West Chester.

The National Conversation's findings, which will be tabulated using instant polling technology, will be presented to President Bush, members of Congress and other political and community leaders in April.

Speaking at the National Conversation, USA Freedom Corps director John Bridgeland said the purpose of President Bush's new volunteer initiative "is to ask every American to stop, to pause, to ask the question, 'What will be my great service to my neighbor, my community, my country and the world?"

Bridgeland hailed the youth participating in the National Conversation, as well as the millions of 4-H members throughout the country: "You are the rising generation, and I know with your commitment to public service, you can in fact become the next greatest generation."

Also speaking at the 4-H summit was Harris Wofford, chairman of America's Promise, who described the youth in attendance as "the promise in America." Further, he underscored importance of their role in USA Freedom Corps: "You are vital parts of those armies of compassion that President Bush has called into action."

"Power Of YOUth Pledge" Campaign

4-H youth presented Bridgeland and Wofford with a large check representing more than 1.3 million hours committed thus far by 100,000 youth and adults to the "Power of YOUth Pledge" Campaign, a volunteerism drive aimed at improving communities nationwide. The individual commitments were made to address a variety of community needs including:

- Helping a younger person (17,641 pledges totaling 282,221 hours);
- Improving my community (14,096 pledges totaling 187,748 hours);
- Helping an older person (16,723 pledges totaling 178,826 hours);
- Mentoring and tutoring (8,496 pledges totaling 137,905 hours);
- Building respect and tolerance (10,165 pledges totaling 136,954 hours);
- Improving the environment (12,110 pledges totaling 119,333 hours).

Bridgeland described the "Power of YOUth Pledge" Campaign as "an engine of humanity that can change our country and the world" and "a great gift to America."

4-H Marks Centennial Anniversary

4-H is sponsoring both the National Conversation on Youth Development in the 21st Century and the "Power of YOUth Pledge" Campaign to mark its 100th anniversary.

"Rather than erect a monument to ourselves, we decided to make a gift to America by identifying the needs of our communities nationwide and to develop a youth-led action plan that addresses these needs," said Donald T. Floyd Jr., president and CEO of National 4-H Council. "The Conversations will identify how to make America better and the Power of Youth Pledge Campaign will provide some of the resources to get the job done."

4-H is grateful for the generous donations of its many partners to support both initiatives: American Honda Motor Co., Inc., American Income Life Insurance Co., AOL Time Warner Foundation, Best Buy Children's Foundation, Coca-Cola Fountain, ConAgra Foods, Eastman Kodak Company, Fleischmann's Yeast, General Mills, Inc., Hilton, J.C. Penney Company, Inc., John Deere, Kraft Foods North America, Lutheran Brotherhood, Montanto, The Pew Charitable Trusts, Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., Precious Moments, Sodexho, and USDA — Rural Business Cooperative Services.

"The generous support of our public and private partners is a strong indication that America has heard President Bush's call to service loudly and clearly," said Floyd.

Sweet Recipes For Easter Treats

Every Easter season, many cooks carry on the tradition of making candy by using recipes handed down through the generations. These recipes are often family favorites and taste good. Many of these recipes call for paraffin wax in the coating chocolate. Unfortunately paraffin wax as it is not FDA approved for human consumption.

You may continue to use your family recipes but make adjustments. Instead of combining baker's chocolate with paraffin wax, use chocolate coating wafers, which are available wherever candy making supplies are sold. They are easily melted and ready for coating in minutes.

Tempering chocolate is another method, although time consuming. Tempering produces a glossy coating that stays firm at room temperature without the addition of wax. Candies not coated with chocolate that is tempered will probably have a somewhat sticky coating that will "bloom" with white or gray spots or streaks. Chocolate that has bloom is not harmful but may look unappetizing.

Here are several methods to make safe and simple chocolate coating.

SAFE AND SIMPLE CHOCOLATE COATING

2 8-ounce milk chocolate bars, broken into pieces
¼ cup shortening (not butter, margarine or oil)

OR

2 cups semi-sweet chocolate chips or mini chips
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons shortening (not butter, margarine, or oil)

OR

2 cups milk chocolate chips
2 tablespoons shortening (not butter, margarine, or oil)

Place chocolate and shortening in 4-cup glass measuring cup or 1½ quart glass bowl. Fill another larger glass bowl or large pan with one-inch of very warm tap water.

Place measuring cup or bowl containing the chocolate in the larger bowl or pan so that water covers bottom half of cup or bowl containing chocolate.

Note: Keep water level low so that water does not get into the chocolate mixture and ruin the coating.

Stir chocolate constantly with rubber scrapper until chocolate is completely melted and mixture is smooth.

This process is not difficult, but it does take time. Do not rush. It should take about 20 minutes to melt the chocolate. If the water begins to cool, pour it out and add more warm water. Be careful not to get any water into the chocolate mixture. Remove the measuring cup or bowl containing the melted chocolate mixture from the water.

Dip chilled centers completely into chocolate mixture, one at a time, with fork.

Gently tap fork on side of cup or bowl to remove excess chocolate. Invert coated center onto wax paper-covered tray or cookie sheet; decorate top of coated center with small amount of melted chocolate, using tip of fork.

Gently tap fork on side of cup or bowl to remove excess chocolate. Invert coated center onto wax paper-covered tray or cookie sheet; decorate top of coated center with small amount of melted chocolate, using tip of fork.

Store coated centers, loosely covered, in a cool, dry place. Enough coating for five dozen centers.

Do not use butter, oil, or margarine in coating chocolate as it contains moisture that will cause chocolate to tighten and become grainy.

CHEESE FUDGE

½ pound Velveeta cheese
½ pound butter
2 pounds powdered sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla
½ cup cocoa OR ¾ cup peanut butter

Melt cheese and butter in the microwave. Stir in other ingredients. Smooth into 9x13-inch buttered pan. Chill and cut into squares.

CHOCOLATE EASTER EGGS

2 packages (3.4 ounces each) cook-and-serve chocolate pudding mix
½ cup butter, melted
½ cup milk
5-6 cups confectioners' sugar
2 cups peanut butter
4 cups semisweet chocolate chips
2 teaspoons shortening
Assorted decorating icings and cake decorator candy flowers

In a saucepan, combine the pudding mixes, butter, and milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Cook and stir 1-2 minutes longer or until thickened. Remove from heat; stir in sugar and peanut butter. Cool slightly. Shape ½ cupfuls into egg shapes. Place on a waxed paper-lined baking sheet; refrigerate until set.

In a microwave or heavy saucepan, melt chocolate chips and shortening; stir until smooth. Dip eggs in chocolate; allow excess to drip off. Return eggs to waxed paper to dry. Decorate with icings and candies as desired. Yield: 10 eggs.

Note: Butterscotch or vanilla pudding can be substituted for the chocolate pudding.

COCONUT OR PEANUT BUTTER EGGS

Mix together:
¼ pound butter
8-ounces cream cheese
Add:
2 pounds confectioners sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
Fresh coconut to taste OR 1½ cups peanut butter

Place in refrigerator to chill. Shape in form of eggs and put back in refrigerator to harden.

Chocolate coating: In a double boiler, melt one bar bakers' chocolate (your choice) with 2 tablespoons shortening (not butter, oil or margarine, which contain moisture that will cause chocolate to tighten and become grainy).

Dip in formed eggs and chill.

MARSHMALLOW CUTOUTS

2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
½ cup cold water
2 cups granulated sugar
¼ cup hot water
1 cup light corn syrup, divided
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1½ pounds white candy coating or chocolate candy coating, melted. If white coating is used, you can blend in pink or yellow paste food color.

Coat 10x15-inch jelly roll pan with nonstick cooking spray; set aside. In a bowl, combine gelatin and cold water; let stand 5 minutes. Meanwhile in saucepan, combine sugar, hot water, and ½ cup corn syrup. Bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring constantly. Cook without stirring, until a candy thermometer reads 238 degrees (soft ball stage). Remove from heat, stir in remaining corn syrup. Pour into mixing bowl. Beat on high speed, gradually add gelatin mixture by tablespoonfuls until well blended. Continue beating until fluffy and thickened, about 10 minutes. Stir in vanilla, mix well. Pour into the prepared pan. Let stand, uncovered, overnight. Cut with a cookie cutter coated with nonstick cooking spray. Dip cutouts in powdered sugar, brushing off excess. In a microwave or crockpot, melt the candy coating. Dip the cutouts in the melted coating (do it fast or the marshmallow will melt). Place on waxed paper lined pans to dry. Yields: 3½-4 dozen, depends on size of cutter.

Loretta Kurtz
Allensville

NO-COOK EASTER MINTS

⅓ cup soft butter
⅓ cup light corn syrup
½ teaspoon salt
Food coloring (3 different colors)
3½ cups confectioners' sugar

Measure butter, corn syrup, salt, and sugar into a large bowl and mix well. When dough gets too stiff, knead with your hands.

Divide dough into three portions and add a few drops of each color of food coloring to each portion of dough.

Pinch off small pieces of dough, roll into balls, and press lightly with a fork.

COATED EASTER PRETZLES

2 pounds white or colored coating or chocolate coating
1 package small pretzels

Melt the coatings in small bowls in a pan of water. Dip the pretzels in and lift out using a fork, shaking off excess coating.

Lay the pretzels on wax-paper lined cookie sheet and place in the refrigerator to harden.

RICE KRISPIE EASTER EGGS

1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 cup crunchy peanut butter
2 cups rice crispy cereal
2 tablespoons oil
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Mix together sugar, peanut butter, cereal, oil, and vanilla. Use hands to mold the mixture into egg shapes. Place on cookie sheet and freeze about two hours. Dip in chocolate coating.

BUNNY POPS

18 wooden pop sticks
18 Spring Oreo chocolate sandwich cookies
4 squares white baking chocolate, melted
18 large marshmallows
Decorating icings or gels

Attach a wooden pop stick to one side of each cookie using melted white chocolate. Place, pop sides up, on long sheets of wax paper until white chocolate is set. Turn cookie pops over to decorate.

Cut marshmallows in half crosswise. Attach one half, cut side down, to each cookie for "face" using small amount of melted white chocolate.

CARROT CUT-OUTS

3 tablespoons butter
10-ounces large or minature marshmallows
10 drops yellow food coloring
3 crops red food coloring
6 cups crisp rice cereal
Decorating icing and colored sprinkles

Melt butter in large saucepan over low heat. Add marshmallows, cook until melted and mixture is well blended, stirring frequently. Add food coloring; stir until evenly colored. Remove from heat.

Immediately add cereal; mix lightly until evenly coated. Press into greased 15x10x1-inch pan. Cool completely. Cut out shapes, using greased 5-inch carrot-shaped cutter. Decorate cutouts with icings and sprinkles. Let stand until set. Makes about 18 cut-outs.

Note: If carrot-shaped cookie cutter is not available, make a template. Draw a 5-inch carrot on heavy paper or cardboard; cut out. Place template on cereal mixture; cut around template with a small sharp knife.

Although Lent is a time of sacrifice, you don't have to starve yourself or spend hours in the kitchen to fulfill Lenten obligations. You can have meals that are both hearty and easy to prepare.

If you keep eggs—nature's own convenience food on hand—there are many possibilities. Breakfast is still considered the most important meal of the day, especially for families with children. To help ensure success for yourself and your family, plan a nutritious breakfast each morning.

Teens enjoy dishes like quick-and-easy Mexican Eggs which can help get their day off to a good start. Simply scramble two eggs and add a tablespoon of shredded reduced-fat Monterey Jack cheese and taco sauce to taste. Vary the recipe to suit your family members' tastes and their dietary needs, too. Just multiply the recipe for the number of servings your need.

For a simple, yet satisfying, main dish, poach eggs right in a bowl of minestrone soup and serve them with a chunk of crusty bread. You can also cook up a batch of frozen hash browns, dotted with other veggies.

Make indentation in the cooked veggies and break in some eggs. Cover the pan and let trapped steam cook the eggs. Another time, fill omelets with a colorful medley of veggies and serve them with a tossed green salad.

For a dinner that's even easier than omelets, make a frittata, and Italian omelet in which the filling cooks right along with the eggs. It's a skillet supper that you can put on the table in a flash and serve right form the pan.

The eggs, tuna and cheese in Tuna Frittata provide plenty of protein. This frittata also boasts the beneficial omega-3 fats that come from fish.

Tuna Frittata
6 to 8 servings

8 eggs
1 can (6.5 oz.) tuna packed in water
1 tablespoon instant minced onion well drained
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
¼ teaspoon seasoned salt, optional undrained
¼ teaspoon oregano leaves, crushed
½ cup (2 oz.) shredded reduced-fat cheese
⅛ teaspoon ground pepper
Cheddar cheese
1 tablespoon butter

In medium bowl, beat together eggs, onion, mustard, salt, if desired, oregano and pepper until blended. Stir in tuna, mushrooms and cheese.

In 10-inch ovenproof omelet pan or skillet (to ovenproof handle, wrap completely with aluminum foil) over medium heat, melt butter. Pour in egg mixture. Cook over low to medium heat until eggs are almost set, about 7 to 9 minutes. Broil about 6 inches from heat until eggs are completely set, about 3 minutes.

Cut into wedges and serve from pan, or either slide frittata from pan or invert onto serving platter.

Teaching Kids About Social Security

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — A new feature on the Social Security Administration Website is designed specifically for children.

From a human development perspective, "Kids' Stuff" is brilliant. Friendly animals introduce basic Social Security concepts and share messages about the importance of saving and planning. By clicking on a turtle, young visitors learn how the slow and steady turtle beat the fast but overly-assured rabbit. The moral? "Slow but sure wins the race."

A lion says "When I used to chase the cows, I couldn't get them because they stuck together. I was able to get them, one by one, after they fought and separated." The concept? "United we stand, divided we fall."

A grasshopper may provide the most direct message about Social Security's importance: "When I saw an ant moving an ear of corn...I invited the ant to stop working so hard and relax with me. The ant said he had to keep working to store food for the winter. When winter came the ants shared the corn they had stored, and I had no food, so I was very hungry." The moral here: We all need to prepare for the future.

To find out what a pig, stork and crow have to say about saving and planning, check out the Website at http://www.ssa.gov/kids/kids.htm.

According to "Social Security eNews," the administration's online publication, learning about Society Security is "important to everyone — even grade-schoolers. They'll learn about the value of saving and planning for the future. Teaching these values to kids at an early age will help them to be prepared when the time comes."

Young people must realize that Social Security is more than a retirement or "old people's" program. In fact, 30 percent of the recipients aren't elderly, but people who receive support through Social Security's disability insurance and survivor's insurance programs.

The Social Security system is built upon a social compact between generations. People who are retiring now and about to draw benefits made payments into the system that funded the previous generation's benefits. Similarly, for current workers to draw benefits when they retire, they must count on contributions made by future generations.

Volunteers Needed At Hershey Gardens

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — As it prepares to open for its 66th season on March 30, numerous volunteer opportunities are now available at Hershey Gardens, one of Central Pennsylvania's most beautiful attractions.

All that is necessary is a time commitment and a general interest in gardening or butterflies. Training, where needed, will be provided.

Needed are Butterfly House Flight Attendants, to guide visitors and answer questions about butterflies, their life cycle, and the host and nectar plants within the House; Gardens Guides, to lead adult tour groups, interpreting history and describing the Gardens; School/Youth Program volunteers to work with children ages 3-12; and, Volunteer Gardeners to help preserve the beauty of Hershey Gardens.

Becoming a Hershey Gardens volunteer is as simple as dialing (717) 534-3493 or sending an e-mail to chuff@hersheygardens.org.

Lancaster Society 20

Farm Women 20 met Feb. 7 at the home of Jane Ferguson with Valaria Ferguson as co-hostess. There was an attendance of 14. Following the refreshments Jane read the Scripture taken from Mark 8:8-23. The Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison and the Pledge of Allegiance was used.

The president, Nancy Lefever, presided at the business meeting. It was decided to send money to Hospice in memory of Helen Tout who was recently called to her heavenly home. Three cards were sent during the month. On March 13, Farm Women 9 is entertaining us at The Farm and Home Center.

In the report of the State Convention at which 177 attended they mentioned that 24,000 cook books had been sold. It was reported that Society 28 has dissolved. There is need for a second vice president. The state project for this year is "Feed the Children."

Before closing by singing "Brighten the Corner," Freda Wimer gave a very interesting reading.

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 20 met Thursday, March 7, at the home of Vera Herr with Jean Ressel as co-hostess. Following the refreshments were the devotions when Jean read from the Matthew 24. Following the reading "The Pink Dress," the Lord's Prayer was prayed in unison and the Pledge of Allegiance was repeated.

For the roll call all 16 members gave a safety tip. Ten of the members will be attending the luncheon given by Society 9 at the Farm and Home Center this month.

For the program Police Chief Kenneth Work gave many interesting suggestions for safety when traveling or at home.

The meeting was closed by the President Nancy Lefever, who presided at the meeting. The April meeting will be at the Memorial United Methodist Church, Quarryville, when members will entertain Societies 23 and 15 at noon.

Lancaster Society 18

Lancaster County Farm Women Society 18 met Feb. 16 at Leola Family Restaurant with husbands and guests present. It was most pleasant to have a social time with friends whom we had not seen since the December meeting. Our newly chosen President Mildred Kreider presided at a short business meeting. Four ladies with birthdays in February were greeted with the birthday song. Sixteen members were present.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a self-addressed stamped envelope. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Check your recipe to make sure you copy the right amounts and complete instructions for making the recipe. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, but cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address. You may also e-mail questions and answers to lgood.eph@lnpnews.com

Notice: Several readers write that they have problems accessing this address. The common mistake is that readers are substituting an "i" for the lowercase "l (L)" needed in two places. If you are having problems reaching this address, please check to make sure you are typing a lowercase "l (L)" in both places and not a lower or uppercase "i" or "I."

QUESTION — Mrs. E.H. Boger is looking for a recipe for Moravian cake, which looks similar to funny cake but has lemon on the bottom. The cake is sold at Leesport Farmers' Market.

QUESTION — An Adams County reader requests recipes for the following: breaded onion rings, Russian borscht, sauerkraut, and recipes using canned black-eyed peas.

QUESTION — Bonnie Reese, Wellsboro, writes that she lost the recipe for peanutbutter meltaways that had been printed in this paper a few years ago. She'd like the recipe in which the candy was made with white chocolate that was melted and combined with peanut butter. It was then cooled and dipped into milk chocolate. She wants it in time for Easter.

ANSWER — Eva Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wanted a recipe to make old-fashioned pearl tapioca pudding. Thanks to Mrs. Ray Keeny, New Freedom, who sends in her favorite recipe for tapioca. She sends instructions for making it in a crockpot and on top of the stove, but prefers the crockpot method, which doesn't require soaking tapioca before cooking it.

Small Pearl Tapioca

4 cups milk, heat on stove so that it doesn't take as long in the crockpot
½ cup tapioca
Pinch salt
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup or less sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine milk, tapioca, and salt in the crockpot. Cook on high until tapioca is almost clear. Stir occasionally. It requires about two hours or more. Mix egg and sugar. Mix ½ cup or so of the hot mixture into the eggs, then mix all into the hot milk and tapioca mixture. Cook about 15 minutes more. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla.

To cook on top of stove: cook milk, tapioca, and salt about 20-25 minutes, stirring constantly until clear. Mix ½ cup or so of hot mixture into the egg and sugar. Stir into the hot mixture and cook one minute. Remove from heat. Add vanilla.

To prevent scum on top, cover while it cooks.

Here's a recipe from Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, who writes that it is important to soak pearl tapioca at least one hour before cooking. If the liquid is not absorbed, throw the tapioca away because it is too old to use. Rice can be substituted for tapioca.

Pearl Tapioca Pudding

Soak overnight in refrigerator: 1 cup pearl tapioca in 1 cup milk.

The next morning, add tapioca mixture to 3 cups milk and cook three hours in double boiler over boiling water. Cool.

Heat oven to 325 degrees. Beat and add 5 egg yolks, rind of one lemon and juice of ½ lemon. Beat 5 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Line a baking dish with a layer of the tapioca mixture, a layer of egg whites, layer of tapioca, and another layer of egg whites. Bake 15 minutes. Serve warm or cold.

ANSWER — Helen Kofron, Claymont, Del., wanted a recipe for soft oatmeal cookies. Thanks to Mrs. Ray Keeny, New Freedom, for sending a recipe that she writes is very good.

Banana-Oatmeal Chocolate Chip Cookies

¾ cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg, optional
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup mashed banana
1¾ cups rolled quick oats
1 cup chocolate chips
½ cup walnuts, optional

Cream together butter and sugar. Add egg and mix well. Mix dry ingredients and add alternately with the bananas. Add oats, chocolate chips, and nuts. Drop dough on lightly greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for about 12 minutes.

ANSWER — Barbara Schaffer requested a recipe for mustard eggs. Thanks to Judy Showers, Gardners; Linda Hake, Dallastown, and others for sending similar recipes.

Mustard Eggs

3 tablespoons mustard
¾ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup vinegar
1 cup water
2 drops yellow food coloring

Mix together mustard and sugar. Add salt. Add vinegar, water, and food coloring. Heat to boiling. Pour over 8-12 eggs. Refrigerate 24 hours before serving.

ANSWER — Here are some answers to the request for tasty, nutritious, and low calorie recipes. Michelle Good sends the pancake recipe. She writes that she has clipped many favorite recipes from this column, and wants to thank many contributors to this column.

Cauliflower Pancakes

¼ head cauliflower, chopped very fine in food processor
½ teaspoon baking powder
1½ teaspoon soy flour (can substitute another flour but soy is very low in carbs)
1 egg

Mix together all ingredients and divide into 4. Drop onto hot pan that has a little oil on it. Flatten mixture with spatula. Cook like hash browns. Great with ketchup and salt.

Here are several "quick, nurtrious, and delicious recipes" from Shirley Warzenluft, Robesonia.

Five Can Chili

15-ounce can chili with beans
15-ounce can mixed vegetables, drained
1 can whole kernel corn, drained
10¾-ounce can condensed tomato soup, undiluted
10-ounce can diced tomatoes and green chilies

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients and heat through. Serves 6.

Quick Cranberry Relish
(Ready in 15 minutes)

16-ounce whole cranberry sauce
8-ounce can crushed pineapple, drained
¼ teaspoon apple pie spice
Pinch ground cloves
¼ cup chopped pecans

In a bowl, combine all ingredients. Stir in pecans. Makes about 2 cups cups. Serve with chicken.

Flavorful Fryer Chicken
(Ready in 1 hour)

3-4 pound broiler/fryer chicken, cut up
10¾-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1 cup orange juice
2 tablespoons onion soup mix
Hot mashed potatoes or cooked rice

Place chicken pieces in a greased 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Combine orange juice, soup mix, and soup, pour over chicken. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

Uncover, bake 15-20 minutes longer or until chicken juices run clear. While chicken is baking, prepare mashed potatoes or rice. Serves 6. Serve with Quick Cranberry Relish.

Spiced Ham Steak
(Ready in 10 minutes)

1 pound bone-in fully cooked ham steak
¼ cup orange marmalade
2 tablespoons water
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon corn syrup
⅛-¼ teaspoon ground ginger

In large skillet coated with nonstick spray, cook ham 4 minutes or each side until lightly browned, drain.

Meanwhile, combine remaining ingredients in a saucepan, bring to a boil. Spoon over ham. Cover and cook 1-2 minutes until heated through. 4 servings.

Honey-Garlic Angel Hair

1 pound package angel hair pasta
2-3 garlic cloves, minced
½ cup butter
¼ cup honey
1 teaspoon dried basil
1 teaspoon dried thyme
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese

Cook pasta according to package directions. Meanwhile in skillet, saute garlic in butter. Stir in honey, basil, and thyme. Drain pasta, add to garlic mixture and toss to coate. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. 8 servings.

Basil Orange Chops

4 boneless butterflied pork chops
1 green onion, sliced
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 cup orange juice
2 teaspoons dried basil
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 teaspoons water

In a large skillet, brown pork chops and onion in oil. Add the orange juice and 1 tablespoon grated orange peel and basil.

Cover and cook until meat juices run clear. Remove chops, keep warm. In a small bowl, combine cornstarch and water until smooth, add to skillet. Cook and stir 2 minutes or until thickened. Serve over chops. 4 servings. Ready in 30 minutes or less.

Zucchini Rice Pilaf

½ teaspoon dried basil
2 tablespoons butter
2¼ cups water
1¼ teaspoons chicken bouillon granules
1 cup uncooked long-grain rice
½ cup shredded carrot
1 small zucchini, halved, thinly sliced

In skillet, saute basil in butter one minute. Add water and bouillon, bring to a boil. Stir in rice and carrot. Reduce heat, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Add zucchini. Simmer 10 more minutes or until vegetables are tender. 4 servings. Nutrition facts: 1 cup serving: 235 calories, 6 g fat, 427 mg sodium, 16 mg cholesterol, 2 g fiber, 4 gr protein. My houseplants keep me busy during the winter as there are about 100 of them. Most of them are in two bay windows but a few big plants sit on the floor. They need to be watered regularly and spent blossoms picked up off the windowsills.

Due to my husband's illness, some extra plants have been given to him. As spring approaches, I'm concerned about garden work. It is work that I enjoy, but it is so much nicer to have a helper. Doing the rototilling has always been man's work and also putting up fences for peas. Only time will tell how things are done this year.

After my mother broke her ankle she declared that she could not learn to use crutches. So, she sat in a wheelchair for weeks. Finally, my father was tired of cooking and serving her. So he told her she must get up and move around. Even come to the kitchen for meals. Thus, he got her up and moving again, and she walked for another 10 years. Necessity makes us do things that we think we cannot do.

I've had one major operation in my life and after a week in the hospital, I came home and got to work. When I saw all those weeds in my garden, I felt they had to be hoed. Everyone else was too busy to do it and so I did it — though it was real misery. Even today I believe it was best that I had to plunge right back to work.

Although we are housebound this winter, I'm finding lots of things to do. The braided rug is almost finished, my seeds are ordered, I bake a dessert several times a week, and naturally water all those houseplants every few days.

Wanted: Well-Kept Farms For Dairy of Distinction Merit

Dairy of Distinction

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm.

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Roadside judging will take place in May Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management

Crystal Spring Farm, Mifflintown

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications.

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket or other frame shall be used to display the sign No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2002 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm.

Dairy Checkoff Successes At Pa. Farm Show

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Dairy promotion was stronger than ever at the 2002 Pennsylvania Farm Show. Throughout the show, dairy's message was spread to consumers through an interactive exhibit, displays and contests. Dairy events were made possible by the farmer-funded dairy checkoff organizations, Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East and the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association, working together.

The farmer-funded dairy checkoff program's booth in the main exhibit area featured the dairy trivia game, "Who Wants to be a Moo-llionaire?" Visitors learned about dairy and nutrition while playing the entertaining game, based on the TV game show. Along with "Moo-llionaire," another interactive nutrition game taught consumers about eating a well-balanced diet, including milk and dairy foods. Dairy-friendly recipes and tattoos were also provided to the public.

Dairy checkoff also sponsored several other events at the Farm Show. The annual butter sculpture paid tribute to American heroes, featuring a firefighter and a policeman passing an American flag to a military officer. In the "Simply American: Cheese Carving Contest," first place went to Kathy Griffith of Lancaster County for her sculpture of a bald eagle, the Liberty Bell and the Scales of Justice on a five-pound block of Cheddar. An exhibit featuring cow's milk cheeses produced in the Commonwealth was on display in the center of the food court. Additionally, many Farm Show visitors stopped at the milk mustache photo booth to pose for their very own milk mustache photo.

The dairy promotion groups also invited farmers to visit the exhibit to learn about their dairy checkoff investment. Winners of the drawing for a "got milk?℠" jacket were Robert Hoover of Indiana County and Teresa Pomraning of York County.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Kids Korner

It's Not Whether You Win Or Lose

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Many children who participate in youth sports — and their parents — have become obsessed with winning at almost any cost. This attitude can interfere with what sports programs for kids should be all about, warns Sue Giachero, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Berks County. "Go to any sporting event involving 6- to 12-year-olds and you're guaranteed to see an out-of-control parent or coach," says Giachero. At this age, the focus should be on teaching skills and having fun, rather than cut-throat competition."

Kids at those ages are trying to get a sense of mastery, Giachero explains. They're learning specific sports skills. They're also learning important life skills, such as backing somebody up, accepting responsibility and leadership.

"A win-at-all costs atmosphere also results in less commitment to values such as honesty and fair play," she adds. Sixty percent of the boys and girls involved in sports programs drop out by age 12, Giachero said.

When 12-year-olds were surveyed about the reasons they dropped out, they listed in order of frequency: loss of interest, takes too much time, poor coaching and too much pressure.

Giachero suggests some guidelines to keep in mind when shopping for — or creating — a quality sports program for kids.

- Fair and equitable policies that kids help create. These policies should be age-appropriate and applied consistently. No players should get away with anything simply because they have the best ability.
- Orientation for staff, coaches, parents and youth. Everyone should know up front what's expected of them, including expectations about conduct, fairness and honesty.
- Emotional control. Adults should be expected to set positive examples. Help for kids to learn from their experiences. "Adults should spend time after a game talking about what the players did well and what could use improvement," Sue Giachero says. "Coaches should make use of 'teachable moments,' where something significant has just happened — such as a nasty foul or an accidental collision — to stop the game and ask the players to think about how they could have behaved differently."
- Conduct follow-up activities. A post-season meeting can be scheduled to celebrate successes and plan for future changes and improvement. Maximize the social side of sports by promoting interactions among team members and between teams.

Above all, Giachero says, sports programs should be fun. "Watch kids play on their own," she says. "If one team's 'killing' the other, they yell 'Switch!' to divide up the talent. If someone makes a silly mistake, they yell 'Do-over!'

Kids play sports for the action and excitement," she said. "Games shouldn't be organized to determine a winner but to promote a close and exciting game — even if it means modifying the rules."

Finally, everyone should participate, regardless of skill level. "Less than one percent of kids go on to play professionally," Giachero says. "Why focus on that small number and miss a great opportunity for the other 99 percent?"

Penn State Cooperative Extension has developed a series of free booklets, "Coaches Making Youth Sports a Positive Experience," and "Parents Making Youth Sports a Positive Experience."

Single and multiple copies are available free of charge for Pennsylvania residents from county Penn State Cooperative Extension offices. Out-of-state residents can contact the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center or call (814) 865-6713.

For more information about these publications and other educational programs about youth development offered by Berks County Cooperative Extension office, call Giachero at (610) 378-1327.

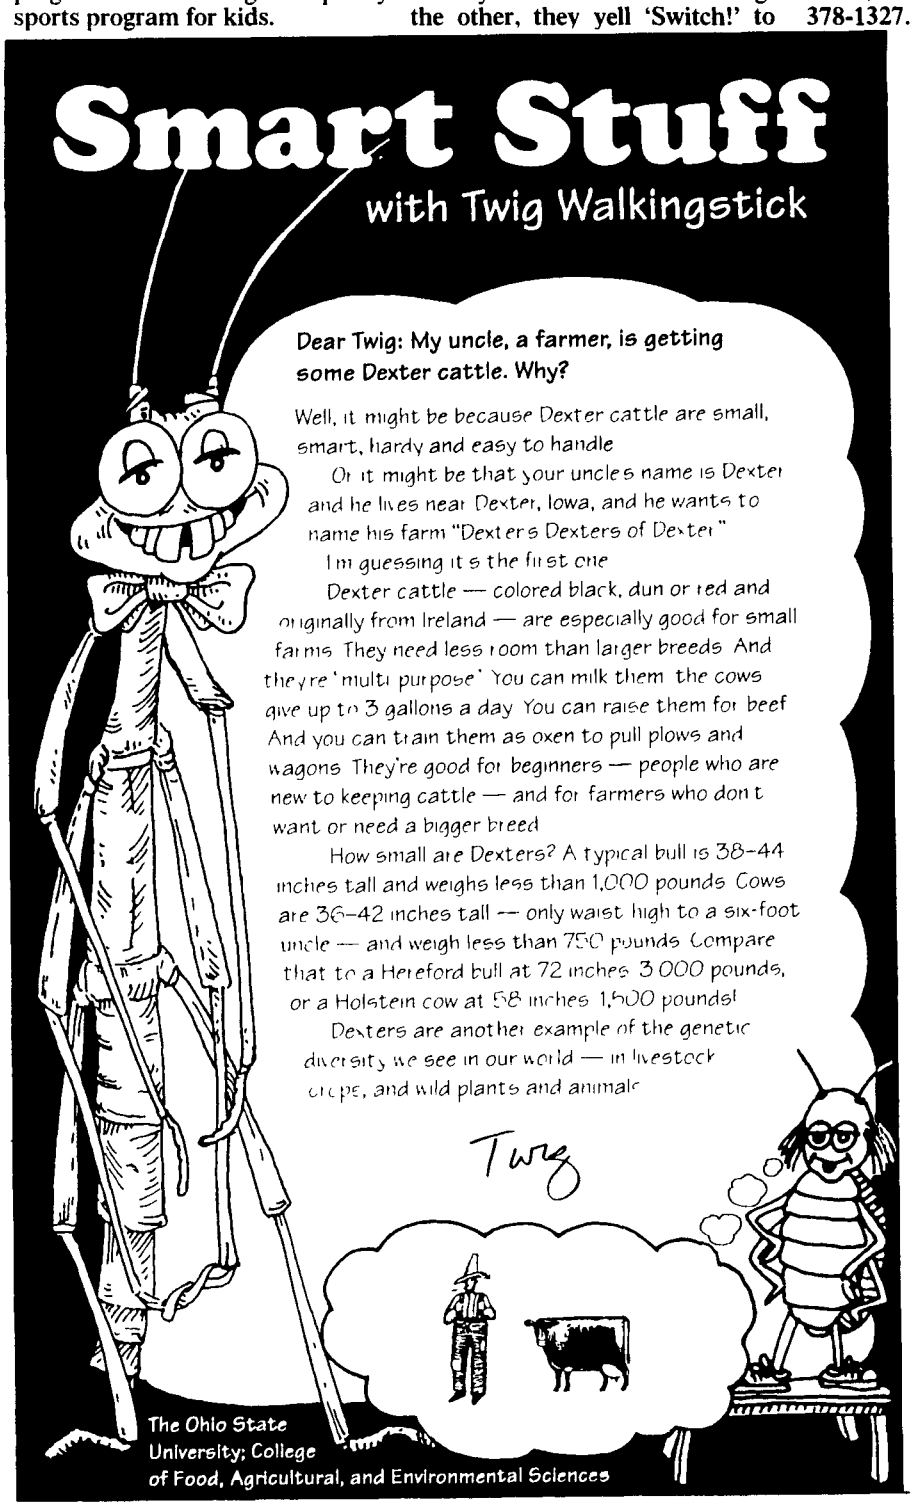
Pluralism Checklist

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pluralism is a condition in which minority groups participate fully in dominant society, while maintaining the cultural differences that make them unique. A pluralistic attitude means diverse groups share the responsibility and joy of leadership, while enjoying their right to maintain their cultural heritage. It implies mutual respect.

Do you maintain a pluralistic attitude in your everyday life? Here is a checklist to help you evaluate where you stand in your pluralistic practices:

1. I use language that does not stereotype, generalize or disrespect others.
2. I have sought out more information to enhance my own awareness and understanding of racism and prejudice by talking with others, reading or listening.
3. I do things with the point of view of others in mind.
4. I have re-evaluated my use of terms or phrases that may be perceived by others as degrading and hurtful.
5. I find out facts rather than acting on assumptions.
6. I have made a personal decision to take a positive stand on diversity.
7. I involve everyone when gathering information, resolving problems and making decisions.
8. I value the options of others and respect cultural values other than my own.
9. I tactfully call another's attention to their biased, prejudiced or stereotypical language or behavior.
10. I give the others the opportunity to teach me what I don't know or understand about their culture.

If you answered yes to most of these statements, you are well on your way to promoting a positive, pluralistic attitude that builds understanding and mutual respect among people.



Smart Stuff
with Twig Walkingstick
Dear Twig: My uncle, a farmer, is getting some Dexter cattle. Why?
Well, it might be because Dexter cattle are small, smart, hardy and easy to handle
Or it might be that your uncle's name is Dexter and he lives near Dexter, Iowa, and he wants to name his farm "Dexter's Dexters of Dexter"
I'm guessing it's the first one
Dexter cattle — colored black, dun or red and originally from Ireland — are especially good for small farms They need less room than larger breeds And they're 'multi purpose' You can milk them the cows give up to 3 gallons a day You can raise them for beef And you can train them as oxen to pull plows and wagons They're good for beginners — people who are new to keeping cattle — and for farmers who don't want or need a bigger breed
How small are Dexters? A typical bull is 38-44 inches tall and weighs less than 1,000 pounds Cows are 36-42 inches tall — only waist high to a six-foot uncle — and weigh less than 750 pounds Compare that to a Hereford bull at 72 inches 3,000 pounds, or a Holstein cow at 58 inches 1,500 pounds!
Dexters are another example of the genetic diversity we see in our world — in livestock crops, and wild plants and animals

FIRST PETS

There has been a wide variety of families in the White House, but what about the pets that have lived there?

Today, "Socks," the Clintons' cat, is the only pet that lives in the White House Socks is the first cat to live there since Amy Carter's cat, "Misty Malarky Ying Yang"

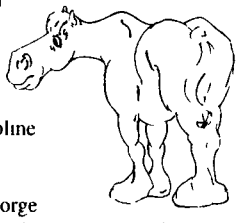
President Lyndon Johnson had three dogs—two beagles named "Him" and "Her" along with "Yuki" Yuki and the president used to sing in the Oval Office

Russell Harrison, President Benjamin Harrison's son, had a pet goat named Old Whiskers The president had to chase him down Pennsylvania Avenue one day when he ran away pulling a wagon full of Harrison's grandchildren

Zachary Taylor pastured his old army horse, Whitey, on the White House lawn When people visited the White House, they took home horse hairs as souvenirs.

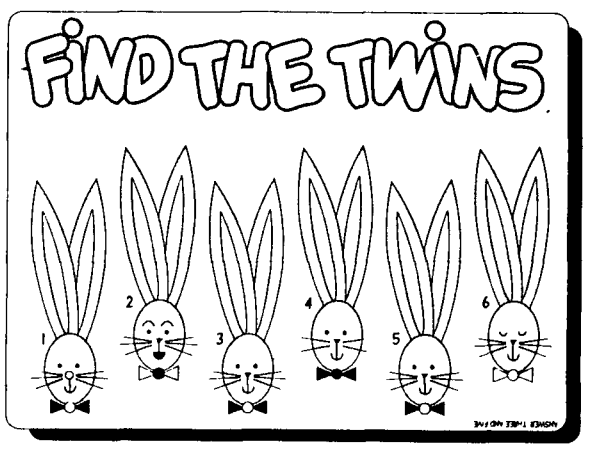
President Franklin D Roosevelt's dog was named Fala The dog was a gift from the president's cousin, and usually wherever the president went, the dog went too.

Caroline Kennedy, daughter of John F Kennedy, had a pony named Macaroni A gift from Lyndon Johnson, Macaroni was allowed to roam the White House grounds and received fan mail Caroline also had a dog named Pushinka



"Millie" was President and Mrs George Bush's dog Millie had two big things happen in her life while President Bush was in office She wrote a book, and she had puppies

Just as pets may play a big role in your life, they do in presidents' lives, too!



Warmer Weather May Damage Spring Blooms

Martha Maletta
Horticultural Consultant

RUTGERS, N.J. — Sixty-plus degrees in January. Precipitation well below normal. What effect might these unusual but not unheard of conditions have on plants?

Not unusual under these conditions are premature blossoms on spring-blooming plants such as forsythia and cherry. (I noted some plums in rather abundant bloom around the December holidays—an unexpected gift.) This winter bloom is generally sparse, so the spring show will not be noticeably reduced.

Some spring-flowering bulbs notably narcissus - are poking prematurely from the soil. It is unlikely that the flower display will be adversely affected, but leaves could be scorched if a deep freeze occurs. A blanket of straw or leaves might prevent the damage. Hopefully, other herbaceous perennials were mulched in December or early January to prevent plant heaving during freeze and thaw cycles.

Warm temperatures are a more serious potential threat to trees and shrubs. Our hardy woody plants survive winter by physiologically acclimating (hardening) to cold temperatures. This is a gradual process that can be interrupted by warm fall temperatures and can be partially reversed by warm winter temperatures. Plant damage can occur under these conditions when temperatures drop, especially if it happens suddenly.

The damage can take various forms from loss of buds and twigs to death of the living tissue in trunks and stems. There is no practical way to prevent freeze damage due to erratic temperature extremes. To help prevent damage from freezing fall temperatures, avoid fall fertilization, excessive irrigation and pruning that can delay hardening off.

The dry weather we've experienced since mid-summer can take an extra toll during winter. Evergreens are especially vulnerable. They loose water from their leaves during winter, especially under sunny and/or warm and/or windy conditions. If soil is dry or frozen so there is not enough water available to replace that lost from leaves, leaf scorch, even stem death, can result. Prevention includes making sure these plants go into winter with adequate soil moisture. If wind exposure is compounding the problem, install a temporary screen.

Roots in dry soil may freeze. Roots are less hardy than the tops of trees and shrubs, but soil usually provides adequate protection. Temperature will change more rapidly in dry soil than in moist soil, and, especially when there is no insulating snow cover, the temperature in dry soil can drop to root-damaging levels when a deep freeze persists for a few days. This is another reason to make sure plants go into winter with moist soil. Proper mulching can help conserve soil moisture.

Predicting exactly what toll last fall and this winter will exact in our landscapes is impossible. But I will not be surprised if a fair amount of winter damage shows up this spring.

Consumer Acceptance Of Irradiated Beef Grows

DENVER, Colo. — Consumer acceptance of irradiated ground beef is growing, according to a checkoff-funded study conducted on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board (CBB). The study, which measured consumer perceptions about irradiated ground beef, revealed a sizeable potential market for the product.

Irradiation can virtually eliminate E. coli O157:H7 and greatly reduce other pathogens, enhancing the safety of ground beef. The technology was approved for use on white potatoes in 1965, fruit and vegetables in 1986, pork in 1986, poultry in 1990, and beef in 1997.

Researchers found that a person's acceptance of irradiated beef was greatly influenced by initial perceptions. Four consumer segments were identified strong buyers (27 percent of the test group), interested (34 percent), doubters (24 percent) and rejecters (15 percent). The first three are potential markets for irradiated ground beef, and by implementing consumer education programs and continuing product quality research, this market should continue to grow.

Nearly all the "strong buyers" were ready to buy irradiated ground beef before the study, more likely to buy it after trying it and willing to pay ten cents a pound more for it. The "rejecter" segment snubbed placebo ground beef patties non-irradiated burgers that were labeled as irradiated in the study as often as the irradiated patties. The study said no amount of information would convince this group, which generally rejects any new product.

The good news is, on average, there were no palatability issues in the consumers' eyes," says John Lundeen, a managing director/partner at the Sterling Rice Group, which conducted the independent study along with Talmey-Drake Research and Strategy, Inc. "There is a market for this if it's supplied as a choice in supermarkets and there's even a broader market for it in foodservice.

"There is a good core who want to buy it and another group who are on the fence," Lundeen says. "As it's provided as a choice, there are other people who over time will become more comfortable with the concept. The upsides outweigh that minority that is not comfortable with this."

To gain greater acceptance of irradiated ground beef by those sitting on the fence, the study said the beef industry must address color issues irradiation tends to turn patties darker and more reddish brown.

There are also consumers who have a problem with the word "irradiation," which they erroneously connect to "radiation," even though irradiation uses electron beam technology (electricity). Research showed that changing the name would help but federal government approval would be required first.

An early 1990s study at Purdue University found that more than 90 percent of consumers were willing to buy foods processed with irradiation once they understood the process.

Capital Area Beekeepers Offer Short Course In Beekeeping

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Capital Area Beekeepers Association is offering the 15th annual short course in Basic Beekeeping. This popular two-day short course is scheduled for Saturday, May 11, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Nature Center, in Dauphin; and Saturday, May 18, from noon to 5 p.m., at the Milton Hershey Farm Conference Center and Apiary, in Hershey.

This course is sponsored by the association in cooperation with the Penn State Cooperative Extension. The course faculty includes cooperative extension apiculturist, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture apiary inspectors, and experienced and qualified members of the association.

Each registered attendee will receive a packet of beginning beekeeping information, as well as other course-related handouts.

Having a package of bees and the opportunity to get hands-on experience in an operating apiary will be two of the several highlights of the course.

Topics will include bee-ology, diseases, parasites and pests, equipment, hive management, harvesting and marketing, byproducts of the hive, apiary location and setup, colony inspection, and colony manipulation.

Table displays of beekeeping equipment, books and periodicals, and other beekeeping topics will be offered. A random drawing will award the hived package of bees and other door prizes to beginning beekeepers. Refreshments breaks will feature homemade foods made with honey.

This course will assist new beekeepers in getting started, as well as provide the latest information to current beekeepers. Many experienced beekeepers will be in attendance to assist in responding to questions and concerns. A certificate of completion will be awarded to each new beekeeper completing the course.

Preregistration is requested before Monday, May 6, and the course fee is $25 per person. Participants are encouraged to bring a bee veil and protective suite, if possible. A brown bag lunch is suggested, although, fast-food restaurants are located nearby. For a registration form, location map, and lodging information, contact Sam Albright, 605 South Mountain Road, Dillsburg, PA 17019, or call (717) 432-2628.

Healthy Brain Development Established In Baby's First Three Years

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — "Talk to your baby," is advice parents of newborns often hear.

But too many parents feel silly talking to a baby. Parenting makes them uncomfortable because they haven't observe parent-child interactions or because they do not realize the importance of connecting with a newborn from the earliest moments.

Studies show that 90 percent of brain development occurs in the first three years of life. Healthy brain development is dependent on healthy connections between parents and child. Children who have established a firm attachment to at least one parent or caregiver will do better throughout life.

For this reason the first three years of a baby's life will impact him or her forever. A child's emotional development and ability to cope later in life is dependent upon the interaction between parent and child during infancy.

For the important job of parenting, many parents are unprepared. Although parenting courses are available, it's difficult to convince parents of the need to participate in classes.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania wants to provide tools to help parents raise healthy, loving children right from the beginning. A comprehensive set or resources has been established with the national "I Am Your Child" Foundation. A set of six videos is available free to each parent with a child under three years of age. The videos provide information, resources, and parenting tips about child development, health, nutrition, safety, discipline, and literacy.

Too often parents believe they must provide their child with lots of toys and things to help them grow intellectually. But research shows that time and eye contact, not things, are what children need.

The first video in the set helps parents understand why the first years of life are so important for a child's healthy development. The video provides a wide range of recommendations to help parents promote healthy development.

Too often parents believe they must provide their child with lots of toys and things to help them grow intellectually. But research shows that time and eye contact, not things, are what children need.

Whenever you change your baby's clothes, spend a few extra minutes talking to her or him while making eye contact.

But the videos don't simply offer suggestions such as "Talk to your baby," but shows parents and caregivers interacting with babies.

Babies are ready to make contact with people right from the beginning, but definitely prefer their own parents. The video showed a newborn placed between a mother and a stranger, who both talk at the same time. Invariably, the baby turns toward the sound of his or her mother's voice. The same experiment was done with a father and stranger. Again, the baby's head turned toward the sound of the father's voice.

Touching, stroking, massaging, and cuddling a baby stimulates the brain.

Talking with a baby encourages a child to talk earlier and more often. It isn't that parents need to be saying something profound. Simply describe what you are doing while working or when diapering, dressing, and feeding.

Use the whole world as a classroom. Name things you see along the way when traveling in the car. Talk about items while placing them in your shopping cart. Explain the difference between big and small, heavy and light. Demonstrate inside and outside, up and down.

Toddlers love when you sing silly songs and make up your own verses.

Reading should be interactive. You do not need to finish the book or read every page. Keep it short and simple. Don't worry about your baby skipping pages when turning pages of the book, or tearing pages or trying to put the book in their mouth. The video explains that this behavior is normal for that age group. The purpose of reading to babies is to encourage them to develop a love for books and reading.

Use different voices and expressions when reading to children. Ask them questions about the pictures and the story.

"Don't push or overwhelm a child by correcting a child in the proper way to hold a book or turn the pages. Stop an activity when your baby shows a lack of interest or is tired.

Children learn by repetition. Create routines and rituals, especially at mealtimes and bedtimes. Routines provide a sense of security for children.

Provide a safe, colorful, stimulating environment where your baby is safe to explore and learn.

Discipline teaches limits with love. The purpose of discipline is to help your child learn to discipline his or herself. The video provides examples of disciplining. To stop young children from a harmful activity, often the only thing that is needed is to redirect their attention or remove them from a situation.

Relax. Enjoy your baby.

Even parents who know the basics of child caring can learn from the videos. It's like any job, the more you learn, the better parent you'll be.

The videos provide useful information, resources, and parenting tips about child development, health and nutrition, safety, discipline, and literacy.

Mothers who have babies in the hospital are sent a letter from the governor offering them a free set of the videos. If you did not receive a letter and qualify for the free set, call 1-800-9860.

It's never too early to begin reading to your baby. During the first months and years of life, a child's experiences with language and literacy form the basis for his or her later success as readers and learners.

Kids Need Time And Attention

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The life of a working parent can be hectic and stressful; trying to balance family and work. Children can experience stress from busy schedules, holiday events, and even from the things they see on television.

Children need time and attention to teach them the skills necessary to cope with exciting and stressful situations.

Parents and child care providers can help children by:

- Spending "one-one-one" time daily with your child;
- Talking about his/her feelings;
- Keeping routines and schedules the same;
- Praising the child for something well done;
- Doing play activities with clay, water, and sand;
- Using art, music, puppets, pretend play, and writing as ways to express feelings;
- Making sure children understand what you expect of them;
- Taking time to laugh together;
- Having children help with cooking;
- Making sure there is enough time each day for playing and reading.

Caregivers can receive free materials and information by contacting the Penn State Cooperative Extension Better Kid Care office at 1-800-452-9108 or by visiting www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

Safe And Sound Kids

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Children need to be "safe and sound" while parents are at work. When looking for a child care provider, check the following to help determine if the environment is safe:

- Home or center is bright and clean, including eating areas, bathrooms, and diaper changing areas;
- Children are instructed to wash their hands before meals, when handling food, and after bathroom or diapering routines;
- Toys and play equipment are well suited for the age of your child and in good condition;
- Electrical outlets are equipped with safety covers;
- There are enough adults to supervise the children. Additional supervisors are needed with young children;
- Outdoor play area is fenced;
- Outdoor play equipment is not rusty or have sharp edges;
- Arts and crafts materials are non-toxic;
- Cleaning materials and medication are stored separately in locked cabinets in the original or a labeled container;
- Emergency numbers are posted near the telephone;
- Smoke alarms are operational;
- First-aid kit is not accessible to children;
- Fire drills are scheduled as required;
- Formal written policies are in place for allowing your child to leave with someone other than a parent or guardian if necessary.

Caregivers can receive free materials and information by contacting the Penn State Cooperative Extension Better Kid Care office at 1-800-452-9108 or by visiting www.betterkidcare.psu.edu.

QUESTION — Charlesckey, Carlisle, wants to know where to purchase parts for a Hercules, Montgomery Ward & Co. 16-gauge gun.

QUESTION — Russ Brezler, 314 W. Seventh St., Waynesboro, wants to know of a supplier for axe and axe handles. He will supply patterns.

QUESTION — Richard Millard, Bucks County, wants to know where to find plans or a book about making a 18-36-inch doll cradle from wood that rocks.

QUESTION — A reader, who sent no address, wants to know where to find old cards manufactured by Gibson, Cincinnati, Ohio. The seven-day cards have messages written as if the animal wrote the message. The reader has cards numbered 4,5,6, and 7. An example of the writing is the number 4 cards with the message: "Betsy Bear is at your door/With get-well #4 wish." Anyone able to help her locate numbers 1,2, and 3?

QUESTION — A reader needs a set of good beaters to fit a Spatula Smart Black & Decker hand mixer. It is a heavy duty power boost mixer. If you have a set, call (301) 791-9586.

QUESTION — Kathleen Salotti writes that she recently moved to Ohio and is plagued with moles digging up the yard and tunnels and mounds everywhere. What is a solution to the problem?

QUESTION — Joyce Wenz wants to know where to find an old-time sock knitting machine, which is turned by hand and makes a tube. She believes the sole is finished by hand.

QUESTION — Valerie Miller, Honesdale, wants to know where to get a replacement wire for a swiveling weight on an old, German-made, spring wound anniversary clock. She tried a banjo string and it did not work. The original wire is paper thin about one mm wide, but it tore and is not long enough.

QUESTION — Kathryn Wistuk, Bangor, writes that earlier she had requested information on a massage oil used during W.W.II called dog oil. A reader wrote that it was dogbane or wandering milk weed, which are cathartic herbs. Wistuk wants to know how to use the oil. She knows that she did not take the oil orally and doesn't want to take anything by mouth.

QUESTION — David Simpler, Elkton, Md., writes that he used a product in 1972 call Purge-O-Matic from Stewatt Chemicals to clean soot from oil burners. It worked great, but he doesn't know where to get it now. He doesn't want to use soot sticks, he writes, because it will eat the furnace.

QUESTION — Maggie Keeler and her husband are responsible for obtaining heirloom seeds for a living history farm, The Burr House and Farm in West Virginia. Keeler writes that the 1751 house is the oldest frame structure in the state. The committee has purchased seeds from Landis Valley Farm Museum, but would like to expand the varieties grown through donation, purchase, and seed swapping. They especially would like bean varieties and seeds for other favorite vegetables that have been passed down through the generations. Send to Burr House and Farm Agriculture Committee, Jefferson Co. Landmarks Commission, c/o Irvan M. Groff, 324 E. First Ave., Charlestown, WV 25414. Or, phone (304) 724-1279.

QUESTION — Gideon King, Jr., 5469 Elam Rd., Kinzers, PA 17535, writes that he has some windows with windowpanes that have bubbles and streaks in them. Someone told him it is called Depression glass. He wants to know if the windows are of any value or any other information about the glass.

QUESTION — Meredith Ludwig, 2160 Bollinger Mill Rd., Finksburg, MD 21048, writes that her great grandfather, who lived in Shenandoah County, Va., received patent number 227, 174 for a manure grain drill, which was a four hoe drill that spread dry manure as fertilizer along with the grain. Ludwig wants to know where she could see the drill or get photographs of it. Any information you have for her would be appreciated.

QUESTION Elsie Martin, 21170 Millers Church Rd., Hagerstown, Md. 21742, writes that when she was young, she remembers eating a hollow tomato similar to a bell pepper. She would like to know where to find this old-time tomato seed so that she can plant them and save seed each year for replanting.

QUESTION — Cathy Stehman, 228 Doe Run Rd., Manheim, PA 17545, is looking for words and music to the children's song that starts with "A, B, C, D, E, F, G, Jesus died for you and me...."

QUESTION — Donna Truesdell, S. Deerfield, Mass., wants to identify a source for replacement rubber caps for the ends of tension curtain rods. The rods are fine, but the rubber caps have become fragile from sun exposure.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know where to find a 3-inch porcelain light socket.

QUESTION — Mildred Hess wants the original diet book, "Beverly Hills Diet," by Judy Mazel and published about 1990. Call Hess at (717) 933-8134.

QUESTION — A reader is looking for the words to the song that includes these lines: "How do you talk to a little baby goat? You can't say hello like a man. You have to say baa to a little baby goat. That's all he'll understand."

QUESTION — Holly Eshbach, Dover, wants to know where to purchase "baby doll sheep," which are miniature sheep that grow between 18-24 inches in height. She also wants information on the breed and diet and care that is required.

QUESTION — Glen would like to know where to find mower parts for a Yanmar diesel YM146. Call (717) 626-5700.

QUESTION — John Kotulich, Flemington, N.J., wants to know where to buy a glass jar for a hand butter churn. The top opening with outside thread diameter is about 5⅝-inches and is 11- to 12-inches deep for a 2 or a 2½ gallon round or square size. Call (908) 782-5774.

QUESTION — A reader (717) 898-7085 needs a source for plastic dibbles used for planting small seedlings.

QUESTION — John W. Lowery Jr., 7 Old Sharptown Rd., Auburn, NJ 08085, was born and raised in Rowes Run, Fayette County. Lowery is researching coal mines in that area and is looking for pictures of the following coal mines: Colonial #1 Smock, Colonial #2 Royal also known as Chestnut Ridge, Colonial #3 Rowes Run, and Colonial #4 Grindstone.

QUESTION — Frank Rice, Blain, wants to know how the term "pork bellies" came into use for reporting on agricultural commodities.

QUESTION — Bob Fleckstein, Woodstown, N.J., has an old string of Christmas lights. He wants to know where he can buy small clear replacement bulbs for it. The bulbs are one-inch long and have threads on the end. No marking is on them.

QUESTION — David Sempler, Elkton, Md., wants written information on scenting in regards to hunting. He writes that some days his beagles run as if they are tied to the rabbit and work very hard to keep it going. Sempler has heard that the ground breathes in and out and sometimes it does not. He knows that barometric pressure changes affect scenting conditions and that extremely dry weather produces bad scenting conditions. Sempler wants factual information on the relationship between high and low pressures, dry and wet ground, and high and low humidity.

QUESTION — Dave Ruble, West Chester, is looking for cylinder records (Columbia, Edison, Indestructible, and others) and phonograph-related items. He also wants old trains and toys. Call (610) 793-4249.

QUESTION — Ben Kinsinger, 686 Kensinger Rd., Meyersdale, wants to know where to find two old gas engines in any condition for an old Maytag washing machine motor that used a glass jar turned upside down for the gas. He also wants a very small ½ horsepower New Holland gas engine made in New Holland.

QUESTION — Louise Hannum, Wagontown, wants to know if there is any interest in a complete 1968 Franklin Mint Antique Car Coin Collection Series I. It includes 25 bronze coins dated from 1901-1925 with descriptive booklet.

QUESTION — A reader has a problem with their rabbits not pulling fur to prepare a nest to have their young. Anyone know what causes this "unmotherly" behavior?

ANSWER — Josephine Long, Sidman, wanted to know where to get Westminster pot handles and knobs fixed. Thanks to Reuben Esh, 3746 E. Newport Rd., Gordonville, PA 17529, who writes that he fixes pot handles and knobs for many different kinds of stainless steel kettles.

ANSWER — Thomas Burrell, Glen Gardner, N.J., wanted the name and address of someone in the Lancaster area who makes and sells life-size cows and calves for display in barnyards, lawns, and other places. Thanks to Robert Shaub, Shrewsbury, who writes that fiberglass cows are manufactured in Wisconsin and are available through NASCO, 901 Janesville Ave., Fort Atkinson, WI 53538-0901. Call (800) 558-9595 for catalog. Cost of the cow is $3,075, and the calf is $1,660.

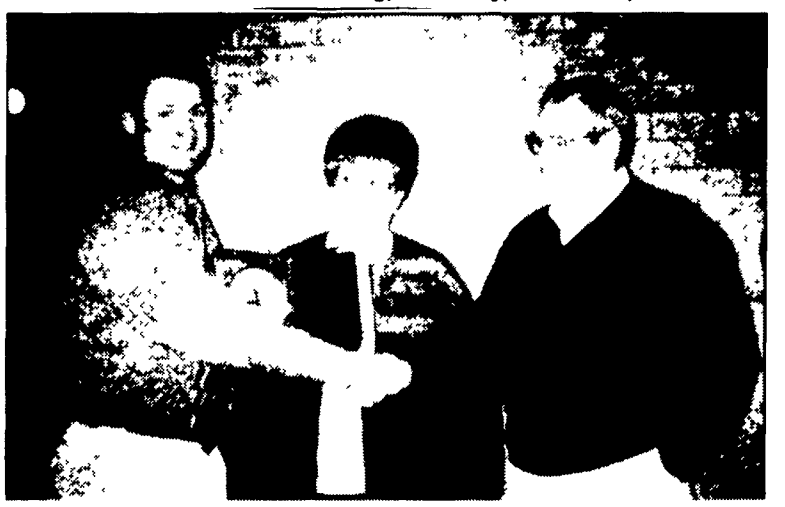
ANSWER — Betty Jakum, Littlestown, wanted the name of a group or organization that uses old Christmas cards. Thanks to Mary Ann Reich for recommending cards be sent to St. Judes Ranch for Children, 150 St. Judes St., Boulder City, N.V. 89005.

ANSWER — Kenneth Wertz, White Hall, Md., wanted Starline stalls. John Yoders, 3414 Springs Hill Rd., Salisbury, PA 15558, writes that he has 20 good, used Starline stalls with adjustable neck yokes for $15 a piece. Respond as soon as possible because the stalls are ready to go.

ANSWER — Ruth Ann Zeiset wanted to know what to do to keep potatoes from sprouting in the cellar. Thanks to a reader who writes that potatoes should be stored in a dark area with temperatures about 40 degrees. Although she never tried it, she read in a magazine that to keep potatoes from sprouting, place apples on top of the potato bin. Another reader writes that apples should not be placed near potatoes or they will sprout faster. Sprouting is a natural process, according to Heidi, even potatoes in the grocery store will sprout if left in the refrigerator too long.

ANSWER — Tim O'Rouke, York, requested the formula to make mortar for an old barn. Thanks to Robert Hollister for writing that the Conestoga Area Historical Society recently restored a stone house in the method that O' Rouke had inquired. The Society worked with a mason who specialized in restoration and historic mortars. The project is completed and may be seen on site in Conestoga. If interested in talking to a local expert, call Jim Heistand at (717) 872-4298 or write to 3645 Main St., Conestoga, PA 17516.

4-H HAPPENINGS



Brian Kreider, left, presents special award to Ann and Leon Arnold for their longtime support of the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Clubs.

Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club

The Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Club recently celebrated their achievements of 2001 with a banquet conducted at the Lebanon Expo Center. The banquet was led by Nathaniel Artz, who served as the master of ceremonies for the evening. The pledges were led by Billie Jo Atkins, and the invocation by Tim Crouse. After a dinner of beef and pork, the awards began.

Jeff Olin of Windsor, N.Y., wins the 32nd annual IFR Rodeo Announcers Showcase conducted at State Fair Arena, Oklahoma City, Okla. recently. Olin competed against 12 of the profession's top rodeo announcers and was the first announcer ever from the Northeast to win the competition. Announcers competed in categories such as appearance, voice, enthusiasm, rodeo knowledge, professionalism, and preparation. Olin received a commemorative gold belt buckle and an $800 check for his first place efforts.

Tim Schaeffer and Kyle Fleener recognized 4-H leaders and buyers from the livestock sale. All buyers received their meal free, and received a small token of appreciation from the club.

Leaders Brenda Crouse, Debbie Tice and Brian Kreider recognized fair and farm show winners from the swine, sheep and beef clubs respectively. Champion bred and owned winners were awarded a savings bond for their efforts. Winners were sheep — Kurt Fleener, swine — Joel Crouse, and beef — Kyle Fleener.

Brian Kreider spent some time recognizing the achievements of the Lebanon County 4-H Livestock Judging Team. The team won the state contest last July and went on to represent Pennsylvania in several contests throughout the country, eventually placing third in the national contest in Louisville, Ky.

Team members Travis Adam, Tim Schaeffer, Kyle Fleener, and Nate Tice then presented Kreider with a card and a chair for his efforts in working with them and helping them achieve their goals. Kreider also thanked those who supported the team, including the Firestine family, Harry Bachman, Cliff Orley, and all who purchased the cake at the livestock sale.

First year members were recognized by Brenda Crouse. They included Ryan Fisher, Jared Longenecker, Michael Billings, Derek Brehm, and Allison Martz.

Tim Fleener recognized the high school seniors, who are nearing their last year of showing in the 4-H program. Seniors Nathaniel Artz, Billie Jo Atkins, Tim Crouse, Kyle Fleener, Tim Schaeffer, Michelle Blauch, and Jennifer Campbell received a gold pin of either a sheep, hog or beef animal.

One of the highlights of the evening was the awarding of the outstanding members. The rookie award, given to a new member who is 8 to 9 years old, went to Ryan Fisher. Ryan showed hogs this year for the first time, both at fair and the Pennsylvania Farm Show. He is active in sports and other activities in the Tulpehocken School District.

The outstanding junior award went to Kurt Fleener, who shows hogs, sheep and beef cattle. Kurt, who is in the ELCO School District, is also active in basketball, and at his church. He won the sheep bred and owned award for the last two years.

The outstanding senior award went to Kurt's older brother Kyle Fleener. Kyle, a senior at ELCO High School, also shows all three species, was on the award-winning livestock judging team, and is looking forward to a career in agriculture.

Prior to the close of the program, leaders Debbie Tice and Brian Kreider thanked all those who have helped the clubs throughout the year, particularly Harry Bachman, auctioneer, Dennis Grumbine of the Pennsylvania Farm Show, Mike Firestine for his work with the Pennsylvania Livestock Association and Pennsylvania Farm Show, and all the other leaders and parents who keep the program going.

A surprise award was presented to Leon and Ann Arnold of Arnold Hog Farm. Both have been longtime supporters of the program, with Leon providing early leadership to the Swine Club, as well as providing project swine and beef animals to many 4-H'ers, while Ann has helped for many years with the 4-H/FFA barbecue at the Lebanon Area Fair. For their service, they received a clock plaque, a gift certificate to Country Fare Restaurant, and the centerpiece in a hog decanter. It was also Leon's birthday, so he was presented with a cake with the traditional "happy birthday" sung by all. The Arnolds have also had several children and grandchildren involved in the club.

Delaware County 4-H'ers At National Event

Seven residents represented Delaware County at the National Conversations on Youth Development in the 21st Century in Washington, D.C., Feb. 28 and March 1. Delaware County had the largest county representation in the Pennsylvania delegation.

The representatives from Delaware County included one adult 4-H leader — Bonnie Magliochetti of Media, and six 4-H teen members: Evan Davey, Springfield; Jana Holt, Wallingford, Katie Magliochetti, Media; Sarah Magliochetti, Media; Arnita McClarin, Chester; and Maive Stevens, Chester.

Leo Briggs' Scholarship Winner

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Jessica Chyle of Pleasant Mount, Pa., is recognized as the 2002 Leo Briggs' Memorial Scholarship recipient.

Each year at the New York State Dairy Princess Pageant the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., along with the Leo Briggs family awards a $500 scholarship to a deserving college student in ADADC's marketing region.

Chyle is a senior at Delaware Valley College where she is a major in the dairy science program. While in college, Jessica maintains a GPA of 2.885. At school she is active in the Del-Val Dairy Society, National Agri-Marketing Chapter, Sigma Alpha Sorority, Block and Bridle Club; out of school Jessica is active in the Wayne County 4-H Council along with various civic organizations.

In the future Jessica plans to serve as a county dairy extension agent working to educate farmers about new technology and research. Through this position she would like to also work with the 4-H program in various agricultural areas. The scholarship is offered to any college student within ADADC's marketing region of New York, northern New Jersey, and northeastern Pennsylvania. In keeping with the intent of Mr. Briggs' legacy, applicants must have exhibited leadership in dairy promotion.

This artful display of transferware incorporates the colors of the floral arrangement and is placed to follow the natural outline of the flowers.

Transferware Displays Decorating Impact

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

MARIETTA (Lancaster Co.) — Kristi Elkner has a passion for color and design. Collecting transferware offers a whole gamut of hues and shapes to fulfil Kristi's passion.

In the mid-1700s, England potters developed printing methods that enabled them to transfer detailed designs rather than hand paint each dish as was done in the imported Chinese china patterns. The time savings was immense. The processs enabled the pieces to be sold at considerably lower prices than handpainted pieces.

Each transferware pattern was painstakingly etched into a copper printing plate. The printing plate was inked with a color and used to make a print on tissue paper, which was in turn transferred onto a slip-glazed ceramic place and then fired in a kiln.

At first only cobalt blue was used. In the 1820s-1830s, other colors emerged on the scene.

Popular patterns included exotic landscapes, scenic views, country scenes, floral, fruit, and even animal designs. Popular in America were the plates depicting patriotic images such as George Washington's crossing often featured in what is called Blue Willow.

Many different colors and designs of transferware continue to make them extremely collectible. Some people limit their collections to a particular color. Others collect scenes or fruit or flower patterns.

If you are fortunate to have heirloom dishes and or lovely china pieces, do not hide them behind closed doors. Display them where you can enjoy them daily.

Many people display dishes in china closets, but don't limit your display to those behind closed doors. Consider arranging dishes on mantels, buffets, or shelves mounted on the wall. Or, take Kristi's idea and hang a display that color coordinates with the floral arrangement above a buffet.

For wall arrangements, use plates hangers found where home furnishings are sold.

Kristi said, "I think mixing and matching patterns are more pleasing to the eye than displaying all the same pattern."

She suggests combining pieces with common elements such as unusual shapes or those with similar motifs such as fruits.

Before hanging dishes on the wall, Kristi recommends gathering pieces intended for display. You may also combine dishes with pictures or other items that have similar colors or styles.

Lay the pieces on the floor confined to the space you will use on the wall. It's easier to make changes before hammering a nail for the plate holder into the wall.

Although some decorators recommend using the same or coordinating colors to fit into the existing scheme in your room, Kristi said, "Display what you love. What looks beautiful for magazine shots isn't always practical in your home."

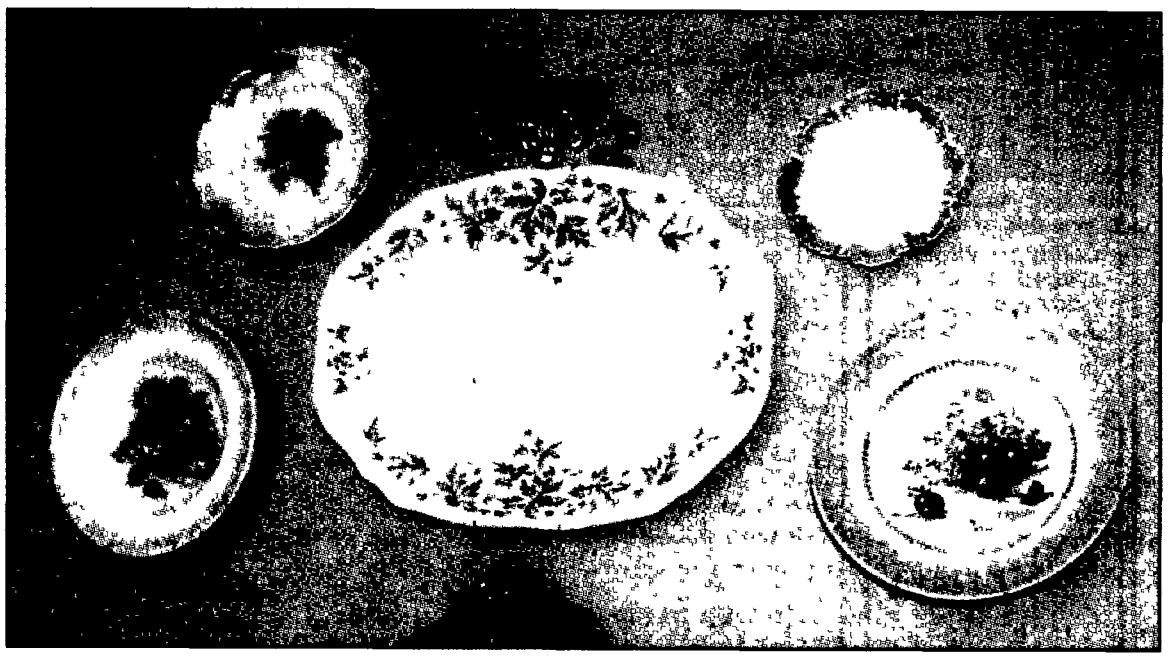
She recommends collecting transferware for sentiment rather than value. She said, "Hairline cracks do not bother me. It shows that someone loved the piece and used it."

Kristi also recommends using transferware when entertaining guests. Again, she prefers mixing and matching patterns rather than using pieces from the same set.

You may want layer plates in different designs, with the salad plate different from the dinner plate. She finds that white Wegewood china blends nicely with transferware. She also uses a mix of goblet styles.

"Mix and match gives a more interesting theme to the table and to your room."

Kristi Elkner's passion for collecting transferware started with black and white designs, then spread to other colors and designs.



The secret to this design, Kristi said, is the platter that anchors the wall arrangement in her dining room. Start with your dominate piece, it may not necessarily be the largest or the fanciest, but the one you like the best. Group other pieces around it.

Transferware is available in many different colors and designs. Although many pieces displayed together make a dramatic impact, equally as lovely is one piece hung in a strategic place.

Imari Porcelain Can Be Chinese Or Japanese

When you think of colorful Imari porcelains and pottery what comes to mind is that it was made in Japan. So it was, but it was also being copied by the Chinese in the early 18th century. Today it is just as costly , sometimes more than the Japanese.

Ben Edwards III became fascinated with Chinese Imari around 1980

His first purchase was a barber's basin purchased in an antiques shop for $950. By the time he retired as Chairman, CEO and President of A.G. Edwards, last March, he had amassed almost 3,000 pieces of mostly Chinese Imari. It recently sold at Christie's for a whopping $1,740,393. The second half of the collection will be sold next January

Pieces sold well over estimate, showing a revived interest in the category A large pair of Chinese Imari jars and covers from the first half of the 18th century were estimated at $7,000-10,000 sold for $30,550.

The original Imari was first made in Japan around 1640-46. The usual color combinations are iron red and cobalt blue with gold accents on a white ground. The designs were often set in panels, sometimes filled with flowers and folliage. Other subjects included figures, flying cranes, the phoenix and a Japanese monster known as Kirin.

Fishes, dogs and other animals were also popular. Only rarely were landscapes used.

Between 1660 and 1745 Imari became the the collecting vogue for wealthy Europeans.

The colorful designs were used as decorative accents rather than tableware. Exceptions were teapots. The pieces were copied for the most part from Western forms. The chargers, vases and ewers were then decorated in the Imari palette. However, molded figures followed traditional Japanese subjects.

Chinese Imari porcelain was also created for not only many of Europe's wealthy families during this time, but royalty as well Among the pieces in the Edwards collection are those decorated with the royal arms of France, from a dinner service for the young Louis XV and his uncle, the Regent, in about 1720. Many of the royalty commissioned pieces with the family coat of arms. A Chinese Imari barber's bowl has the arms of Gelderlant, c.1720 By the early 19th century collectors turned to new collecting trends. It took displays of Imari at the Philadelphia Centennial(1876) to briefly revive interest.

Antique Detective

Once again, in the late 1970s Japanese porcelains were recognized for their beauty and quality; including Imari.

CLUES: The average collector during the 1970s didn't know about Chinese Imari. As far as they were concerned it was all Japanese. However as interest grew, so did research.

Chinese Imari was rediscovered and the clues that made it identifiable. For example, Chinese Imari is thin and dense with a greenish look. Japanese Imari has a grayish tint and is coarser.

The spur marks used as supports during firing appear on Japanese pieces but not usually on Chinese Imari.

Early pieces of Japanese Imari are usually unmarked. A few had a blue painted leaf mark. Pieces with faked character marks were done in the 19th century by French porcelain faker Samson.

Ohio Extension Installs Electronic ID On Its Beef Cattle

WOOSTER, Ohio — Ohio beef cattle producers may soon be leaping into the age of technology with the help of a newly implemented electronic identification program.

Ohio State University animal scientists have installed an electronic verification system at all of its extension beef cattle branches throughout the state.

Researchers have ear-tagged some 1,200 head of cattle at its research centers in Coschocton, Caldwell, Jackson, Ripley, Columbus and Wooster for the purpose of collecting and tracking information about a specific animal as it moves through the production and marketing processes.

"The bottom line is that in order to assist with the research efforts that involve everything from breeding records to DNA research, we have to be able to have an animal's life history," said Francis Fluharty, an Ohio State animal scientist at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center. "The electronic identification system is a means of having a permanent record that is quickly accessible to people in the system."

The program, which was started this past fall, was also designed to educate producers on using the system — how to install it and how to collect and analyze the data so as to determine which production process is most profitable for them. The system will eventually be integrated into regional beef industry alliances that are being developed to improve beef production and marketing.

The electronic verification system works by tagging a cow with a unique 16-digit number, which can be scanned by producers or processors. Because the number is unique, said Fluharty, the chance of analyzing information on the wrong animal is slim. Such errors can occur more easily when the same visual tag numbers are used at a farm.

The EID number is used in spreadsheets or data management software programs to make sure that the animal's unique identity is maintained. The data management software is used to store such information as how often an animal was sick, its overall condition, its age, how often it received vaccinations and certain genetic traits or carcass characteristics it possesses.

Fluharty said that information from cows in the EID program would be more accessible to processors and packers, who could then inform producers of what traits they look for in a quality carcass — a move that may eventually be more profitable for both processors and producers as alliances are formed.

"The producer would know how well they are doing in producing a quality food product," said Fluharty. "So for example, if they know which carcasses produce the genetic traits that express characteristics desired by consumers, then they could keep that most productive heifer and continue producing a product that the market wants."

Ohio State researchers will begin conducting training seminars for cattle producers this summer. They expect to tag approximately 1,000 calves per year throughout the research branches.

According to 2000 Ohio Agricultural Statistics, Ohio is home to 1.2 million cattle and calves valued at over $330 million.

Congressman Bonilla Receives AHI Distinguished Legislator Award

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Animal Health Institute recently presented Congressman Henry Bonilla (R-TX) its Distinguished Legislator Award for 2001. The award is given annually to a legislator whose work has had a positive impact on the animal health products industry.

AHI President and CEO Alexander S. Mathews, who presented the award to Bonilla, said, "We appreciate the impact Congressman Bonilla's work has had on animal health. His commitment to funding programs that monitor and protect animal health have greatly helped bolster our nation's defenses against the accidental or intentional spread of animal disease."

Bonilla, who is chairman of the House Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee, has been instrumental in providing funds to both USDA and FDA to increase security against the introduction of such diseases as foot and mouth disease and bovine spongiform encephalopathy. Bonilla has also worked to ensure sound surveillance and monitoring systems to provide early detection of disease outbreaks.

"Farmers and ranchers in Texas and around the country are indebted to Congressman Bonilla for his work on their behalf," said Mathews. "Through his work he has demonstrated a genuine interest in ensuring animal health and providing for the efficient review of medicines that are important tools for livestock and poultry producers. Pet owners also rely on these medicines to treat diseases and keep their dogs, cats and other companion animals healthy and happy."

Past recipients of the Distinguished Legislator Award have included Senator Trent Lott (R-MS) in 1998 and Senator Tom Daschle (D-SD) in 1999.

Learn About The Hills, Valleys Of Phosphorus Fixation

NORCROSS, Ga. — Phosphorus fixation is one of those things that happen to some degree no matter what we do. Once phosphorus is applied to soil, regardless of the fertilizer brand or chemical composition, it will indeed be fixed.

The very nature of the word — fixation — sounds negative. And in the extreme, it is. But as with many things practiced in moderation, there are benefits to fixation. Because phosphate (the chemical form of phosphorus in fertilizer) is precipitated in soil (fixed), it leaches very little and only over a long period of time under most agronomic conditions.

So how do we ensure that phosphorus fixation is moderate and not extreme? A good place to start is with soil pH. Across the range of soil pH there are three peaks of high phosphorus fixation. The two highest peaks occur in the acid pH range, where phosphate precipitates with iron and aluminum. The strongest fixation is with iron.

This fixation occurs primarily below pH 4.0. It is very difficult to supply sufficient phosphorus for crop needs when phosphorus solubility is being controlled by iron.

At a little higher pH, around 5.0 to 5.5, phosphate precipitation by aluminum is especially strong The fixation peak is high, but not as high as with iron. Nonetheless, phosphate availability to crops is exceedingly limited when it is being controlled by aluminum. Another problem when the soil pH is below 5.5 is direct aluminum toxicity to plants.

Liming is the cure for acid soils. The high peaks of fixation with iron and aluminum disappear and phosphorus fixation is minimized when the soil pH is moved toward neutrality. The valley (area of lowest fixation) occurs between pH 6.0 and 7.0. This is the ideal environment for phosphorus and for optimum crop growth. Precipitation does occur, but not to the extent that most of the applied phosphorus is rendered unavailable to crops. And as previously stated, the positive aspect of moderate fixation is that the phosphorus stays in the root zone, moving very little in most soils.

The final peak of phosphorus fixation occurs in alkaline soils around pH 8.0. It isn't much of a peak — more of a hill — compared to those in the acid pH range. It is possible to lower soil pH by applying acid-forming amendments, but this is seldom done if phosphorus availability is the only issue. Phosphate is precipitated primarily by calcium in alkaline soils. The fixation is relatively weak, and it is generally more economical to apply a few more pounds of fertilizer phosphate than to acidify the soil.

Remember, the fact that phosphate rapidly precipitates in soil is not necessarily a bad thing. As a result of precipitation, phosphate seldom leaches. The exception is in fields with a history of heavy and repeated applications of manure where mobility is increased. But that is another story.

Understanding the hills and valleys of phosphorus fixation is important in managing this essential plant nutrient for maximum benefit.

2002 Off-Road Fuel Price Protection Program

Service and Price from the Same Supplier?

Don't let your fuel prices get out of control this year. Take advantage of our special pricing for farming customers in effect from April through November, 2002. Your price for off-road low sulphur diesel and kerosene will be manageable and predictable this year...which is more than we can say for Mother Nature. Plus, it will be delivered when you need it. When you can't afford to sacrifice service for price, call Berks Products. Call now for details.

NEW! Vermeer 554XL Baler:

Here's why:
- 5-bar pickup handles bigger windrows, faster speeds
- Simple, horizontal bale-starting system is designed for fast starts
- Bottom drum design lets you pull in hay faster, often allowing you to drive a full gear faster
- Best HaySaver Wheels in the field
- Up to 1200 lbs. in a single 65" dia. x 48" wide package; 2000 lb. capacity with silage baler option
- Silage option lets you bale wet or dry without changing a thing
- Makes bales 17% larger* than a standard 5' dia. x 4' wide baler at virtually the same price! ****

Cut-Out Clutch Protection
No more burnt or hot discs to wrestle with Greater protection for those times when your baler's pulling harder on the outside rows, the tractor's overpowered or you accidentally overfill when trying to bale that last strip of hay

* determined by comparing volume measurement of a standard 60 dia x 48 wide bale versus a 65 dia x 48 wide Vermeer bale
 Price comparison is based on published list prices (Y2000) between Vermeer 554XL Series Baler and other 5 x 4 competitive round baler models

Vermeer

Check it out! 17% more bale size than standard 5' x 4' bales

Match A Spreader To Your Needs

Without Spreading Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options it's easy to see how the New Idea™ 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern

Culvert grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion And for hauling long distances the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders

GEHL

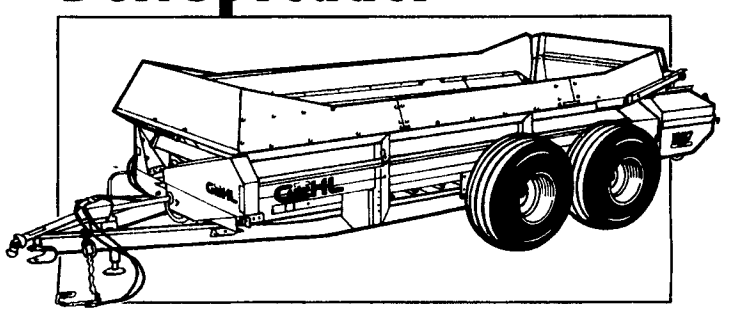
One Tough Box Spreader

GEHL the name means quality



Gehl Box Spreaders deliver outstanding performance in a variety of materials. And they're built extra-strong for more years of dependable service. Available in four sizes, these units can be custom-equipped to match your operation. See your Gehl dealer for complete details.

- Excellent Spread Patterns - In a variety of materials.
- 12-Year Warranty - On sides and floor.
- High-Density Polyethylene Flooring - Virtually indestructible.
- Options Include - Hydraulic remote control, hydraulic drive, hydraulic endgate and liquid side extensions

The #1 Name In Feedmaking

Gehl Mix-All™ portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 35 years. Now available with Gehl's famous hammermill or a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock.

- Total hydraulic control - Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments
- Remote controls - Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine.
- Electronic scales - For precise ration weighing.
- Customize your machine - With a wide variety of options and attachments.

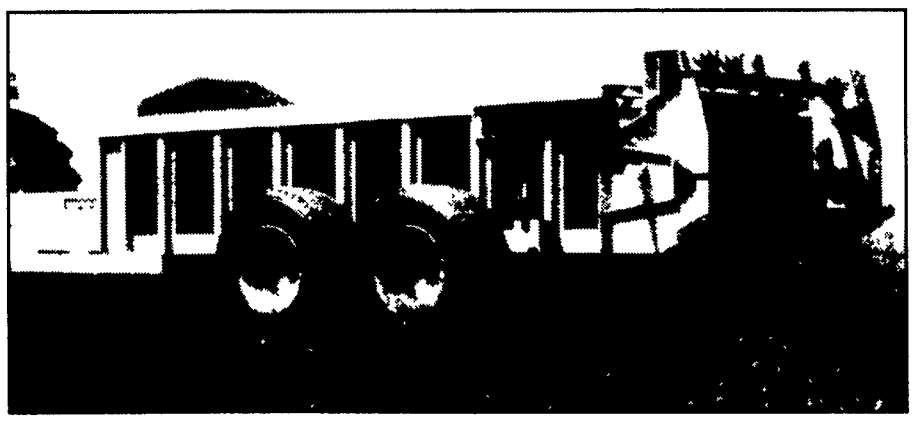
Hydra Push Is Back

LEON - Manure Spreader

"Material Handling Excellence"

"Silver Spreader"® Series



Model SS - 375
Model SS - 425 > 2 sizes and both in stock at Umbergers

The "Heavy Duty Push Gate" is steel reinforced to prevent twisting or bending under the heaviest loads. Floor and side guides, ensure smooth movement. The push off unloading speed can be adjusted, and the precisely fitting push gate ensures the solid poly box is clean at the end of each load. Notice the standard top gate extension to assist in handling large heaped loads.

Hydraulic Push-Off Technology

Leon "Hydraulic Push-Off Technology" is strong, steady, smooth, simple, trouble free, and reliable to guarantee the power needed to push the heaviest load. This technology eliminates the old fashioned approach to unloading which used apron chains, sprockets, shafts, idler slides, conveyer slats, etc. (developed in the last century) that are the heart of heavy maintenance costs and down time due to failure that are used on competitive machines.

The "Solid Poly Box" on the total floor and total sides is constructed from super slippery corrosion proof polyurethane plastic materials. It is not just a liner or surface coated plywood - but SOLID POLY MATERIAL. It eliminates any distortion when temperatures change and particularly eliminates manure freeze up problems in the winter months. Spreading is faster and easier in all weather conditions. The higher investment in these poly materials more than pays for itself in reducing corrosion, leakage, etc. Problems for the operator in the many years ahead.

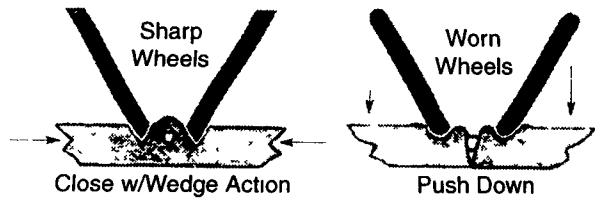
Attention:

Kinze/John Deere Planter & No-Till Drill Owners

Did you know that those old cast iron closing wheels can be reconditioned to "like-new" performance for a fraction of replacement cost? Now is the time to get ready for tough planting conditions like sod and dry,hard soil. We can help your older planter or drill to close those seed trenches properly. (See illustration)



Want to sharpen your planting skills?

Benefits include:
- ✔ Less closing pressure
- ✔ More uniform germination
- ✔ Improved stand population
- ✔ Increased yields

CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Speciality

We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined outputs, shafts, housing adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies

For 8-30 HP Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1–2 cyl.)
- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1 1/8", 1 7/16"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

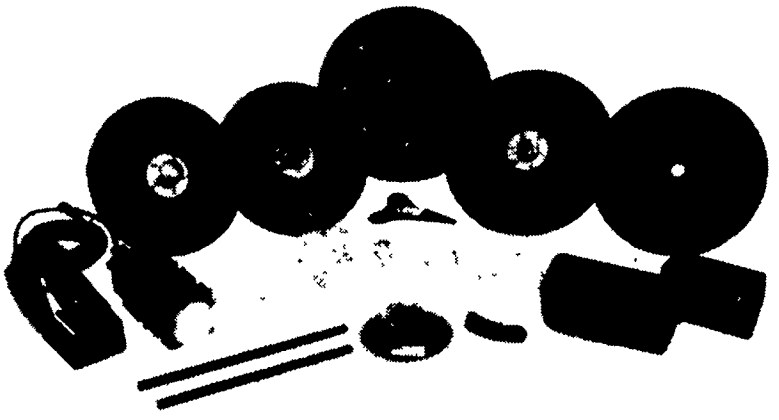
The First Step to Successful Planting



Good crops aren't produced by chance. Before the first seed is placed in the soil the quality of the crop is effected by the tools used in the planting process. Genuine AGCO planter parts help ensure a precise depth and accurate row spacing. Set the foundation for a great year and produce the results you expect. Stop in today for all of your planting needs.

Maryland Grain Board Completes Funding Process

EDGEWATER, Md. — After almost three full days of meetings, the Maryland Grain Producers Utilization Board (MGPUB) completed the yearly process of allocating checkoff funds. Funds are provided in the form of grants to help promote research, education, and the market development of grain.

"It is never an easy job," stated Drew Stabler, long-time board member for MGPUB and grain farmer in Montgomery County. "Because the checkoff funds are based on a percentage of our net income, the level of funding will differ each year due to changes in market prices and yields. Though our board realizes all the grants applied for have value, we really have to weigh the benefits of each when deciding which projects to fund and at what level."

Grant recipients must submit a report at the end of each year. This allows the MGPUB board to see exactly how monies were used and is a great source of information for further funding.

Many of the research projects have proven to be of great value for Maryland farmers. Currently, a study by Virginia Tech to develop a variety of hull-less barley is under way. It is the hope of the MGPUB that Maryland growers will soon have a variety of hull-less barley that is extremely productive and easy to handle. As barley is the small grain feedstock being considered for the proposed ethanol plant in Maryland, its addition to the market should be timely.

"We are very excited about this project. As our barley markets have diminished, this can make a significant difference to how much barley is grown. Barley is a very abrasive crop but eliminating the hull makes this a much easier crop to deal with. Barley serves as a great cover crop and its potential to be used in an ethanol plant gives it much more value," added Donnie Tennyson, MGPUB member and farmer in St. Mary's County. "This type of research project can really make a difference for Maryland farmers."

Another project of great interest is the research done by Dr. Ken Staver of the Wye Research and Education Center. His four-year study investigated the effects of nitrogen-based poultry litter applications on both phosphorus and nitrogen transport in field-scale watersheds in conventional and no-tilling settings. Although data will continue to be collected on this project through April of this year, several preliminary findings were presented.

Stabler stated, "As we are in the midst of some nutrient management problems, studies of this nature can really make a difference in showing what does and doesn't work with nitrogen applications. Our Board believes that using checkoff funds for this kind of valuable research can help both farmers and nutrient management consultants make effective decisions."

Along with research, the MGPUB funded grants for many programs involving school-aged children...beginning with elementary schools and going through high school. In many cases, children in the counties represented have very little or no exposure to agriculture. These focused presentations allow children to experience first-hand the importance of grains and agriculture to their lives.

Market development is another huge area of importance for MGPUB funding. These are mostly large, national organizations representing individual states in a collective manner such as the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA), US Wheat Associates, and US Grains Council. These organizations work to develop new markets at the national and international level and offer individual states a much larger voice.

A prime example of the power of these organizations would be last year when President Bush denied California's request to opt out of the federal reformulated gasoline (RFG) oxygen requirement. The NCGA was instrumental in providing and presenting sound research on why the RFG requirement was beneficial and should be left in place. This denial opened the door for many millions of dollars in ethanol production.

The Maryland Grain Utilization Board completed their meeting by funding 34 different grants for a total of $335,000.

Winter Wheat Acreage Down In Ohio

WOOSTER, Ohio — Ohio's winter wheat acreage is down this year, an eight-percent drop compared to last year, according to the United States Department of Agriculture's Winter Wheat Seedings report.

Growers have seeded 870,000 acres of winter wheat. In 2001, 950,000 acres of wheat were seeded. The USDA report also shows this season's planted acreage down 23 percent from the 1,120 acres of wheat planted in 2000.

"It is my estimation, and I hate to say this," said Ohio State plant pathologist Pat Lipps, "but this is probably one of the poorer wheat crops going into winter I've seen in a long time."

Lipps said the reduction in acreage is largely due to the unusual wet weather during planting in October that water logged fields, creating ideal disease situations that either killed the seeds during germination or killed the seedlings after emergence.

Northwest Ohio was hardest hit, with many counties reporting seven-to-10 inches of rain within a two-week period. As a result, growers were forced to replant several weeks beyond the Hessian fly free-date. Counties affected by wheat planting problems include Putnam, Paulding, Van Wert, Allen, Hancock, Henry, Defiance, Wood, and parts of Mercer, Shelby and Auglaize.

"Having to replant very late in November is just not conducive to high yields. It's likely that many fields in northwest Ohio will be converted into soybeans or corn this spring," said Lipps. "If they take some of those late-planted fields and plant something else, it's likely we could drop another 100,000-150,000 acres of wheat in the state."

Despite the questionable production, Ohio's mild winter has given the crop a boost and growers are keeping their fingers crossed that a warm, early spring is on the way to help tillering of the plants to increase yields.

"The warm weather in November and first part of December actually helped us out some so that the wheat could get better established. We need a mild winter with snow cover to protect young plants from freezing injury," said Lipps. "And we also need warmer than usual growing conditions in March and April so there is sufficient tillering to develop the number of heads to get a reasonable yield."

Lipps said much of the winter wheat has only one tiller per plant. At least three-four tillers per plant are needed to produce the 60-70 bushel yields that growers are accustomed to.

"Based on the yield potential for this year, it'll be interesting to see what our total production will be," said Lipps. "Obviously, we'll have a drop in production, but how much of a drop it's hard to say at this point in time."

Ohio ranks seventh overall among all winter wheat-producing states in the United States and produces some of the highest quality soft red winter wheat sought after by millers and bakers.

Trileaf Tobacco Hosts Presentation

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Trileaf Tobacco Company, Inc., located here, put aside the daily routine of receiving tobacco recently.

Trileaf hosted a presentation for about 100 interested tobacco growers by Samuel E. Hayes Jr., Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture. Christian Herr, deputy director of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Lyle Forer, director of the Bureau of Plant Industry, joined Hayes for the meeting.

For the 2001 growing season, Vector Tobacco, Inc., a North Carolina-based cigarette company, introduced a bio-engineered tobacco. This new variety was designed to keep the nicotine in the roots, not in the leaves.

About 3,000 acres of Vector tobacco were grown in 13 Pennsylvania counties last year.

Trileaf Tobacco Company, Inc. functions as the agent for Vector in Pennsylvania. The new product will be an ultra-low nicotine cigarette designed as a smoking cessation aid. These new cigarettes should be on the market in late spring.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture was instrumental in opening the door for the biotech crop to be grown in Pennsylvania. Hayes praised growers for the fine job they did in growing and following the rules of not co-mingling types of tobacco.

Increased competition for tobacco in 2001 provided the growers with a price increase per pound of tobacco, even for non-Vector types. Jane Balmer, president of Lancaster County Farm Bureau, commented, "'Tobacco,' used to be a bad word in Harrisburg." The introduction of Vector Tobacco, however, has brought significant positive changes to the industry within the state. Higher prices and a more beneficial use for the new crop are helping to change the perception of tobacco.

Hayes spoke of several other projects that his department is doing for Pennsylvania farmers. One special provision is for state-funded catastrophic crop insurance. Funds are designated to alleviate the effects of natural disaster. Catastrophic insurance premiums will be free under the state-funded program.

The other project that Hayes spoke of is the monetary compensation from the tobacco companies' settlement with the state of Pennsylvania. A portion of $22 million will be distributed to tobacco growers as compensation while they are seeking to grow alternative crops. The application for compensation must be submitted by March 31, 2002.

Following the meeting, Hayes invited the growers to participate with their comments and questions. The majority of growers expressed appreciation for the locally grown Vector greenhouse plants. Lyle Forer offered insight into the question of APHIS deregulation of Vector Tobacco. He said that Pennsylvania has given its approval for the new crop to be deregulated. The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of the USDA will make the final decision about deregulation soon. Forer stressed that not co-mingling tobacco types will remain the most important aspect of growing Vector.

MANSFIELD (Tioga Co.) — Dugan Tractor Inc. recently received the "Tioga County Extension Cooperator Award" for the year 2001.

The dealership, recently purchased by Maple Mountain Equipment, has supported many 4-H and Penn State Cooperative Extension programs over the years, including "Safe Farm Equipment Operations Courses for Youths," support of the Tioga County Junior Livestock Sale, Tioga County Fair, Tioga County Youth Field Day, and Tioga County Farm City Day.

Pennfield Adds Two To Sales Team

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennfield Corporation has announced the addition of Ron Dolbow and Dale Holsopple to its ag products dairy sales team.

Ron Dolbow will contribute 31 years experience to the Pennfield sales team. He spent 23 years as a farm store manager and eight years in dairy nutrition.

In his capacity as dairy consultant, Dolbow's territory will include central and southern New Jersey as well as Bucks, Montgomery, and eastern Chester counties in Pennsylvania for Pennfield feed sales.

Dale Holsopple, a Penn State graduate, has a bachelor's degree in dairy and animal science. Having spent four years at Platt's Mill Inc. as a nutritionist and 1½ years with Shur-Gain as a dairy nutritionist with direct sales responsibilities, Dale will be an asset to the Pennfield Ag Products Dairy Sales Team. Dairy producers in the area of Martinsburg, Belleville, Indiana, and Westmoreland counties will benefit from his knowledge and experience.

Agway Announces Plan To Strengthen, Refocus Cooperative

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway President and Chief Executive Officer Donald P. Cardarelli announced details of a comprehensive plan designed to refocus the cooperative on a select group of businesses and significantly strengthen the cooperative for long-term success.

"After a long and careful process. Agway has elected to focus its resources on a select group of businesses where we are well-positioned for profitability, future growth and service to our farm and other customers," said Cardarelli.

According to Cardarelli, Agway will retain four selected business segments: animal feed and nutrition, energy products, fresh produce, and agricultural technologies.

"These businesses have combined annual sales exceeding $1 billion and they have a clear history and connection to our farm and cooperative heritage," said Cardarelli.

At the same time, Agway is taking steps to divest several other business units.

"We have also made decisions regarding four lines of business — Telmark, Agway Insurance, Agronomy, and Seedway — that we will immediately begin taking steps to exit," reported Cardarelli. "The successful sale of these businesses would benefit Agway by allowing us to strengthen our capital structure and reduce debt. Also, the businesses we are choosing to exit are good businesses that would benefit from owners who will dedicate appropriate resources to them.

"We want our customers and business associates at every level to remember that it's business as usual throughout Agway as we implement this plan," said Cardarelli.

Claas Introduces New Variant® 280 Round Baler

COLUMBUS, Ind. — Claas of America has introduced its new Variant® 280 Round Baler that delivers high output and operator comfort. Featuring the Roto Cut option, the 280 is designed for a variety of hay baling applications.

Standard equipment includes an extra wide 83-inch pick up, endless belts, a soft center control, and pivoting gauge wheels. Bale diameter on the new baler can be adjusted from 36 inches to 72 inches with a width of 48 inches. The Variant 280 is available with twine tie, rollatex tie, or a combination.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?
Consider a Mueller precooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

ALANTA
A member of the LimPoly group of companies Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes higher milk production. It is the ultimate stall floor covering for the modern, animal-friendly dairy farm.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of two rubber layers with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enerka gives a 10-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. It's cool in summer and pleasantly warm in winter.

SAFE

BEEF TIPS

Study on Bulls (2)

The American Simmental Association has the only genetic evaluation and EPDs for meat tenderness. Studies, continuing even now, involved the greatest and most often used Simmental sires. Simmental breeders can now tell you what tenderness you can expect to find with steers sired by many of the most popular Simmental sires. Another reason to use a Simmental bull on your herd. ALFALFA SEED $1.55/Lb.

from the Dakota's Trask Family Seeds

- Features grower to grower direct seed sales
- SDSU tested
- Distributors in Lancaster PA Martinsburg WV & Syracuse NY
- Offered to growers for $1 55/per lb in 60 lb bags
- Varieties S D Common Vernal and others
- These Alfalfa varieties are proven to compete with the expensive varieties in all conditions and always carry our money back guarantee

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting wonderful alfalfa from South Dakota seed

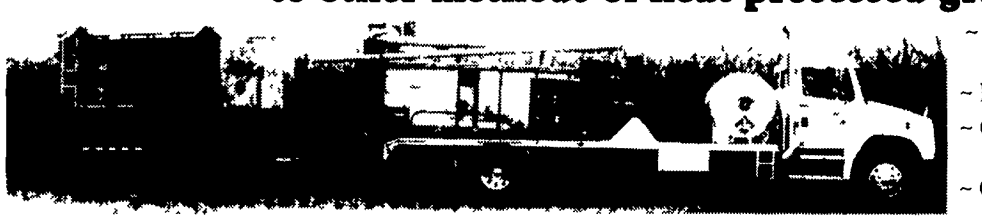
THE ROAST-A-MATIC Grain Roaster & Cooler Unit is superior to other methods of heat processed grain



- ~ Brings hot roasted grain to ambient tempreature
- ~ No condensation on top of grain
- ~ Quality control - no hot spots from improper cooling
- ~ Grain can be put into storage cold

~ Prevents deterioration of elevator legs from hot grain condensation ~ Saves handling time ~ On the farm drying

Have your soybeans, corn, wheat, oats, sorghum and barley roasted, cooled and stored on your farm
